PLAN OVERTURN IN P. S. BOARD

COL. HAYWARD AS CHAIRMAN

McCALL STOCK TO NEPHEW

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Nov. 17.—William R. Willcox, former Chairman of the Public Service Commission and an old friend of Governor Whitman, spent several hours in consultation with the Governor today. He saw the Governor in the Executive Chamber at the Capitol, and went with him to the Executive Mansion for luncheon, and later they returned to the Capitol. Changes in the personnel of the Public Service Commission of the First District were discussed.

While neither of them would be quoted, it was learned that the charges against Commissioner McCall were gone over thoroughly. Mr. Willcox's experience in the commission had led the Governor to consult him. Not only were the McCall charges the subject of consultation, but other recommendations which the Thompson committee is expected to make were talked over. The belief is general that Governor Whitman thinks there will be more than one vacancy to fill this Winter in addition to the place of Chairman and the Commissionership which J. Sergeant Cram will give up when his term expires in February.

Names of men suitable to fill these vacancies were discussed by the two men. Travis H. Whitney, present Secretary of the commission; Thomas Wilson Hodge, a consulting engineer of the firm of Boller & Hodgé, 149 Broadway, and Kingsley Martin, Chief Engineer of the Department of Bridges under Mayor McClellan and Bridge Commissioner under Mayor Gaynor, were the names over which the most time was spent. Other names were mentioned casually in the talk between the two men.

It is predicted that by next Spring a complete reorganization of the Public Service Commission will have been effected with Colonel William Hayward as the Chairman. The political complexion of the board will be Republican. There is a vast amount of patronage at the disposal of the commission.

When their consultation was finished, finally, Mr. Willcox went back with the Governor to the Executive Mansion, where the Governor and Mrs. Whitman gave a reception to the delegates to the Charities and Correction Conference. When the two men parted it was with the agreement to get together soon and compare notes on their views as to changes in the Public Service Commission.

All that Mr. Willcox would say for publication was that he had come to Albany to fulfill an appointment made with Governor Whitman long before the Thompson committee lodged its charges against Mr. McCall. The Governor said Mr. Willcox's visit was a friendly one.

FIND McCALL'S MISSING STOCK

"J. C. McCall Special" Account Finally Received It.

The 85 shares of Kings County Electric Light and Power Company stock which Chairman Edward E. McCall of the Public Service Commission neglected to mention as having owned, along with the block of 387 shares of the same stock, which, he said, he gave to his wife, were traced yesterday. Perley, Morse & Co., expert accountants, reported to the Thompson committee that the eighty-five shares were transferred on Dec. 27, 1907, by Mr. McCall to his nephew, John C. McCall, a Vice President of the New York Life Insurance Company. They were eventually sold in the open market at a profit of $2,014.30.

The stock was originally carried by Mr. McCall with E. R. Chapman & Co., who transferred it to Waterman, Anthony & Co. Upon going out of business these brokers transferred it in turn to their successors, Carpenter, McClave & Co., and it was put in the name of John C. McCall. Albert McClave, a member of this firm, married a niece of Chairman McCall.

At the time of the transfer, on Dec. 27, 1907, Edward E. McCall wrote this letter to Waterman, Anthony & Co., and it was found in the brokers' files:

"This will serve as your authority to accept from E. R. Chapman & Co. my account, which contains eighty-five shares of Kings County Electric Light and Power Company stock. When the same is received by you, you are further authorized to place the same in the account of John C. McCall."

"J. C. McCall Special" Account.

The accountants called attention to the fact that the entry on the books was first in the name of "E. E. McCall" and that later the "E. E." was crossed out and "J. C." written over it. Later the word "special" was written before the word "account." The report of the accountants continued:

"The account of 'J. C. McCall, Special,' which contained numerous other stock transactions, was charged with $8,470.70 on ledger folio No. 175 and the eighty-five shares of Kings County Electric Light and Power Company were carried in this account from this date to Sept. 8, 1908, when they were sold to Hallowell & Henry at 123½, or $10,407.50.

"The dividends on this stock were all credited to J. C. McCall's special account, and there is no record in this account of payments made, if any, in this transaction to Edward E. McCall by J. C. McCall. Therefore, if E. E. McCall received remuneration in this matter it was a private transaction be-

COLOGNE CARDINAL ON ERRAND TO POPE

German Prelate Telegraphs That He Is Coming With Important Message.

ROME, Nov. 17.—Cardinal von Hartmann, Archbishop of Cologne, has telegraphed Pope Benedict announcing that he will soon arrive here. He adds that he was the bearer of important communications.

The Cardinal's telegrams have given strength to the belief that his proposed visit is connected with the international situation and perhaps indicates a definite peace move.

Cardinal von Hartmann enjoys the confidence of not only the Pope but also of Emperor William. He was employed by the pontiff in all negotiations to obtain better treatment for French ecclesiastics who had been made prisoners, and for the exchange of wounded soldiers and of civilians unable to fight. The Cardinal conducts negotiations directly with the Emperor, from whom he recently obtained commutation of death sentences passed on several prominent Belgian Catholics.

Cardinals Gasquet and Billot are on their way here to represent Great Britain and France, while the arrival of Cardinal Begin, Archbishop of Quebec, is announced. The fact that ecclesiastics representing several of the warring nations will be at the Vatican at the same time has given rise to the belief that steps toward peace may be discussed.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Nov. 17, (via Paris.)—Dispatches from Berne state that the international congress to study and determine upon bases for a durable peace will be held, as originally announced, Dec. 14 at Berne.

Thirty delegates, representing belligerent and neutral States, have announced their intention to attend, while an American delegation is already on the way. The only country which thus far has not announced whether it will send a delegation is France, which will give a definite answer soon.

On the other hand, it is announced that the Geneva Red Cross Congress, which is to take place at Stockholm toward the end of November, is likely to be a failure, as the Quadruple Entente powers have declined to send delegates officially.

ROME, Nov. 16, (via London, Nov. 17.)—Proposals for a separate peace were made to Italy by Austria at the time the recent Italian offensive was begun, the Popolo Italia asserts.

The paper declares certain territorial concessions were offered to Italy, but that the Salandra Cabinet refused to consider them.

LANSING IN CONFERENCE WITH GERMAN ENVOY

Secretary and Bernstorff Believed to Have Discussed Lusitania Settlement.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, and Secretary Lansing conferred today for more than half an hour. After the conference both said they had agreed not to discuss the subjects of their conversation.

It was suggested in official circles that the conference probably had to do with the negotiations for settlement of the Lusitania case and that possibly statements, made by Dr. Goricar, the former Austro-Hungarian Consul, had been mentioned. Dr. Goricar recently charged that the Ambassador was interested with Austrian Consul General von Nuber, at New York, in munition strike propoganda.

The Ambassador said that he had presented no communication from the German Government to Secretary Lansing.

U-BOAT SPARES SHIP WITH GERMANS ABOARD

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Nov. 17.—Reports reached here that the Italian steamer Milano escaped destruction by a submarine in the Mediterranean because the steamer had Germans on board.

The Milano, a sister ship of the Firenge, recently torpedoed, was stopped by a submarine and, contrary to custom, the commander of the submarine inquired about the passengers. On being told that there were seventy Germans on board who had been expelled from Egypt, he allowed the steamer to proceed in safety.

HALDANE DECLARES HE HELPED SAVE PARIS

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Viscount Haldane, the ex-War Secretary, speaking at Hampstead tonight, declared that the Germans would have reached Paris, and perhaps Calais, had not the Government taken prompt action upon the warnings which he himself and others had given of the German intentions.

The British Government, he said, did everything possible to get aggressive ideas out of the heads of the other nations on the continent, but that did not prevent the Government from taking precautionary measures. Great Britain was not taken unawares, but was able to mobilize the army and navy at the first moment of the outbreak of the war.

Lord Haldane expressed the belief that there was not a single Government among the powers that had not been wholly surprised and taken aback by the magnitude and duration of the struggle which had since developed, and that nobody had been so much surprised as the German General Staff, which had "expected a walkover in about three months."

DEFECTIVE BABE DIES AS DECREED

DOCTORS HERE AROUSED

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—John Bollinger, the boy baby condemned as a hopeless defective and therefore not operated on, died early this evening in the German-American Hospital. The child was five days old. The mother was not informed tonight of the death of the child.

Its life, Dr. H. J. Haiselden, the attending physician, said, might have been saved by an operation, but this he did not feel justified in performing. The partial paralysis and the malformations, he said, were so great a bar to happiness or attainment that he did not feel justified in saving the baby from the death which nature ordained.

The public, aroused by the case, may force an investigation by the authorities. This may be brought through the instrumentality of the Coroner's office, the State Board of Health, the State Attorney's office, or the Department of Health of Chicago.

Coroner Hoffman said tonight:

"I do not believe there will be an inquest. The case is not different from many others. If the physician knows the cause of death, that covers the situation. But I shall talk with him in the morning. I believe a scientific body of physicians should pass on the case."

"God grant," prayed Miss Catherine Walsh of the Roman Catholic Church of St. Ann de Brighton, as she christened the baby John Bollinger tonight, just prior to its death, "that this child's life shall not have been lived in vain."

John Dill Robertson, Health Commissioner, said he would delay the issue of a burial certificate until all legal requirements in the case were met.

State's Attorney Hoyne said privately that he approved the physician's refusal to act in the case. Officially, since there appeared a basis for legal action, he would express no opinion.

Dr. George J. Lipschulch, a member of the Legislature, announced that he would appear before the State Board of Health and ask that Dr. Haiselden's license to practice medicine be taken from him.

Dr. Haiselden in discussing his action said tonight:

"I rest with my conscience. There was no chance that life would bring this child anything better than an animal existence and imbecility. I had no right to condemn it to that. The Power which sent it here doomed to die has taken it back. I believe I have done the child, its parents, who agree with me, and the race a favor in taking the course I did."

Official action will begin tomorrow. Dr. H. G. W. Reinhardt, Coroner's physician, will go to the hospital and perform a post-mortem examination. His report will be in Coroner Hoffman's hands when that official talks to Dr. Haiselden.

Guard at Child's Bedside.

A guard stood at the baby's side at the end, for the steady jangle of the telephone bell had brought threats as well as appeals to the surgeon. It was feared an attempt would be made to kidnap the child. Many persons had asked permission to take the baby to their homes and have it cared for by other surgeons. Women pleaded, and at least one vented her wrath in epithets of bitterest nature. One woman adviser bade Dr. Haiselden to stand firm. She said:

"Would that another physician had the courage to do as you are doing. My boy is deformed and imbecilic. I watch over him constantly and pray for him nightly, but what shall become of him when I am gone? He may fall into the hands of those who will allow him to do great harm to himself and society."

Prior to the death of the child a storm of protest arose not alone in Chicago, but in remote parts of the United States. Many persons, including clergy of all denominations, took the ground that the child's life should be saved at all hazards, although a vast majority of those protesting were unaware that the child lacked one ear, while the other was malformed, its stomach misplaced, and the brain subnormal.

Jane Addams's View.

"That baby's life should be protected as long as possible," said Miss Jane Addams. "Under no circumstances has any human being the right to pass judgment of death for unfitness on any other human being. Only one thing will justify such presumption, the course of the law in punishing a murderer."

Bishop Samuel Fallows said:

"I am divided between sentiment and science. All my Christianity repels the thought of the child's death. I don't want to be dogmatic. While the church says the baby should be saved at all hazards, the physicians think it should be allowed to die. Defectives have reached great heights. Note Helen Keller, the blind, deaf, and dumb girl; Pope, the poet, and many geniuses."

The Rev. Father Fitzsimmons, Secretary of the Roman Catholic Diocese, said:

Swedish War Craft Robs Germans of Prize; Drives Off Captors of British Steamer

COPENHAGEN, (via London,) Nov. 17.—The British steamer Thelma's departure from Trelleborg, Sweden, where she had been lying since the beginning of the war, was marked by an exciting naval adventure in which the vessel escaped capture by a German destroyer through the aid of the Swedish torpedo boat Pollux.

On Tuesday, when south of Landskrona, sixteen miles northeast of Copenhagen, the Thelma was pursued by the German destroyer W. 132 into Swedish territorial waters. The Germans were about to board the steamer, but the Pollux forced them to return to their boat, and, running between the two vessels, informed the Germans that every means would be employed to prevent the Thelma from being taken.

After an interval of silence, in which both warships cleared for action, the German destroyer steamed away.

Sees a German Fleet Pass.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Copenhagen dated today gives a report that a flotilla of twenty-five German torpedo boats and a big cruiser passed Helsingborg, on the southwest coast of Sweden, at 6 o'clock in the morning, proceeding at high speed northward.

Helsingborg is at the northern entrance to the sound which separates Sweden and Denmark. Vessels passing Helsingborg and proceeding north would enter the Cattegat, which leads by way of the Skagerack into the North Sea.

EUGENIA KELLY WED TO DANCER AL DAVIS

ALL OTHER PASTORS REFUSE

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 17. — Al. Davis and Eugenia Kelly were married in Elkton, Md., tonight about 8.30 o'clock by the Rev. Henry Carr, a Mormon, and the marrying parson of the Maryland Gretna Green.

The couple motored to the county seat, and in vain pleaded with the Rev. John McElomoyle of the Presbyterian Church and the Rev. George P. Jones of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The license was obtained late in the afternoon, and the couple searched the town for a clergyman to perform the ceremony.

Both the Rev. Mr. McElomoyle and the Rev. Mr. Jones refused, on the ground that to marry a divorced person was against their scruples. Every other clergyman in the romantic town refused to marry them on the same ground.

A policeman finally suggested the Rev. Henry Carr, who moved to Elkton since the Maryland law made that village the favorite spot for couples who find marriage difficult elsewhere. Mr. Carr is a clergyman without church or constituency. He did not hesitate but performed the ceremony at once, and the couple motored out of town toward Wilmington, whence they had gone to Elkton.

The bride wore a plain coat suit and carried a large bouquet of roses. Davis was dressed in a business suit and a light top coat.

During their stay in Elkton the couple attracted much attention and were recognized as runaways, but their story was not revealed. Even the parson who performed the ceremony was startled when he learned whom he was marrying.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis reached Wilmington tonight and registered at the Hotel du Pont. They appeared to be happy.

Miss Kelly hurried out of the apartment house to a taxicab, and refused to speak to several newspaper men who attempted to interview her. While her mother and John F. McIntyre, Mrs. Kelly's attorney, both denied any knowledge of the plans of Al Davis and Miss Kelly, it was expected that Davis would get a marriage license out of the State somewhere in spite of Mr. McIntyre's threats of contempt of court proceedings.

Melvin H. Dalberg, Davis's attorney, made this cryptic utterance when asked in regard to the possible marriage plans of his client and the heiress:

"You had better look out. There is going to be something doing."

Miss Kelly is the daughter of the late Edward J. Kelly and a sister of Mrs. Ralph Thomas, formerly the wife of Frank J. Gould. By her father's will Miss Kelly will receive, when she is 21, the income from $600,000. Meantime she has drawn an allowance from her mother out of $10,000 a year which Mrs. Kelly received from her husband's estate for the maintenance of her daughter. This allowance has varied from $75 a week to as little as $25, depending on Mrs. Kelly's idea of the amount of money it was proper for her daughter to spend after she learned of her friendship for Davis.

AIR RAID ON ROME BY AUSTRIAN AVIATOR?

ROME, Nov. 17.—The Stefani News Agency has sent out the following dispatch:

"This morning at 8 o'clock an Austrian aeroplane appeared over the city and dropped five bombs. Only one exploded, slightly wounding five persons. No material damage was done."

The text of the above dispatch might indicate that it has suffered at the hands of the censors, the name of the city being eliminated, or that, if a raid was made on Rome, merely the briefest details have been permitted to be cabled.

Rome is about 200 miles in a straight line from the Dalmatian coast, and its fringe of islands—the nearest territory from which an Austrian aeroplane could operate.

MAY SEND NUBER AND PAPEN AWAY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The Department of Justice having failed to find any provision in the Federal laws to end the activity of Alexander von Nuber, Austro-Hungarian Consul General in New York, in attempting to cripple munitions plants in this country by demanding that subjects of his Government quit working in them, the State Department, as a result of yesterday's Cabinet meeting, when the whole matter was discussed, has begun consideration of the evidence affecting the Consul General with a view to determining whether he has been guilty of a breach of his privileges as a representative of a foreign nation. Should Secretary Lansing come to the conclusion that von Nuber's usefulness in this country has ended his exequatur probably will be canceled or his Government requested to withdraw him as persona non grata to the Government of the United States.

It became known today in connection with the case of von Nuber that the State Department had resumed consideration of the part played by Captain Franz von Papen, Military Attaché of the German Embassy, in the plan of Dr. Dumba, the then Austro-Hungarian Ambassador, to tie up munitions factories making war materials for the Allies. Captain von Papen was mentioned by Dr. Dumba in the letter taken from James F. J. Archibald, Dr. Dumba's messenger, as having approved the plan to cripple or tie up munitions plants prepared by the editor of a Hungarian-language newspaper in this country.

Evidence accumulated today that the Government had determined to be less lenient with reference to the efforts of Teutonic agents to interfere with industries in this country. The Department of Justice, it was admitted officially, had sent to the State Department a mass of evidence concerning von Nuber and von Papen, and this was receiving consideration.

Among the papers taken from Archibald were two cipher letters from von Nuber to the Minister for Foreign Affairs at Vienna and a cipher letter from von Papen to the Chief of the Army General Staff at Berlin. At the time of the Dumba incident it was supposed that von Papen and von Nuber would be asked to withdraw from the United States, but the Government did not press the matter, although there was evidence that the German Government was willing to recall von Papen on leave of absence at the slightest hint from the State Department.

It has been believed that this Government did not press the cases of von Papen and von Nuber because it had no desire to increase the friction caused by its virtual demand that Dumba be withdrawn. But the recent disclosure of von Nuber's continued activity to cripple munitions factories has brought about the decision to reconsider his part in the Dumba affair, and this has led to another examination of the evidence concerning von Papen.

WANTS BIG GERMAN COLONIAL EMPIRE

Association in Berlin Passes Resolution Asking for More Territories.

From a Staff Correspondent.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 17, (via London.)—The Economic Committee of the German Colonial Association, at a recent meeting, passed a resolution in favor of a greater German colonial empire. The resolution reads, in part:

"It is certain that in the future German agriculture, as well as industry, will in increasing quantities need raw products from overseas, such as cotton, wool, coffee, cocoa, palm oil, guttapercha, rubber, &c. Permanently to secure the importation of these raw products, it is absolutely indispensable that a very considerable part of Germany's needs be covered by its own possessions oversea. The German colonies would also offer a guaranteed market for at least part of our export manufactures.

"As a basis for future colonial development we must make a starting point from what has so far been accomplished in thirty years of laborious kultur work. Therefore, in the first place, we must hold fast to those colonial possessions which we have had up to now.

"In the acquisition of new colonial territories organic connection with our old colonies is to be striven for, and, on the other hand, we must keep in mind that the new colonies must be suitable in regard to location, climate, and population for producing the most important raw materials, and at the same time serving as a market for our manufactured exports."

BALKAN CRISIS GRAVE FOR THE ALLIES; PRILEP TAKEN, MONASTIR'S FALL NEAR; MERCHANT TRAFFIC TO GREECE STOPPED

Britain to Hold Up Greek Trading Ships; France Stops Shipments of Goods to Greece

LONDON, Thursday, Nov. 18.—The British Government has issued an order that no Greek vessels except those loaded, or being loaded, shall be permitted to proceed to their destination.

PARIS, Nov. 17.—A Havas dispatch from Marseilles says that the Government has ordered the port authorities to accept no further shipments of merchandise destined for Greece.

The merchant fleet of Greece comprised last year 788 sailing vessels of 136,080 tons and 493 steamers of 860,438 tons. A large part of the traffic of the Eastern Mediterranean is carried in Greek vessels.

BRITISH HOSPITAL SHIP SUNK, 85 LOST

DOVER, Nov. 17.—The British hospital ship Anglia, with about 300 wounded men aboard, in addition to the crew, nurses, and attendants, bound from France for Dover, struck a mine in mid Channel today and sank in a very short time.

The collier Lusitania, which was near at the time of the accident, immediately went to the assistance of the Anglia, and her boats had just been lowered when she also struck a mine and foundered. All her crew were saved.

A patrol vessel succeeded in rescuing 300 of the Anglia's passengers and crew, including some nurses. A number of bodies were recovered.

German Mines Suspected.

LONDON, Thursday, Nov. 18. — The sinking of the Anglia, although the first case in the war of a hospital ship meeting disaster while carrying wounded, has caused great anxiety in the public mind, as it had been supposed that the English Channel was entirely free of danger from mines.

The newspapers indulge in much speculation, some of them offering the explanation that they must have been German mines.

"The War Office reports that the hospital ship Anglia struck a mine in the Channel today and sank. The total number on board was thirteen officers and 372 men of other ranks, of whom about 300 were saved by a patrol vessel.

"Another ship proceeding to the rescue was also sunk by another mine."

Another official communication says:

"King George was shocked to hear that the Anglia, which so recently conveyed him across the Channel, had been sunk. His Majesty is grieved at the loss incurred, but trusts that the survivors have not unduly suffered from their terrible exposure."

The Anglia had 200 cot cases aboard. When the rescuing vessels reached her she was badly down by the head, and her propellers were racing. Her stern was so high above the sea that one of the rescuing vessels was able to pass under her, and forty men dropped aboard.

Brave Deeds of Rescuers.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, Nov. 18.—The Daily Mail's Dover correspondent sends the following:

"Vivid narratives are told by the crew of the collier Lusitania which, in rendering aid to the Anglia, was herself sunk.

"After the explosion the bows of the hospital ship seemed to melt away until the sea lapped her rails and splashed upon the decks. Mortally wounded as she was, the Anglia surged forward in a vain attempt to reach shore before she sank. Her siren roused every vessel near, and from every quarter came boats to the rescue.

"Those watching from the deck of the Lusitania saw soldiers coming up from below and assembling on the deck, calmly waiting the order to pass into the boats. Every moment their footing became more precarious as gradually the Anglia settled by bows.

"But by now the rescuers were near. A vessel braving all danger from her sudden foundering, ran right under the stern and in a moment the crew were working like trojans to transfer the wounded to safety.

"The difficulties were terrible, every moment the stern of the Anglia rose higher and higher, and as it rose the vessel veered sideways as if about to turn turtle.

"Nothing daunted, the men of the Anglia, their officers, and the men of other ships kept at the work of rescue and rapidly, though even then all too slowly, the wounded were transferred to boats. Some of the wounded, unable to retain their precarious footing, slipped into the sea, from which they were snatched in the nick of time by sailors, many of whom plunged overboard, the better to help in the rescue.

ALLIED WAR BOARD HOLDS A COUNCIL

GEN. JOFFRE IS PRESENT

PARIS, Nov. 17.—The first meeting of the joint Anglo-French War Council was held here this afternoon. The British taking part were Premier Asquith, A. J. Balfour, First Lord of the Admiralty; David Lloyd George, Minister of Munitions, and Sir Edward Grey, Secretary for Foreign Affairs; while the French participants were Premier Briand, General Galliení, Minister of War; Admiral Lacaze, Minister of Marine, and General Joffre, the French Commander in Chief.

The four British Ministers, on arriving in Paris, were met by Premier Briand, who gave a luncheon and reception in their honor before the holding of the War Council.

This afternoon the British Ministers had a conference at the Admiralty. Tonight they dined with President Poincaré.

The precise object of their visit has not been disclosed. It is generally assumed, however, that the presence in France of the men who are charged with the responsibility of conducting the war for Great Britain marks an important development in the policy of coordination among the entente powers, as announced by Premier Asquith in his recent speech before the House of Commons.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The trip of Premier Asquith and his colleagues to Paris signalizes the inauguration of the meetings of the Allied War Council, of which the Premier spoke in the House of Commons on Nov. 10.

The fact that the Premier is accompanied by naval and military advisers is an indication that greater co-operation of the staffs of the two nations also is about to be instituted, as foreshadowed in the Premier's speech.

The developments in the Balkan Peninsula perhaps hastened the meeting of the Allied War Council, as the outcome of the present situation which, from the entente allies' point of view, is disquieting, may weigh heavily with the Greek Government in deciding on its final attitude.

The quartet of British statesmen forms the war council recently appointed by Premier Asquith, with Sir Edward Grey taking the place of Andrew Bonar Law, Secretary for the Colonies, on it. Mr. Law, with Reginald McKenna, Chancellor of the Exchequer, the fifth member of the War Council recently appointed by Premier Asquith's absence.

TO BAR YOUNG BRITONS FROM LEAVING COUNTRY

Coming Order in Council Will Require Special Permission Even for a Trip.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—An Order in Council will shortly be issued declaring that during the continuance of the war all British subjects of military age desiring to leave the United Kingdom, even on a trip, must obtain special permission.

This permission will not be given without good cause.

The forthcoming Order in Council is probably a result of the recent attempts of British subjects of military age to emigrate, fearing the threatened conscription measure.

Two hundred cabin passengers and 800 steerage passengers, all Irishmen of military age, took passage on the Cunard liner Saxonia, which arrived from Liverpool two days ago. They were prevented from sailing at the last minute because the firemen of the Saxonia threatened to strike if they were allowed to embark. The officials of the Cunard Line decided that they would not hereafter accept any more emigrant subjects of military age without Government authorization. Other British lines followed the example of the Cunard Company.

Bulgars Capture Prilep; Fall of Monastir Near

LONDON, Thursday, Nov. 18.—Confirmation has been received at Saloniki of the report that the Bulgarians have entered Prilep after a junction with the Bulgar Army coming from Tetovo, according to an Athens dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company.

The Serbians, forced back by the Bulgar advance, have retreated to Ochrida, about forty-five miles southwest of Prilep, on the Albanian frontier.

The population of Monastir is reported to be panicstricken, and preparations are being made to evacuate the town.

The French have occupied Kosturin.

A Reuter dispatch from Saloniki, dated yesterday, reports the Bulgars as being only two hours from Monastir and making a turning movement under German officers.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Nov. 17.—After a long silence the news from Rumania is most disquieting from the point of view of the Quadruple Entente. A general requisition by the Government of supplies, from clothes to machines for making munitions, indicates that the country will not be neutral for long and it is believed here that the Bucharest Cabinet will declare for the Central Empires.

Russia has an army ready for this move, but it will certainly make the final victory of the Entente more difficult.

The papers here state openly that Italy will help in the Balkan enterprise.

LONDON, Thursday, Nov. 18.—The military as well as the diplomatic situation of the Allies in the Balkans is disquieting, if not critical—a fact which is believed to have led to the visit of the British Prime Minister, Mr. Asquith, David Lloyd George, and A. J. Balfour to Paris for a conference with the French Cabinet and General Joffre, the French Commander in Chief.

The main Serbian army, under General Putnik, which is operating in the north, is now encompassed on every side but one, and, being cut off from the south by the Bulgarian advance beyond Tetovo, must depend upon the rough roads through Montenegro and Albania for any supplies from the sea.

In the south the Serbian position is almost as bad. The success of the Bulgarians' flanking attack on Babuna Pass and their advance from Veles have prevented the hoped-for junction of the Serbian and French forces. This leaves the Serbians only two lines of retreat, one into Albania, where they may be harassed by unfriendly tribes, and the other across the Greek border, where they are in danger of being disarmed and interned. It is to prevent the latter eventuality that the Entente Powers are putting forth every effort, and unquestionably this matter has been discussed in Paris by the British and French Ministers.

Denys Cochin, member of the French Cabinet, who met with an enthusiastic reception at Athens from the municipal authorities and the people, is expected to express very firmly the French view of what is considered the unsatisfactory reply of Greece to the Entente Powers' request for the safe conduct of both Serbian and allied forces should they be compelled to retire into Greece.

Lord Kitchener, the British War Secretary, who, it had been stated, was to back M. Cochin, is now reported in Gallipoli, although, according to rumor, King Constantine expressed a wish to see him.

Specific Demands on Greece.

Like Italy and France, England now demands that Greece shall either join the Allies or translate her benevolent neutrality toward the Entente into a clear declaration that she will attempt to disarm neither the Serbians nor the Allies should they be forced back over her frontier, and that she will afford further facilities for the landing and transport of allied troops.

A delayed dispatch from Saloniki says that in addition to the Bulgarian column which turned the Serbian position at Babuna Pass, a second Bulgar force is advancing on Kostovo from Kalkendelen.

The Bulgarians, the despatch also says, are reported to be withdrawing from the Cerna River section, which is held by the French. The French report many desertions from the Bulgar army.

A Paris Havas News Agency telegram from Saloniki says:

"The families of the Consuls of the different powers and the Serbian authorities have arrived here (Saloniki) from Monastir, where great anxiety is being manifested again. It is said British reinforcements are about to start for Monastir.

Official Reports of Operations.

That the advance of the Teutons continues practically unchecked is indicated by the following official bulletin issued at Berlin yesterday:

The pursuit in the mountains made further satisfactory progress. The Serbians were unable to delay our advance to any appreciable extent. More than 2,000 prisoners, one machine gun, and one cannon remained in our hands.

The Austrians claim further progress against the Montenegrins in the Vienna War Office bulletin yesterday, which says:

The Austro-Hungarian troops fighting on the Sanjak border have driven back the last Montenegrin rearguards across the Lim River.

Pursuit of the Serbians continues everywhere. The Austro-Hungarian column advancing against Sienica has ejected the enemy from stubbornly defended mountain positions north of Javor.

The German troops of General Hoevess's army yesterday were a half day's march from Raska. In Kursumlja street fighting has occurred.

On the other hand, an official Montenegrin report, received in Paris yesterday, says:

The enemy continued to make violent attacks on all fronts on Nov. 15. He was repulsed, sustaining heavy losses. A Montenegrin battalion of the Sanjak Army captured an entire company of Austrian infantry, including the officers.

Following is the French official report of the operations in the South:

On Nov. 15 the Bulgarians abandoned their attacks against our front on the left bank of the Cerna, to the west of Krivolak. They withdrew on the Archangel Heights to the north of the Village of Cicevo, leaving behind many bodies. After three days' fighting the Bulgarians have lost 4,000 men, our losses were slight.

To the north of Rabrovo we bombarded an enemy convoy which was proceeding in the direction of the Bulgarian town of Strumitza.

SAYS RUMANIA IS NEAR WAR.

Former Premier Carp Predicts She Will Join Germans in December.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—A delayed dispatch from Bucharest, dated Nov. 12, says former Premier Carp is credited by the newspaper Adeverul with the statement that Rumania will take up arms on the side of Germany in December.

The prediction is made by M. Carp that as soon as established communications make it possible Germany will make new offers to Rumania in the form of an ultimatum requiring a reply within forty-eight hours.

BALKAN PERIL ACUTE, FRENCH OBSERVER SAYS

PARIS, Nov. 17.—"Our expedition in the Balkans is reaching a critical stage," telegraphs the correspondent at Saloniki, Greece, of The Journal, under date of Sunday. He adds:

"Notwithstanding appeals by competent personalities our reinforcements are not anything like the number required. Our enemies have decided to nip in the bud at any cost our offensive in the east and are prepared to resort to any means to obtain the necessary assistance. I hope that this formula is well understood.

"Serbian resistance is weakening daily. The defenders of Babuna Pass will soon be surrounded and the road to Prilep and Monastir will then be thrown wide open to the Bulgarians.

"The host of Austro-Germans hurrying southward are sending detachments ahead by forced marches on all available routes.

"Do not expect to find a second Belgium. Greece will not hesitate to permit passage by the enemy through her territory as she now permits ours. We must defend ourselves alone and unaided against the triple attack of the Germans, Bulgarians, and Turks. The enemy's plan is being carried out and may be realized rapidly. The German fleet of submarines in the Mediterranean has just been quadrupled.

"I advance nothing whereof I am not absolutely sure. We must be prepared for any news, even the most unexpected and even that which seems the craziest. We must have reinforcements in large numbers at once or re-embark while there is yet time."

LEAGUE OF MONARCHS FORMED BEFORE WAR

Dr. Dillon Says Kaiser's Plans Were Modified Through Veto of Influential Subjects.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

"The Balkan Peninsula will remain the centre of political interest until the danger of further treachery from neutral States there has been definitely dispelled. I write with first-hand knowledge of facts, not all of which are yet realized, or even known. For example, the circumstance is not yet apprehended nor generally believed that a league of monarchs, prearranged by the Kaiser, was completed in principle before the war broke out, and that the original conception was more comprehensive than the final achievement.

"This falling off between intention and realization was due in great part not to resistance on the part of the monarchs tempted, but solely to the veto of certain of their influential subjects.

"The promptitude and thoroughness of Germany forestalled the unsuspecting Entente powers, formed a syndicate of Kings, and began by obtaining assurances that none would harm while some would help her. The only way in which the Entente could at any time have thwarted the Teuton schemes was by deploying greater military and naval forces than theirs. Today more peremptorily than ever before is the adoption of this method postulated by events.

"The assurances of benevolent neutrality lavished by Skouloudis are less solemn and less binding than the formal treaty obligations assumed by all Greece toward Serbia. They are far less solid than the promises made by Venizelos, who was backed by King, Cabinet, Parliament and nation at the time, and is now being systematically disavowed. How could the Entente States accept assurances, however solemn, of any minister or cabinet appointed by the King for the special purposes of carrying out Germany's designs against themselves?

"Ninety Venizelist deputies under 44 years of age have become liable to military service since the dissolution of the Chamber. They petitioned the War Minister to grant them one month's leave of absence for electoral purposes and the War Minister, who is Constantine's right hand man, has refused the request, for the King is determined at all costs to create a Germanophile parliament, hostile to the Entente powers.

"Yet he expects these powers to rely upon the oral promise of a Provisional Minister that the Allies need apprehend no stab in the back. Venizelos himself is alleged to have replied two days ago to a number of merchants at Athens and the Piraeus who exhorted him to allow his party to take an active hand in the elections:

"'I am of the opinion that abstention is advisable under the prevailing circumstances, for even if the Liberals won and returned to Parliament in a majority they would still find it impossible to realize their program.'

"The negotiations with the ministers of the day or the hour are of no consequence. Constantine is Greece, and his brother-in-law is Greece's ruler. Effective constraint in Greece's interest and our own is the only method that can now be employed with the hope of success."

COERCION OF GREECE URGED IN LONDON

Daily Chronicle Says Constantine Has Violated Treaties by Making Himself Dictator.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, Nov. 18.—The Daily Chronicle in an editorial, commenting on the visit of the British Ministers to Paris says:

"We can but hope it marks a new and valuable stage along the path of Anglo-French co-operation. It is not necessary to suppose that any new issue has arisen necessitating the special conference. At the same time, the moment is one of pressing problems, and not the least in regard to the attitude of Greece.

"The continued Bulgar advances toward Monastir threaten to throw portions of the Serbian army across the Greek frontier, and at least one of the Greek Ministers has publicly declared that, in that event they will be interned. Though it is said the action taken against Serbian troops need not imply action against the Anglo-French troops, the attempt to distinguish is puerile, in view of their common campaign.

"If Greece were an ordinary neutral country, the Allies would have no footing for complaint, but she is not. In the first place, she is bound to Serbia by the Serbo-Greek treaty. Serbia's other allies, prejudiced though they are by Greece's breach of the treaty, have not felt it right or practicable to coerce her into taking positive action to fulfill it, but they might very well coerce her from taking positive action in breach of it, such as the internment of Serbian troops would be.

"In the second place, the allied troops who have gone to Saloniki were sent there originally by the invitation of Venizelos. His invitation binds his King and his country, and it is not for either of them to turn around now and act as if it never had been given.

"In the third place we, ourselves, together with France and Russia, have a treaty with Greece whereby she is pledged to maintain a constitutional Government. We gave value for her pledge; we ceded the Ionian Islands. It is ridiculous to say, then, that we have no footing for complaint if King Constantine now abrogates the constitutional Government, as indeed he already has done, and establish a Crown dictatorship for the direct profit of our enemies.

"How the British Government regards the matter is sufficiently shown by our action in respect to Greek steamers in British ports. Obviously we cannot stand by till Greece has stocked herself with overseas requisites and then see her join the Central Powers."

SERB OFFICERS AT DURAZZO.

Army Expected to Retreat to the Albanian Port.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Nov. 17, (Dispatch to The London Daily News.)—Disquieting news comes from Albania, where exaggerated reports of Bulgarian victories in Serbia are impressing the inhabitants to such an extent that they are refusing Serbian paper money, which they fear will soon become worthless.

The Serbians have been compelled to send troops from Tirana and Elbassan to reinforce the garrisons of the villages around Monastir, where the appearance of Bulgarian comitadjis is feared. The Serbians are unable to rely on the loyalty of the inhabitants of Dibra, who are mostly Bulgarians and Moslems.

ROME, Nov. 15, (via Paris, Nov. 17,) (Delayed in Transmission.)—Italy, according to a statement obtained from a reliable source, will in the end join the Entente Allies at Saloniki. The supposed indiscretions concerning an Italian expedition to Albania, it is said, are purposely being allowed to circulate in order to divert attention from Italy's real object.

Preparations are in progress to send troops to Saloniki, and it is said now that the Italian General Staff is only waiting for an opportune moment to detach the necessary force. These troops, it is understood, will become available now that the Italians have obtained control of the plateau dominating Gorizia and as the result of the advance through the Carso region and changed conditions due to the Winter campaign.

ASKS US TO PROTECT WOMEN.

Britain Anxious About Relief Missions in Serbia.

LONDON, Thursday, Nov. 18. — The British Foreign Office is asking the State Department at Washington to take diplomatic steps to assure protection for the women connected with the relief missions in Serbia.

Making an announcement to this effect in the House of Commons yesterday, Lord Robert Cecil, Parliamentary Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, said, from the information already received through Walter Hines Page, the American Ambassador, there seemed to be no reason to suppose that the women were likely to be badly treated by the Bulgarians.

The Times correspondent at Turnu Severin, on the Danube in Western Rumania, reports that 8,000 Serbian refugees are in that neighborhood and that all the river villages are crowded with fugitives from villages which the Austro-Hungarian Armies have partly destroyed.

The correspondent adds that the American Minister at Bucharest proposed to guarantee their security on the receipt of written authorization from his Austrian and German colleagues, but that this was refused.

SEES ALLIES' FAILURE NEAR.

Moraht Expects Decision in Balkan War Within Two Weeks.

From a Staff Correspondent.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 17. — Discussing the Entente's efforts to go to the assistance of the Serbians, Major Moraht, in the Tageblatt, writes:

"Going deeper into the question of the so-called great expeditions in prospect in the last phases of the Balkan war, the military critic must invariably reach the conclusion that never before has any overseas expedition operating from an insecure base taken upon itself such risks as this expedition.

"The bringing up of French and English troops continues with unusual slowness, because Saloniki is an improvised base, and unity of action has not yet been achieved between the French and English higher commands. How unfavorable will be the position of the slowly growing 'salvation army' within two weeks one can easily imagine by merely answering the question, How will the Bulgarian forces in Macedonia have regrouped themselves within this space of time, in accordance with their present numerical superiority?

"None need doubt that the Bulgarian highest leadership will find a right use for the Bulgarian armies freed in the main Serbian theatre of war, and which can be used elsewhere, to bring about a decision, and that this will occur where Bulgaria's own paramount interests will exert the greatest attraction for these armies.

"Besides, within the time named much ought to have changed in the main Serbian theatre of war, and the promoters of the relief expedition can hardly deceive themselves into believing that the central powers, after wholly or partly surrounding the Serbs, will look on further events with folded hands.

"In discussing the Balkan problem of the next few days one cannot entirely overlook figures. England and France during the critical period, which alone matters, can march on the Balkans with about 150,000 troops, mostly colonials. We will grant them that about 100,000 Serbians will be able to take a direct or indirect part in the fighting. England could bring only weak forces from Egypt, for as soon as she noticeably weakens the Suez Canal front she would be confronted by the Turkish danger on Sinai. No troops are available from Gallipoli. If they were brought to Saloniki the Turks would certainly not content themselves with looking on. What can these 300,000 men accomplish against the forces of the central powers, Bulgaria, and Turkey?

"There remains only Italy. In view of the approaching Winter, which might encourage her enemies to certain undertakings, Cadorna will not consent to weaken his front. I therefore estimate Italy's possible participation at no higher than 150,000 men, increasing the enemy's Balkan army to 450,000. Even this does not begin to approach the strength of the central powers and their allies, who have the advantage of a more favorable base of operations. Besides, two of our friends would fight in their own lands."

TROUBLE IN LANDING ALLIES.

Dr. H. F. Berger Tells of Conditions When He Left Saloniki.

Among those arriving yesterday on the Duca degli Abruzzi from Naples were Dr. Henry F. Berger and his wife of Marlboro, Mass., who had had been with the Red Cross Relief Corps in Serbia.

Dr. Berger said that when he reached Saloniki, Greece, on Oct. 20 he was informed that 60,000 French troops had been landed. The disembarkation of 16,000 British troops began on Oct. 20, and was interrupted after 7,000 had left the transports on tenders for the shore, owing to some difficulty with the Greek officials at the port.

GREEKS CHEER FOR FRANCE.

PARIS, Nov. 17.—The arrival of Denys Cochin, the French Cabinet Minister, last evening in Athens on a special mission gave rise to an enthusiastic demonstration of sympathy for France that lasted from 11 o'clock at night to an early hour this morning, according to a Havas dispatch from Athens.

A representative of Premier Skouloudis and one of the Mayor of Athens were at the station with the French Minister and the members of the legation to meet M. Cochin, the dispatch adds, while an immense throng waited outside and lined the streets all along the route to the hotel.

Throughout his progress to his stopping place the French Cabinet Minister was the object of a great ovation, and after the demonstration incident to the Minister's passage a column of citizens that had been spontaneously formed marched to the hotel, and greeted M. Cochin with the wildest cheering when he showed himself on the balcony.

The crowd afterward marched to the French Legation singing "The Marseillaise," while nearly all night the streets were animated by enthusiastic crowds acclaiming France.

EXPECT REBEL TURK TO AID THE ALLIES

PARIS, Nov. 17.—The Athens Messager is quoted in a Havas dispatch from the Greek capital as saying that there is plausibility in the report that Djemal Pasha, Turkish Minister of Marine, will co-operate with the Entente Allies in the rebellion he has organized against the Turkish Government, according to Constantinople advices, in Syria and Palestine.

Djemal Pasha has always been friendly to the French, the newspaper states.

Twelve Arabs Hanged in Beirut.

Shouting defiance to the Turkish Government and hurrahing for the independence of Arabia, a young lawyer, graduated at Paris, named Mohammed el Mehmecani, together with eleven other Arabs, was executed at Beirut, in Syria, according to a report in a recent issue of Il Giornale Italiano. Young Mohammed was called the soul of the liberal Moslem movement in Arabia, which looks to a conciliation between Christians and Mussulmans and tends toward a renaissance of Arab culture. This, together with the probability of being regarded as a partisan of the Allies in the war, was enough to cause his trial and sentence to death.

"In the presence of God and men, I declare that these respectable citizens who are about to be executed are innocent. I alone am guilty, if it is a crime to love liberty and to long for the independence of your country. Far from feeling repentent, I am happy to be the first victim of this movement. Our Arab conscience, remembering that we are descendants of one of the greatest civilizations of the world, rebels at the sight of the decadence into which we have fallen because of being ruled by these hordes of barbarians. We have had enough of the humiliating Turkish yoke."

At this point the executioner tried to stop the speech by clapping a hand over the youth's mouth, but Mohammed managed to shout:

"They are assassinating us in vain. The idea we support will continue to live, and liberty will come! Down with the Turks! Long live the Arabs! Hurrah for France, that loves the Arabs!"

He tried to say more, but the hangman slipped the cord around his neck and kicked away the bench upon which he stood.

Then came the turn of the other eleven, all of whom died with calm stoicism, except one sheik, who cried, "Hurrah for France! Down with Turkey!"

When the last one had perished the crowd slowly dispersed and twelve bodies swung in the square, which the Young Turks had named "Liberty."

Turks Ready to Welcome Germans.

PARIS, Nov. 17.—According to Constantinople advices forwarded by the correspondent of the Havas News Agency in Athens, preparations are being made in the Turkish capital to receive the Germans. Numerous houses are said to have been requisitioned as well as the Pere Palace Hotel, which is to be occupied by the General Staff.

Ex-Greek Minister to Germany.

ROME, Nov. 17.—It is announced by the newspapers that M. Stratos, former Greek Minister of Marine, is on his way to Switzerland, whence he will go to Germany, supposedly on a special mission.

Piemonte May Have Hit Submarine

ROME, Nov. 17.—The Italian cruiser Piemonte fired several shells at a submarine, which came out to attack her while she was bombarding Dedeaghatch last Friday, says a Saloniki despatch to the Messaggero. It is believed the submarine was hit.

Serbia Decorates Lady Paget.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The King has granted to Lady Paget permission to wear the Grand Cordon of the Order of St. Sava, conferred upon her by the King of Serbia in recognition of valuable services rendered by her in the relief of sick and wounded Serbians.

CAPT. TURNER ON FREIGHTER

Lusitania's Master Now Assigned to Slowest of Cunarders.

Captain W. T. Turner, who commanded the Cunarder Lusitania when she was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine on May 7, arrived in Quebec yesterday in charge of the steamship Ultonia. The Ultonia is a freighter of 1,042 gross tonnage, is the slowest vessel in the Cunard service in the Atlantic trade, and has the record of taking twenty-three days from Gibraltar to New York. During the war the Ultonia has been chartered by the Admiralty with the Pannonia for taking horses from United States ports to Ste. Nazaire.

Captain Turner has been in Liverpool since the loss of the Lusitania, acting as Relief Captain for the Cunard vessels while they were at anchor in the River Mersey. Captain Chester of the Ultonia was taken ill when the steamer arrived home in October, and Captain Turner had to take her out to Quebec for the Admiralty in his place.

NEW NOTE FOR ENGLAND.

United States to Take Up Contraband in Next Communication.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—A memorandum which will form the basis of a note to Great Britain regarding contraband is now in course of preparation at the State Department.

It has not been definitely decided what attitude the United States will take in regard to Great Britain's action in placing on the contraband list cotton and other products never before so treated. However, this decision will be reached within the next few days, and soon thereafter the first draft of the note will be made. Several drafts may be required before the communication is ready for transmission.

AUSTRIA REAFFIRMS WARNING TO ANCONA

INSISTS THAT STEAMER FLED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Secretary Lansing announced today that the official text of the Austrian version of the sinking of the Italian liner Ancona by an Austrian submarine had been received by cable from Ambassador Penfield at Vienna. The Ambassador explained that this version of the affair had been handed to him by the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Office.

The statement is generally similar to the one received on Sunday from the Austrian Admiralty by the Austro-Hungarian Embassy here, but differed slightly in translation, and contained a phrase not previously made public, to the effect that the story that the submarine fired upon loaded boats and people in the water is a "malicious fabrication for the reason that ammunition was much too valuable to the submarine, if for no other."

The statement received today is not a reply to the instructions which Secretary Lansing cabled to Ambassador Penfield yesterday, for that message has not had time to reach its destination. It was explained at the State Department today that it required not less than two days for cipher messages to pass between Washington and Vienna, and that it was not believed that Secretary Lansing's message would reach Vienna before tomorrow at the earliest. No reply to the message is expected before next Monday. Ambassador Penfield will ask for the evidence upon which the Austrian Government bases the statements contained in its official version of the Ancona incident. This version has now reached the State Department through two channels; first, through the medium of the Austro-Hungarian Embassy in Washington, and, again through the instrumentality of the Austrian Foreign Office statement which Ambassador Penfield transmitted.

Since, in both these versions, the Austrian Government accepts full responsibility for the attack on the Ancona, the American Government has no hesitancy in looking to that Government rather than to Berlin for an explanation of the attack. The Austrian Government's versions cannot be accepted by the American Government as evidence. On the contrary, it has been accepted merely as a statement that is unsupported by evidence.

The inquiries to be made of the Vienna Government by Ambassador Penfield will be of such a character as to enable Austria to submit not only its evidence, such as the report of the commander of the submarine that made the attack, but also to indicate its attitude toward unarmed merchant ships in future.

Submarine fired warning shot across bow of steamer, whereupon latter fled at full speed. She thus carried out instructions officially given all Italian steamers at beginning of war to attempt escape upon being held up by submarines or to ram, according to position of latter.

Escaping steamer pursued and fired upon by submarine, but did not stop until receiving several hits. Forty-five minutes given passengers and crew to leave ship, on which greatest panic reigned. Only a portion of boats lowered, which were occupied by members of the ship's crew, who pulled hurriedly away. Great portion of boats, which would apparently have sufficed for rescue of all hands, not occupied.

After about fifty minutes submarine submerged on account rapidly approaching vessel, torpedoed Ancona, which did not sink until further lapse of forty-five minutes. If many passengers lost lives, blame rests entirely with crew because, instead of stopping upon warning shots, fled, and compelled submarine to fire, and because crew endeavored to save only themselves and not passengers, for which there was ample time and means.

Story that submarine fired upon loaded boats and people in water is a malicious fabrication, for reason ammunition much too valuable for submarine if for no other. No further shot fired after vessel stopped.

HEARD THE ANCONA'S CALL.

But the Abruzzi Could Not Get Her Name Nor Her Position.

The officers of the Italian liner Duca Degli Abruzzi, which arrived yesterday from Genoa, said they left Naples two days ahead of the Ancona, and did not see any submarines. On the afternoon of Nov. 5 the operator heard the S O S call for help, but could not get the name of the vessel nor her position. Next morning the liner passed a quantity of wreckage and a smashed lifeboat on which were letters indicating that it had belonged to a British freighter.

On Nov. 7 the wireless operator picked up a message telling of the sinking of the Ancona. Captain Bottone said he had all his lifeboats swung out ready for lowering from the time he left Naples until he got clear of Gibraltar.

NEW MEDITERRANEAN LOSSES.

Seamen Tell of Three Vessels Being Sunk and Not Reported.

GALVESTON, Nov. 17.—Officers of the Italian steamship San Giovanni, which arrived here today from Genoa, report the sinking of three Italian steamers in the Mediterranean Sea, which have not been mentioned in official dispatches. The steamers were the Cirene, Scrivia, and Gani. All were victims of hostile submarines, the officers report.

The Cirene was a vessel of 3,236 tons and the Scrivia 2,448 tons. Available records do not show the Gani, which is said to have been a coasting ship.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The Morning Post's Rome correspondent says: "Information reaches me from a trustworthy source that during the last few days four Italian steamers have been sunk by German submarines besides the Ancona."

The only Italian ships reported sunk since the Ancona were the Bosnia and the Firenze.

NAMES OF 139 PERSONS LOST ON THE ANCONA

New List Includes Salvatore Torrisi Instead of Mrs. Torrisi Among Missing Americans.

The agents of the Society Italia di Navigazione a Vapore at 1 State Street received the first cable yesterday from the head office in Naples giving the names of 103 saved and 139 missing passengers of the steamer Ancona.

The list of missing contained the names of nine American citizens. These were named in a cable from Rome to the State Department as Alexander Patativo, his wife and four children; Mrs. Francesco M. Lamura, Pasquale Laurino, and Mrs. Giuseppe Torrisi. The list cabled to the agents does not contain the name of Mrs. Torrisi among the missing, but has the name of Salvatore Torrisi, which is a man's name. The two Americans saved are Dr. Cecile L. Grell and Giuseppe Toniol. The missing are:

FIRENZE SUNK BY GERMANS.

Submarine's Crew Said to Have Worn Kaiser's Uniform.

PARIS, Nov. 17.—Investigation by the Italian Government has disclosed that the submarine which torpedoed the steamer Firenze was a German, says the Rome correspondent of the Journal. Passengers and crew of the steamer, all of whom were saved, are said to agree that the sailors aboard the submarine wore German uniforms and also that the German colors were hoisted first, although the Austrian flag was substituted later.

A Swiss passenger named Konel, who was aboard the Firenze, says the lifeboat in which he was making for shore sighted a submarine heading for a Greek steamer which was awaiting it well out at sea.

If the Firenze, an Italian steamer, was sunk by a German submarine, it might be regarded by Italy as an act of war. There has been no declaration of hostilities between Italy and Germany.

BRITISH STEAMER IS SUNK.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The British steamer Treneglos has been sunk.

The Treneglos was a vessel of 3,880 tons and was owned by the Hain Steamship Company of St. Ives, England. She was built in 1906.

$750,000 A YEAR SPENT ON RAIDERS

CASE TO BE CALLED MONDAY

Will Be Followed by That of A. D. Meloy, Accused of Complicity in Passport Frauds.

When Karl Buenz, former German Consul General at New York, and now a Director of the Hamburg-American Line, is put on trial charged with violating American neutrality by sending out supply ships to replenish the bunkers and larders of German warships and raiders, which operated in the Atlantic during the first few months of the war, the Government expects to prove that the chartering of the fleet of supply ships and the loading of them with coal and provisions cost the German Government about $750,000. Furthermore, the Government expects to prove that the operation of these supply ships was directed to a great extent by a high official of the German Government, who was then and is still in the United States.

Mr. Buenz's case will be called in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York next Monday morning. The other defendants, who are George Koetter, Adolph Hachmiester, Felix Sessner, and Walter Poppenhouse, all Hamburg-American employes, will be placed on trial as soon as the Buenz case is finished. The offense alleged in each case is the same. The Government will contend that the ships employed in replenishing the bunkers and larders of the German warships became, as a result of that employment, German naval auxiliaries.

United States District Attorney Marshall will prosecute the cases and will be assisted by Assistant District Attorney Roger B. Wood. William Rand will be chief counsel for Mr. Buenz, and may be assisted by his law partner, William Travers Jerome. The case is expected to last about one week.

There were no new developments in the munition ship conspiracy yesterday. Paul Daeche, one of the six defendants in this case, was arraigned in the United States Commissioner's office in Jersey City during the afternoon. Proof was given of his indictment here and his bail was continued at $25,000. He is the only one of the prisoners still in the jurisdiction of the New Jersey authorities. A writ of removal to the jurisdiction of the Southern District of New York will be applied for today or tomorrow. Objections to the issuance of the writ were overruled by Commissioner Carpenter.

Of the others accused Robert Fay, Walter Scholz, and Englebert Bronkhorst are in the Tombs in default of $25,000 bail. Max Breitung and Dr. Herbert Kienzle, also defendants, furnished bail and are at liberty.

A. Bruce Bielaski, Chief of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, returned to Washington last night. He came to New York Tuesday night supposedly for the purpose of conferring with Dr. Joseph Goricar, the former Austro-Hungarian Consular official, who charged that there were 3,000 Teutonic spies in the United States and that these spies were directed by diplomatic and Consular officials of the Central Powers. Mr. Bielaski refused to say whether or not he saw Dr. Goricar.

As soon as the Hamburg-American case is finished the Government intends to proceed with the trial of Andrew D. Meloy, charged with complicity in the effort to get for Franz Rintelen, a German agent, an American passport in the name of Edward V. Gates. Rintelen is now in a detention camp in England, having been taken off a Holland-America liner, when she touched at Falmouth.

MAY INVOKE ANTI-TRUST ACT.

Officials Think Fay Plotters Can Be Held Under That Law.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—An effort may be made in the near future by the Department of Justice to secure indictments against Robert Fay and others connected with the alleged plot in New York to blow up munition ships, under the criminal section of the Sherman Anti-Trust act.

The belief that indictments under this statute might be successfully prosecuted was said today to be based on the interpretation of the Sherman law by the Supreme Court in the Danbury hatters' case. The ordinary interpretation of lawyers before that decision was that the act was designed only to prevent combinations which restained trade among its members or others in similar lines of business. The Supreme Court in the Danbury hatters' case, however, held that there could be a restraint of trade by an outside agency.

Department of Justice officials always have expressed doubt of the possibility of convicting Fay and his associates under the so-called piracy sections of the criminal code, under which they recently were indicted.

TURKEY IS OFFERING ADVANTAGES TO JEWS

Is Trying to Attract Those She Lost in the Ceded Balkan Territory.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—In an effort to draw within their borders Jews now in territory ceded away by the Ottoman Empire as a result of the last Balkan war, the Turks have decided to grant to them the same benefits and exemptions as heretofore have been accorded only to Mohammedans. An announcement to this effect was made here today by the Turkish Embassy.

"The advantages and exemptions," says the announcement, "consist of exceptional facilities for having access into Ottoman soil, the acquisition of Ottoman nationality, and immunity, for a certain period, from payment of taxes and military service.

"During the last century the Ottoman Government has accorded these facilities exclusively to Mohammedan immigrants coming to Turkey from Russia, Bulgaria, Greece, Serbia, and Bosnia. This is the first time that these exemptions have been granted to immigrants professing a religion other than the Mohammedan."

board, but all the while the nurses worked with splendid devotion with the crew to transfer their patients to the boats.

"Soon the Anglia had settled so far by the head that one of her propellers was clear of the water. The other, still revolving, gave a circular motion to the doomed vessel, adding ten-fold to the difficulties of the rescuers. But nothing discouraged them and the sailors kept on their hopes running high that all would be saved.

"The end came with dramatic suddenness. With wounded, nurses, doctors, and sailors still clinging to the stern, the Anglia seemed for one brief second to stand on her bows, and then she disappeared.

"But even now the Red Cross on her mainmast flaunts six feet clear above the troubled waters of the Channel, marking the spot where many brave men and women, too, it is feared, sleep in their last sleep."

Discussing the loss of the Anglia, The Daily Mail says:

"The mine may have been laid by one of the German submarines or by some suborned neutral vessel.

"It was no doubt to prepare the world for such an episode that last Friday the German wireless published a report that British hospital ships were being used for the conveyance of troops and munitions of war. The tale was entirely false, but the circulation of such a falsehood usually indicates a German intention to attempt a new variety of foul play. It would not be the first time that such an outrage had been committed. So far back as February a German submarine deliberately fired a torpedo at the British hospital ship Asturias."

The Anglia was a merchantman which was taken over by the British Admiralty after the opening of the war and refitted as a hospital ship. She was commissioned in August of last year.

There are four British steamships named Anglia. The one converted into a hospital ship probably is the former London & Northwestern Railway Company steamer, of 1,862 tons gross. She is 329 feet long and was built in 1900 at Dumbarton. The other three steamships are small vessels.

At the time she was commissioned the Anglia was in charge of Commander Oscar V. de Satge, retired.

The theory that the hospital ship Anglia was sunk by a German mine, intentionally planted in the cross-Channel track, is likely to be advanced by some naval experts.

The newest and largest German submarines beyond Class U-43 are described by those who have had the misfortune to encounter them as having "two conning towers, four disappearing guns, a speed of eighteen knots on the surface, and a length of 300 feet," and some authorities have asserted that these giant boats had submarine depots of supplies and appliances for planting mines.

The most positive expression of the mine theory is to be found in an article by the British naval expert, Archibald Hurd, in The London Daily Telegraph of Oct. 13. He wrote:

"Now the Germans have inaugurated a fresh policy, with a new type of submarine. It is built to lay mines and not apparently to discharge torpedoes. Ships of this class are now busily engaged in trying to destroy our own and neutral ships, for there can be no discrimination.

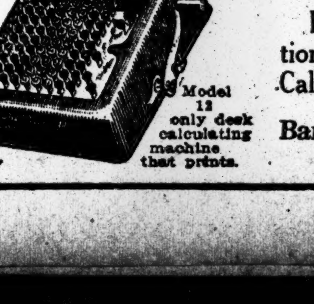

"The policy of mine-laying in the pathways of peaceful ships is peculiarly despicable. The mine-laying submarine creeps along on or under the water as circumstances suggest. Her progress at night in particular cannot be easily detected. Before the war Simon Lake, the American builder of submarines, invented a vessel of the underwater type which could lay these deadly explosive agents. The Germans have merely proved that the method is practicable."

GERMANS LOSE DVINSK TRENCHES

STYR FIGHTING CONTINUES

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The Germans persist in their attempts to force a crossing of the Dvina below Dvinsk, but without success. To the west of the city they have had to abandon some of their trenches. The fighting around Czartorysk, on the Styr, continues, as does that on the rest of the southern front and in Galicia.

West of Dvinsk, in the Lake Sventen district, the Germans were driven from some of their trenches and compelled to fall back. In the abandoned trenches we found rifles, stores and a large quantity of cartridges.

A Zeppelin flew over the Dvinsk district Monday night and dropped bombs, some of them falling into the German trenches and causing heavy losses and a panic among the Germans.

On the front between the Dvinsk and the Pripet River there is nothing to report.

On the left bank of the Styr, near the Czartorysk Railway Station, the fighting continues. Near Czartorysk the enemy is making stubborn attacks. Our artillery dispersed the enemy on several occasions when they approached the river.

On the rest of the southern front and in Galicia there has been artillery fire.

BERLIN, Nov. 17, (via London.)—A Russian bombardment of a German position on the coast of Courland is reported in the following communication from the War Office:

Russian destroyers yesterday bombarded Petragge, on the northern coast of Courland, and the region to the southwest. Otherwise the situation is unchanged.

VIENNA, Nov. 17, (via London.)—The War Office announces that there is no news from the Russian war theatre.

RUSSIA SHUTS ENEMY SHOPS

ITALIANS MAINTAIN GAINS.

Report Austrians Repulsed on the Adige and the Carso.

ROME, Nov. 16, (via Paris, Nov. 17.)—The following official statement was issued today at the headquarters of the Italian General Staff:

In the Adige Valley during the morning of the 14th we enlarged and strengthened the position we occupy on the steep hill which slopes down from Zugna Totra toward Rovereto on the left bank of the Leno de Vallersa torrent. The enemy immediately opened a violent artillery fire from Monte Ghella and launched an infantry attack, but was repulsed. In the Padola Valley enemy detachments trying to approach our positions were beaten off, leaving a number of prisoners in our hands.

In the Fella Valley one of our detachments met enemy troops near Lusora, which were attacked and dispersed, the enemy abandoning rifles and munitions in his flight.

On the Carso Plateau yesterday there was an intense artillery duel. The enemy's artillery fired all day against positions recently occupied by us without preventing our reinforcements from coming up. In the Monte San Michele zone the enemy made two violent successive attacks in force on our line, but each time was stopped by the rapid and accurate fire of our artillery and finally had to retreat with heavy loss.

In the region of Gorizia there were no important infantry engagements yesterday. The activity of the Italian artillery, compared with that of previous days, has considerably slackened. The situation on the whole southwestern front is unchanged.

One of our aeroplane squadrons on Monday dropped bombs on Brescia. Our airmen observed big fires which resulted from the bombs. All the aeroplanes returned safely.

WANT SCHWARTZ FREED.

Government to Appeal to Britain in Behalf of Prisoner's Wife.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—An appeal was made to the State Department today in behalf of Samuel Schwartz of New York, an American citizen who is said to have been held in prison in England for more than four months with no charge against him other than he is "held for deportation." Counsel for the man's wife laid the case before the department and asked that some action be taken toward securing his immediate release. It was said later that the course of the Government probably would be to ask the British Foreign Office to put the deportation order into effect as soon as practicable.

According to the account given to the department officials, Schwartz, who is also known as Simon Stearn and who is of Hungarian birth, was arrested in a London hotel about a year ago, charged with being an alien enemy who had failed to properly register. He was tried and was sentenced to six months in prison. Just before his term had expired he was informed by the Warden of the prison that he would not be released, but would be transferred to another prison and held pending deportation. Schwartz finally asked to see a lawyer. It is charged that this privilege was denied him. The State Department was informed last June that the British Government had decided to deport Schwartz.

VIOLENT GUN DUELS ON THE WESTERN FRONT

Cannonade Very Vigorous in Artois and Champagne—French Mine Argonne Trenches.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Violent artillery exchanges continued throughout the day in Artois and Champagne. The French continued their mining operations in the Argonne, apparently with considerable success.

Around Loos, Angres, and Souchez the cannonading has been very violent on both sides. Against the wood to the south of Faye, southwest of Peronne, we concentrated an effective fire.

In Champagne, in the region of the Navarin Farm and near Tahure, the artillery action is still sustained.

In the Argonne we exploded two series of mines, which destroyed German trenches for a considerable extent.

This is the official announcement made this afternoon in Paris:

Nothing of importance occurred last night with the exception of artillery actions in the valley of the Aisne, in the region of Fontenoy, in the Champagne, and in the Woevre, to the north of Flirey.

Following is the Berlin official communication:

Apart from artillery duels and mining warfare at certain points on the front, there is nothing to report.

WILL STAGE SHAW'S PLAY.

"Flaherty, V. C.," Only Postponed, the Abbey Theatre Manager Says.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The manager of the Abbey Theatre in Dublin denies that G. Bernard Shaw's "Flaherty, V. C.," has been suppressed. He says the performance is merely postponed on account of difficulties of rehearsal and that he will produce it later without any deletions. The rumor was that the military authorities had prohibited the production, but the manager says there is no foundation for it. He also says that the play was to have been produced at the London Coliseum, but that it was so cut by the dramatic censor that Shaw would not recognize it as his own creation, and so it could not be produced.

The piece is a thinly disguised dramatic setting of the achievements of an Irish "V. C." and of his experiences in Ireland on his return from the front. In one scene Flaherty and his mother discuss Ireland's position in the war, the mother asking him why Ireland should fight for England after all she has suffered at England's hands. Flaherty answers all her arguments, and she then turns on him for visiting the King.

"Why did you shake hands with the King?" she asks.

WON'T DRAG IN KING GEORGE

Court Says Its Ruling in Speyer and Cassel Cases Will Be Final.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The hearing in the cases of Sir Edgar Speyer and Sir Ernest Cassel to determine whether they should retain membership in the Privy Council was continued today.

Counsel for Sir Edgar announced today that, in view of the fact that he had handed his resignation to the King, who had not accepted it, he considered it inconsistent with his offer of resignation to appear as if he were in any way claiming membership in the Privy Council.

Counsel for Sir Ernest Cassel contended that the Act of 1870, giving to naturalized aliens all rights and privileges of native British citizens, removed any previous disabilities which might have prevented naturalized subjects from becoming Privy Councillors.

Counsel for the Anti-German League, which brought the proceedings, disputed the contention of the Attorney General, Sir Frederick Smith, that no judgment favorable to the applicants could be enforced, as it would involve an order to the Crown.

The Lord Chief Justice, Lord Reading, announced that the Court would assume that, when it declared the law, its rulings would be applied, and that there would be no question as to the possibility that the Crown might set at naught a declaration of the Court.

NOT RIVALING BRITISH NAVY.

Washington Officials Comment on Lord Rosebery's Speech.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Navy Department officials, commenting on Lord Rosebery's speech in London last night, in which he expressed regret that the United States was "about to embark upon the building of a huge armada," said the best answer to it could be found in a speech delivered by Secretary Daniels at Raleigh, N. C., on Oct. 20, in which he advocated an international understanding to put an end to the building of great fleets.

The naval defense program, it was said, had not been drafted with reference to the size of the British fleet or any other foreign fleet, but merely made provision for an adequate increase commensurate with the requirements of this nation in protecting itself. The proposal for a breathing spell in the construction of fleets, it was pointed out, could come only through concerted action of all the great naval powers, and unless the United States kept adding to its fleet consistently, it would not be in a position to enter any international conference on the subject.

CATCH MAN FROM EITEL.

Petty Officer of the German Cruiser Detained in Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 17.—A man, believed to have escaped from the interned German sea raider, Prinz Eitel Friedrich, at Norfolk, was arrested here last night and is being held for Federal officers from that city.

According to the police the man is a petty officer, named Unger. He denies that he belonged to the Eitel Friedrich, but the authorities say they found papers in his room proving his identity.

Deadly New Explosive Discovered.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Minister Harris at Stockholm, in a cablegram to the State Department, announces the discovery in Sweden of a new high explosive which is more powerful and deadly than anything heretofore known. It is called "Kausolit." The principal ingredient is perchloride of ammonia, prepared and combined in some secret way. The explosive is said to be specially suitable for use in shells. It was discovered by a company engaged in manufacturing superphosphates for farm use, and the discovery is regarded as so valuable that the concern is going to engage in manufacturing the explosive at once on a large scale.

DREADNOUGHT BIDS EXCEED LEGAL LIMIT

Navy Yards Alone Keep Within Figures Fixed by Congress—Three Companies Compete.

MAY BE BUILT AT YARDS

But Private Bidders to Have a Chance to Reduce Offers—Armor Plate Bids Little Changed.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Because of the apparent failure of private bidders to keep their proposals within the $7,800,000 limit of cost set by Congress for the hulls and machinery of battleships Nos. 43 and 44, bids for which were opened today at the Navy Department, construction of both vessels may be undertaken at Government navy yards.

The New York and Philadelphia Government plants submitted estimates of less than $7,000,000 each for ships propelled with the combination steam and electric drive, such as is to be used in the superdreadnought now building at the New York yard. These were the lowest bids, and the same yards also submitted the lowest figures for ships equipped with Parsons steam turbines, the bases of all but one of the private bids. The Mare Island yard, with an estimatae of $7,413,156 for a turbine ship, was next lowest

The lowest private bid was that of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, which submitted four alternative proposals. Each was made under stipulated modifications to the department's specifications, which apparently would bring the total cost far above the $7,800,000 maximum. The bids of the other two private bidders, the New York Shipbuilding Company and the Newport News Shipbuilding Company, also proposed modifications, and a careful study will be necessary before the exact cost of the ships can be determined under each bid.

May Refuse Their Figures.

Pending the result of that study, Secretary Daniels was unwilling to say tonight what course he would follow should all the private bids be found to be outside the limit set by Congress. It is understood, however, that an effort will be made to induce the ship companies to reduce their figures before it is determined to give the work to the navy yards. The Secretary made it clear that he believed it necessary to equip two more Government yards for battleship building, regardless of the final decision as to the pending bids. The New York yard is the only one so equipped now, but the Philadelphia and Mare Island yards can be made ready for big jobs at relatively small expense.

The navy yard estimates were based on full specifications for the ships without modification. The New York yard figures were:

For turbine engines, $7,069,923; for steam and electric drive, (similar to the plant designed for the U. S. S. California,) $6,986,667.

Mare Island yard: Turbine, $7,413,156.

Private bids were as follows, each being accompanied by letters modifying the specifications and eliminating material and machinery to be supplied by the contractor:

New York Shipbuilding Company: Turbine drive, $7,700,000; time, thirty-four months.

Newport News Shipbuilding Company: (A) Turbine (as specified,) $7,775,000; time, forty months; (B) turbine, (alternative type,) $7,765,000; time, forty months.

Fore River Shipbuilding Company: Turbine, $7,638,000; time, thirty-four months. Alternative bids, with increasing eliminations in equipment, grade of steel, &c., (A) $7,684,000, (B) $7,750,000, (C) $7,229,500. Time, thirty-four months in each case.

Warship Material Costlier.

Private bids all called attention to rising prices for warship material, due to the European war, and also predicted delay beyond the thirty-four-month construction period specified by the department.

The result of the European war's demands on American markets is shown by the fact that the hulls and machinery of the naw battleships Mississippi and Idaho were contracted for at $7,115,000 and $7,230,000, respectively, a year ago, while today's private bids for virtually identical ships ranged from $7,229,000 to $7,775,000, with various qualifications, such as stipulations that the Government must assume all insurance charges, pay for test trials, and supply much portable material required to be furnished by the contractors in the advertised specifications, and providing for the substitution of cheaper grades of steel and timber than specified.

New hull construction due to plans to lessen the danger from torpedo attack occasioned some of the increase. Several bids, however, rejected the stipulation that changes in this bulkhead construction could be made by the Government at any time within three months after the contract award should new information on the subject be obtained.

Bids for armor for the new ships, also opened today, showed little increase in price since the last armor contracts were awarded. The Carnegie Company was the low bidder for the first-class armor for both ships at $425 a ton.

Four companies submitted armor proposals. Bids on armor of the first class ranged from $746 a ton by the Midvale Steel Company to $428 by the Carnegie Steel Company. The Bethlehem Steel Company's bid was $435. On the second grade the Carnegie Company also was low bidder at $486 a ton, while on the third grade the Midvale bid was low at $310. The Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt Company was the only bidder for the lowest grade, which comprises the steel bolts and fittings with which armor is attached to battleships, its proposal being $464 a ton.

CLUBMEN TALK DEFENSE.

$1,000,000,000 Plan Discussed at Technology "War Luncheon."

A plan to combine the preparedness program with an International Peace Tribunal measure in a bill before Congress was suggested yesterday by Oscar T. Crosby, a former United States army officer and recently Director of the Commission for Relief in Belgium, at a "war luncheon" at the Technology Club. Mr. Crosby, who has been among the most active advocates of disarmament, asserted that, while the peace tribunal plan is preferable, he believed that we should go further in preparedness.

The chief points in the plan suggested by Mr. Crosby, which are to be embodied in a bill, are these:

First—That Congress appropriate $1,000,000,000 or more for national defense by land and sea, under the direction of a commission consisting of the President of the United States, the Secretaries of War and the Navy, and naval and military officers.

Second—That the sum appropriated be expended within a period of eight years, and that the commission shall not be required to make public its plans.

Third—That Congress request the President to initiate negotiations looking to the establishment of a system of international control, the international court to be composed of representatives of all countries, who are to decide all disputes and, if necessary, to enforce its decrees by an international army and navy.

Fourth—That, if an international tribunal shall have been established at any time before the expenditure of the appropriation, the plans for national defense shall be suspended and any money left shall be turned back into the Treasury.

The third point was embodied in a bill introduced in the Senate on Feb. 3 by Senator Shafroth, which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

"We must realize," Mr. Crosby said, "that in preparing as we now plan we are going to be the next menace to the peace of the world. We don't intend to make any conquests, but all this talk about offensive and defensive is nonsense. We don't want a navy to defend ourselves—we want it to be able to enforce our views."

MAYORS PRAISE MITCHEL.

Many Send Messages Lauding Appointment of Defense Committee.

Telegrams from Mayors of cities all over the country congratulating Mayor Mitchel on the appointment of a local defense committee were received at the Mayor's office yesterday.

Mayors of forty-one cities from Maine to California sent such communications. The letters of congratulation came from representatives of branches of the National Security League. Secretary Pierre R. Porter of Kansas City, Mo., wrote:

Your example should be emulated by Mayors of all American cities culminating in a midcontinent conference of delegates from all sections of our nation.

S. Stanwood Menken, President of the National Security League, reported that many Mayors had appointed defense committees.

DISAGREE ON PREPAREDNESS.

Medico-Legal Society Members Exchange Views on Defense.

The demand for national preparedness was discussed as a psychological infection at the Fall meeting of the Medico-Legal Society of America, held at the Waldorf-Astoria last night. The members debated the question "Has the Whole World Gone Mad?" and at the close of the meeting appointed a committee to consider it and decide what course the nation should take.

Secretary Clark Bell opened the debate with an attack on the Administration plan for a greater army and navy, declaring it was folly to try to accomplish adequate defense in two years and that by that time the war would be over and fighters ready to take a long rest. He said that there was no need for excitement and that Providence would watch over this worthy nation.

In reply to Mr. Bell Oscar J. Smith said half history showed that "God is on the side with the heaviest artillery." He said America might be plunged into war within forty-eight hours and called the sinking of the Ancona "a slap in the face for President Wilson."

President T. I. Crothers thought that when the nations of Europe were through fighting there would be no more war for fifty years. He said he was in favor of preparedness, but he did not like to see people get excited about it.

William Sartain, the artist, thought China's domination by Japan should be a warning to this country.

Dr. Belva Lockwood, who is 85 years old, wrote from Washington that the cold weather had driven her South, and away from the meeting.

URGE STUDENTS TO CAMPS.

University Presidents Plan to Extend Military Instruction.

Plans to extend military instruction among university students were made yesterday at a luncheon and meeting at the Century Association, 7 West Forty-third Street, of members of the Advisory Committee of University Presidents. This was organized three years ago at the instance of General Leonard Wood to build up a national reserve among college students.

A letter was drafted to be sent to Presidents of universities and colleges all over the country, urging them to avail themselves of the opportunity offered by the War Department for the training of students during vacation in military camps. University Presidents at the meeting expressed the opinion that the military courses in 1913, 1914, and 1915 had been of great value to the students who entered them.

General Wood was present at the meeting which was presided over by President John Grier Hibben of Princeton, Chairman of the Advisory Committee. Others who attended were President Arthur T. Hadley of Yale, President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard, President Henry Sturgis Drinker of Lehigh, Secretary of the committee; Dr. John H. Finley, State Commissioner of Education; President M. B. Hutchins of the University of Michigan; President George H. Denny of the University of Alabama; E. W. Nichols, Superintendent of the Virginia Military Institute; President J. G. Schurman of Cornell, and Chancellor J. H. Kirkland of Vanderbilt University.

It is planned by the War Department to hold many more camps in 1916 in order to provide for the great increase in students who have been interested by the campaign for preparedness in obtaining the rudiments of a military education.

14 BILLIONS CAPITAL SEES PEACE MENACE

Prepares to Meet Foreign Competition, Slump in Orders and Labor Shortage.

FOUNDERS MEET AT ASTOR

W. H. Barr Criticises Secretary Redfield as a Ludicrous Failure in Cabinet.

The opening of the two-day session of the National Founders' Association at the Hotel Astor yesterday marked the first steps of a movement toward the co-ordination of all the industrial interests in the country to face the economic situation which it is believed will surely follow the conclusion of peace in Europe. The meeting was addressed by five organizations of manufacturers, which represent 15,000 members and an investment of $14,000,000,000.

This is the first time that such a conference on business conditions has been held. When the war is ended, American business will have to cope with the sudden displacement caused by the cessation of war orders, which will reduce profits in many lines at a time when a corresponding reduction of wages will be difficult.

There will also be a scarcity of skilled labor due to the losses of life in the war, which it is feared may increase the price of labor to such a point that it is desirable from the manufacturers' point of view to start now in the hopes of extending the field of machinery in many operations.

The meetings were held in private, and of the five Presidents who spoke—William H. Barr of the foundry men, H. H. Rice of the National Metal Trades Association, Colonel George Pope of the National Association of Manufacturers, John P. Wood of the National Association of Woolen Manufacturers, and Albert G. Duncan of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers—only two had their remarks given out.

In the great association which was talked of each of the existing employers' organizations will have its own field of activity, but all will be co-ordinated under the central body.

At the morning session the speakers were the Hon. Barr, Commissioner A. E. McClintock, Secretary J. M. Taylor, and General Counsel George F. Monaghan of the Founders' Association, and Magnus W. Alexander, Chairman of the Committee on Safety and Sanitation. Mr. Monaghan talked on general conditions, and Mr. Alexander on safety in the foundry. In Mr. Barr's report there were vigorous criticism of Frank P. Walsh and the Commission on Industrial Relations, attacks on various legislative measures favored by leaders of organized labor, and protest against the Congressional assaults on business.

Mr. Barr also launched an attack on Secretary of Commerce William C. Redfield.

"No member of any Cabinet," said Mr. Barr, "has failed so ludicrously to understand his position or to carry out the plain mandate of the law. Instead of being a help to business, Mr. Redfield has become a menace. When business men complained of the effects of the tariff, Mr. Redfield waved aside facts and data, and because the tariff, in his estimation, could not be wrong, he adjudged the men not only guilty of contempt in raising the question, but held them up to ridicule as incompetent and untrustworthy."

In the afternoon Mr. Rice spoke on "The Equation of Co-operation," Colonel Pope on "Industrial Preparedness," Mr. Wood on "The Limitation of Business Associations," and Mr. Duncan on "Business Legislation."

Colonel Pope said the political attacks on business had produced almost as war zone. He praised an action which Mr. Barr had ridiculed—the proposal of the President, Secretary Redfield, and the Federal Trade Commission to make the dumping of foreign goods in this country unfair competition.

At the dinner last night Charles Nagel, former Secretary of Commerce, spoke on "A Demand for a National Industrial Program."

"The National Government," he said in discussing the Government's attitude toward business, "has assumed the right to punish any State corporation engaged in interstate business, but has not undertaken to protect such corporations. The State should not be permitted to interfere with any commerce as soon as it attains a national character."

Henry D. Estabrook urged the biggest navy in the world, a strong citizen soldiery, and a merchant marine.

FREEING GERMAN GOODS.

Britain to Consider More Permits to Move Rotterdam Shipments.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—It was announced today that England had taken steps to facilitate the movement of American goods of German origin from Rotterdam, and that the British Embassy at Washington would consider 283 applications for permits. This statement was given out at the State Department:

"The Holland-America Line advised the department that through an arrangement entered into between the British Government, the Netherlands Overseas Trust, and the Holland-America Line, the British Government had designated Price, Waterhouse & Co., public accountants, to investigate in Rotterdam applications for permits to bring forward goods and that about fifty of those applications had been forwarded to the Home Office and favorably acted on before Sept. 23.

"The Holland-America Line further stated that about 283 applications had been favorably recommended by Price, Waterhouse & Co. which had reached London subsequent to Sept. 23 and that were being held up on account of the arrangement made between the British Embassy at this capital and the Foreign Trade Advisers of the State Department, acting unofficially, and that they had on hand at Rotterdam some 700 additional applications which were being considered by the British accountants.

"The Holland-America Line asked the State Department to intervene with a view to having at least the 283 applications considered directly in London. The department informally informed the British authorities through the American Ambassador that it entered no objection to the consideration of these claims, inasmuch as they were represented as relating to seasonable and holiday goods.

"The Foreign Office has now advised the State Department that Price, Waterhouse & Co. were not empowered to recommend, but were only employed to examine and report upon the applications, and that they desired the 283 applications, as well as any others to be presented to and considered by the British Embassy in Washington, accompanied by the necessary evidence."

EDISON, INC., IN WAR SUIT.

Contract Voided, Austrian Concern Wants to Recover $80,322.50.

Asserting that the war had broken his contract, Charles B. Clendenen, as assignee of the Societe Kinetophone Edison, an Austrian corporation, brought suit in the Federal District Court yesterday against Thomas A. Edison, Inc., for $80,322.50.

According to the complaint the Austrian corporation on June 5, 1914, contracted with the Edison concern for the exclusive right for two years to use, lease, and sell kinetophone machines, films, and records in France, Belgium, Holland, Spain, Portugal, and Italy, and agreed to pay for it 400,000 kroner, or $80,322.50.

In the contract, it is asserted, was a clause providing that in case of war, riots, or the act of God, in any of the countries specified, its laws should apply to the construction of the contract and its performance. Since the war began it is stated, laws have been passed by France, Portugal, Belgium, and Italy forbidding their citizens to do business with subjects of the Empire of Austria-Hungary. So Clendenen, as the assignor of the Austrian concern, asserts he should recover the money paid for the selling privileges.

$1,600 in Bills Vanishes from Columbia Trust Company.

Since last Friday private and police detectives have been searching for a man who took $1,600 in bills from the Columbia Trust Company at 100 West 126th Street. The money disappeared at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon from the Treasurer's window, where it had been lying in a pile.

No one was seen to approach this window, and it is not known how long the money had been taken before it was found to be missing.

So far the police have got no trace of the thieves or of the banknotes.

GERMAN WIRELESS HAS MAINE BRANCH

OUR OFFICERS IN CHARGE

Will Be Used as a Receiving Station Only, Beginning Its Service Today.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Following a report current today that the British Embassy was about to direct the attention of the State Department to the existence of a new wireless station at Deering, a suburb of Portland, Me., just erected by the German company which owns the Tuckerton (N. J.) plant, it was explained by a high official of the Navy Department tonight that the station was built with the assent of this Government and was to be operated as a branch of the big station at Tuckerton.

The Tuckerton radio station is being operated by the Navy Department until the close of the war. The branch at Deering will also be operated under the supervision and control of the United States Naval Radio Service.

The Deering station will not be permitted, at least that is the plan for the present, to send any messages, either to vessels at sea or to Europe. It was established primarily as a receiving station, and was erected, it was explained, to receive messages from Germany intended for the Tuckerton station but which cannot be received at Tuckerton on account of ground and climatic conditions.

It was learned today that a letter had been prepared at the British Embassy, which would probably be delivered to the State Department tomorrow, drawing attention to the existence of the station. One of the reports in circulation here was that British officials suspected that the new station might be used in sending unneutral messages to vessels at sea. Inquiry at the embassy failed to confirm this fact. The embassy had no information upon which to base an assertion that the station had communicated with ships at sea, but had been interested in the possibility of the station being used in communicating with Berlin.

Captain W. H. G. Bullard, in charge of the radio service of the navy, with headquarters at Arlington radio station, and who also has supervision over the enforcement of the Government radio censorship and direction of the operation of the Sayville and Tuckerton stations by the Government, it was learned, knew all about the establishment of the new Deering branch radio station, which was found to serve as the basis for no mystery to the Navy Department. In fact, a navy electrician, Oscar Hesler, watched the construction of the plant. It was explained that officers would be on duty at the Deering station, which probably would be ready for business tomorrow, to supervise the receipt of messages coming from Germany intended for delivery at Deering or Tuckerton.

The Tuckerton station, it was said, operated under what is known as the high-frequency radio system, had proved to be a remarkably fine station for sending messages to Germany. But it had been unreliable for receiving messages from Germany. Some of the German messages intended for Tuckerton had been received, but many of them had missed. Hence, it was explained, it became necessary to establish a branch station, which would not send messages, but was equipped for receiving them.

The Deering station was erected under the supervision of Emil F. Meyer of Tuckerton, a German subject, who is the agent for "Homag," the German company which claims to own the Tuckerton station.

Dr. Emil G. Meyer, manager at Tuckerton for the Atlantic Communication Company, said yesterday that he had returned from Maine eight days ago after superintending the erection of a receiving wireless station near Portland.

"Our decision to build the receiving station at Maine," he said, "was reached after a series of experiments carried out in co-operation with United States naval officers and they were in favor, from a scientific standpoint, of placing the receiving station further north.

"Any complaint that we are operating a wireless sending station or that we are avoiding censorship in any way is ridiculous. This step has been taken for purely scientific and business reasons."

BANKS LOSE CONCESSIONS.

Two Mexican Institutions Found Short on Cash to Cover Notes.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 17.—The concessions of the banks of Hidalgo and Guerrero, operating in the States of the same names, were declared forfeited today by the Investigating Commission appointed by Acting Minister of Finance Nieto, because their fiduciary circulation was in excess of the percentage allowed by law.

The Banco Nacional and the Bank of London and Mexico were found to be well within the law under which they were organized, as their cash resources were far above the amount required to guard their note circulation.

The standing of the banks reported on was as follows: Banco Nacional, cash 34,030,706; pesos notes in circulation 74,493,465; London and Mexico, cash 22,-141,685, notes 43,553,099; Hidalgo, cash 563,435, notes 1,629,164; Guerrero, cash 141,700, notes 678,025.

An English family named Honey, long resident in Mexico, owns the controlling interest in the banks of Hidalgo and Guerrero. Both banks are solvent in spite of their deficiency in specie. All banks experience difficulty in realizing, even on gilt-edge securities held by them, owing to the abnormal conditions.

MAY GIVE OSBORNE A PROBATION PRISON

Commissioner Would Start All Convicts in Sing Sing and Segregate Good and Bad.

PRAISES WARDEN'S WORK

New System Handicapped by Mixing the Incorrigible with Those Capable of Reform.

Leon C. Weinstock of 155 East Twenty-second Street, a member of the State Prison Commission, yesterday gave his cordial indorsement to the policy of Warden Thomas Mott Osborne of Sing Sing and advocated, as supplemental to Mr. Osborne's methods, the segregation of State prisoners.

Mr. Weinstock would make Sing Sing a general receiving and probation prison, where the good and bad might be separated and dealt with according to the tendencies they might develop during a three months' residence there. He has long had this idea in mind and has hope that it may be put into effect.

"The chief thing that has hindered the success of Mr. Osborne's system," he said, "is the fact that prisoners of all kinds and conditions are thrown together indiscriminately in Sing Sing. No method of prison reform can be applied with entire effectiveness so long as there is no segregation of prisoners. Many of the men who go to jail are not criminals at heart, while others are incorrigible. If the men for whom there is hope of reform could be separated from the hopeless cases, and if the diseased could be separated from the sound, then Mr. Osbornes' methods could be applied with results that would amaze those unfamiliar with prison work.

"Under the old system of prison management many men who were not intentional criminals when sent to prison came away confirmed criminals, while under the present plan in Sing Sing the leniency and self-government applicable to the reformation of first offenders and those who have not become habitual criminals is abused by the men who cannot be reformed by any method.

"The only solution of the problem to my mind is for Sing Sing to be made a receiving station for prisoners, where each convict can be under observation for three months. At the end of that time it can be determined whether a prisoner is amenable to reforming influences or beyond hope of reform, and wise segregation can be effected. Of course Mr. Osborne has not the power to put such a system into practice. That would have to be done by the State.

"I have long been connected with prison work in this State," Mr. Weinstock said, "and for some time I have been going to Sing Sing every week or ten days. I have observed conditions under a number of Wardens, and I can say that the change that came over the spirit and attitude of the men in Sing Sing after Mr. Osborne took charge was remarkable, and all for improvement.

"There is no doubt in my mind but that Warden Osborne has improved Sing Sing. His idea of having the prisoners govern themselves through the Mutual Welfare League is good, and on the whole has worked well."

Mr. Weinstock said that the Warden's system of prison management had caused "a new spirit" to come over the convicts that was in sharp and encouraging contrast with the spirit that previously prevailed in the prison.

Good Outweighs Bad.

Mr. Weinstock said the Warden had made mistakes on the side of too great leniency, "but," he added, "if you put the bad results of Mr. Osborne's mistakes in the scale against the good results of his system, the good will far outweigh the bad."

The Commissioner did not care to discuss the Diedling report, saying that he did not feel free to do so because of the agreement of the prison commissioners not to talk for publication about the report until after the December meeting, but he consented to outline his position regarding Warden Osborne's method and the prison situation in general.

Huntington W. Merchant of 5 Nassau Street, when asked yesterday to comment upon the publication of testimony taken by Dr. Diedling, said:

"I read the digest of Dr. Diedling's report in last evening's papers and Mr. Hurd's interview in this morning's papers. The publication just at this time has interested me greatly in view of the understanding that the prison commissioners had agreed not to release it until after it had been considered by all of the members of the commission at their meeting early in December. Mr. Hurd's prompt and vigorous repudiation of the report seems to me to indicate that the whole proceeding of its publication is an individual affair. The man known to have been unfriendly for some time to prison reform as exemplified in Mr. Osborne's wardenship."

Warden Osborne will speak this afternoon at 2:30 at the Lyric Theatre, where motion pictures depicting prison life will be shown under the auspices of the Joint Committee on Prison Reform.

ARREST SING SING PRISONER.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, Nov. 17.—On complaint of District Attorney Weeks of Westchester County, Peter Cullen, an inmate of Sing Sing Prison, who endorses Warden Osborne, and is a member of the Mutual Welfare League, was today arrested and locked up in the White Plains Jail, on a charge of contempt of court, committed on Monday, when he refused to be sworn before the Grand Jury now investigating conditions at Sing Sing.

Mr. Weeks will tell nothing of the incident that provoked the prisoner's arrest, except that when Cullen was brought before the Grand Jury he refused to take the customary oath of a witness.

There were others here today, however, who defended Cullen in his refusal to take the oath. According to the information that came to these persons, when Cullen took the witness chair in the Grand Jury room he announced that he would take the oath and answer any questions put to him provided that he were allowed to give voluntary testimony about conditions in Sing Sing and tell what Mr. Osborne's method and the Mutual Welfare League had done for him. He told the Grand Jury, it is said, that he had spent the greater part of the last twenty years in jail, and that he had "never known a father" until he knew Mr. Osborne. The District Attorney, according to the report, became angry with the witness and ordered him from the room.

Four inmates of Sing Sing were examined by the Grand Jury today, among them John Flannagan, the victim of a recent assault committed in the prison.

OSBORNE CHALLENGES VIEWS OF EX-DEPUTY

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Nov. 17.—Warden Thomas Mott Osborne of Sing Sing Prison appeared unexpectedly at this afternoon's session of the Charities and Correction conference. He had come to Albany, he said, not to make a speech, but to consult his physician. He would, however, like to answer one of the speakers at the conference. The speaker was Charles H. Johnson, Superintendent of the Connecticut Reformatory at Cheshire, formerly his deputy at Sing Sing, although he did not mention Mr. Johnson by name. Mr. Johnson's subject was "The Dangers of Prison Reform," and he asserted that men were not sent to prison to be amused, but to be remade.

Mr. Osborne took exception to this implication, but branched off to a discussion of the token money in use in Sing Sing and the great benefit and saving it was to the convicts. He told of the many reforms he had instituted at Sing Sing, and said that his mind grasped concrete examples better than theories.

Mr. Johnson, who took the floor when Warden Osborne finished, said that the Warden had not answered him, and that he would reiterate, that men were sent to prison not to be amused, but to be remade.

Mr. Johnson said that he saw peril to reform plans in too rapid movement, in the fact that unwise enthusiasm for the welfare of prisons and prisoners might make crime seem less heinous, and the danger to the prisoner himself.

COUNT'S WIFE DISAPPEARS.

Von Heyder is an Artist and She a Composer of Music.

J. Devich von Heyder, an artist, who says he is a member of the Austrian nobility with the title of Count, but that he is an Italian at heart, reported to the Fourth Branch detectives yesterday the disappearance from his home in the Algonquin Apartments, 6 West 107th Street, of his wife, Marie.

Mr. von Heyder said that when he was at work in his studio, adjoining his apartments, Sunday afternoon, his wife disappeared. He knew of no reason why she should go. She is of a literary turn of mind and has been composing music. She had appeared nervous and highstrung lately, he said. He tried for three days to find her through his own efforts, but sought the aid of the police when he failed.

Von Heyder described his wife as a Spaniard with black eyes, black hair, and olive complexion. She is about 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighs 125 pounds. She wore a blue jacket, blue skirt, and white shirtwaist. He said she probably also wore yellow gloves, a wedding ring, and a diamond bar pin. Von Heyder thought his wife could not have gone far, for she had only about $50 with her.

Mrs. Von Heyder, her husband said, was born in Seville, Spain. In her youth she was a hairdresser and went to Brazil and Argentina. In her travels she became acquainted with Mme. Tetrazzini, and it was through the diva that von Heyder met her. Von Heyder said he was born in that part of Austria bordering on Italy. He has been in this country about fifteen years.

DALY RAIDS SALOONS.

Arrests Proprietors in Places Where Dancing is Allowed.

Inspector John Daly, who was recently assigned to the Fourth Inspection District, early this morning visited some of the saloons in the district where dancing is allowed or where women are allowed to congregate in back rooms. A squad of six men headed by Patrolman Mark Horrigan raided three places and took seven prisoners—proprietors, managers, and waiters—to the West Forty-seventh Street Station, charged with maintaining disorderly resorts or violating the liquor laws.

At Louis Zelazo's, 135 West Forty-fifth Street, the detectives found women dancing. They arrested Zelazo and Henry Dolgias, a waiter. Nat Osborne's, at 222 West Forty-seventh Street, was the next place visited. Osborne, James Shiel, the manager, and Edward J. Delaney, a singing waiter, were arrested there. At a saloon at Forty-third Street and Eighth Avenue William H. Dunlop, a waiter, and Charles Toner, a bartender, were taken into custody.

Four arrests were made at the New Victoria Hotel, 145-155 West Fifty-seventh Street. The proprietor, Charles A. Hollingsworth was charged with maintaining a disorderly resort, and John H. McCarthy, the clerk; Sam Mayers, belboy, and John Yaxas, a waiter, with aiding and abetting him.

OPPOSES PANAMA CONGRESS

"Hyphenated Churchmen" Not Representative, Says Bishop Nelson.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 17.—Before 200 delegates to the forty-seventh Albany Diocesan Convention of the Episcopal Church, Bishop Richard N. Nelson in his annual address today declared that the proposed Panama Congress was an affront to the Roman Catholic Church, and that in the historical sense the Episcopal Church in character was both Catholic and Protestant. He holds that the Episcopal Board of Missions exceeded its powers in appointing delegates to the proposed Panama Congress, and that the matter of its jurisdiction should be settled in courts of law.

"It is not strange," said the Bishop, "that there should be within our communion a difference of opinion as to whether the accent should be laid upon that which we affirm as Catholics or upon that which we deny as Protestants. But the difference takes on a vital character when it emerges from the region of friendly discussion and seeks to determine our policy in efforts toward unity. In my opinion, there are very few who wish to commit the Church to a policy of Pan-Protestantism, and I do not believe that there are any who favor Pan-Romanism. Hyphenated churchmen are few in number, and they do not represent the convictions and feelings of that large body whose desire is to do their work in the church and to uphold its witness to truth, with charity toward all and with malice toward none."

on "Crimes Against Persons," said, in discussing the case:

"No one has the legal right to further the child's death. While humane laws and religion urge the baby's preservation, the legal questions involved are whether a physician who believes a patient should not be operated on is to be held responsible if he permits the patient to die in furtherance of his judgment. I doubt if a conviction of any crime could be had on those circumstances. It is done every day all over the world where doctors decide the fate of patients."

Dr. Harold N. Moyer, a noted biologist, said:

"No general rule can be laid down in cases like this. The ethics of our profession are to prolong life and relieve suffering. This case is not an exception, but like countless others that are decided by doctors every day. The public will be educated by this discussion. Those questions must sooner or later come to the attention of the masses."

CONDEMN SURGEON'S COURSE.

New York Doctors Generally Against the Death Verdict.

Thumbs were generally up yesterday in favor of the defective baby in the German-American Hospital in Chicago sentenced to die when an operation might have saved it, when a survey was made of the arena of medical opinion in this city.

The consensus was that whatever the ethics involved, no one physician should be permitted to decide on his own responsibility either as to the fate of the child or on the correctness of the diagnosis.

Dr. Ira S. Wile, a member of the Board of Education and a practicing physician, said that he did not think that a physician should refuse to perform an operation which might save life unless he accompanied his decision by resignation from the case.

"The physician is within his rights to report to the parent that the child is a hopeless defective, and if he performs an operation that, even if it lives, it will have only a vegetable existence, but after all it is for the father or mother to decide what shall be done. I was surprised to see a physician quoted in an afternoon paper as saying that he would perform the operation anyhow. Surely he cannot realize that to pursue such a course would bring him into trouble.

"It seems to me that the physician in the case should have at least summoned other physicians to consult with him, for if the newspapers are correct, he decided the matter on his own responsibility."

Dr. Louis Fischer, an author of standard medical textbooks on the care of children, and a physician of varied hospital experience, said last evening that the matter of diagnosis in such cases as that reported from Chicago could not be too carefully considered.

"It is a well-known fact," he said, "that children who appear to be doomed to a life of idiocy from their birth may be saved from that condition by brain operations. In this Chicago case the physician seems to have the absolute confidence of the mother, yet at the same time the fate of the child should have been decided, not by him, but by her. It is the function of the physician to bring life into the world and to prolong it."

Dr. Katharine Bement Davis, Commissioner of Correction, said that she could not judge of the merits of the case entirely on newspaper reports. She said that on general principles it would be a dangerous thing to commit the question of the life or death of anybody to the word of a physician, for the practice might lead in the end to bad results.

"In any event," she added, "it seems to me that no one physician should ever have the right to decide so momentous a question. How does he know that his diagnosis is absolutely correct?"

Dr. John D. Quackenbos, who has made studies of mental conditions and of heredity for many years, said that it was the great function of the physician to save life, and whatever views might be entertained as to the propriety of ending a life not well begun, the physician had no right to take the law into his own hands.

"As far as the practitioner in Chicago is concerned," continued Dr. Quackenbos, "he was within his rights in declining to perform an operation. He is not compelled by law to do so. There are always others who are ready to act in such cases if the parents ask for operations."

Dr. Virgil P. Gibney of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University differs materially with Dr. H. J. Haiselden, the surgeon in charge of the defective Chicago child, in his conception of duty under the circumstances. He condemned the Chicago physician for refusing to operate on the infant, saying that it is the duty of a doctor to relieve the sufferings of humanity and to prolong life, regardless of what he individually may deem may be the outcome of such service.

A similar view was expressed at Columbia yesterday by Professor Munro Smith of the School of Law. He declined to express a view as to the legal problems involved if the child died when an operation could save it.

"To establish a precedent in this case," said Professor Smith, "might be dangerous. It is putting into the power of an individual the right to decide whether or not a man shall live, and this, I think, is giving the individual too much power."

An entirely different view of the matter was taken by sociologists of Columbia University and by Professor Charles A. Beard of the Department of Politics. Professor Franklin H. Giddings, head of the Department of Sociology, dictated his views, which follow:

"If the facts are as reported," he said, "the child should be permitted to die. If more such children had been permitted to die, there would be fewer molasses-minded men and women in the community who object to letting such children die."

Professor Samuel McCune Lindsay of the faculty of Political Science, Philosophy, and Pure Science said that he was willing to subscribe to Professor Giddings's statement.

Professor Charles A. Beard was willing to go further than any of the other professors interviewed. He was willing, he said, to repeat the views expressed by him some time ago to the effect that where one in unrelievable suffering was sure to die, it was right to put him to death, providing the proper judicial safeguards were thrown about such a course.

"Believing this," Professor Beard said, "I surely must stand behind the course adopted by this doctor in Chicago if the facts are as stated."

SAYS SURGEON WAS RIGHT.

Medico-Legal Society Indorses His Refusal to Operate.

The Medico-Legal Society of America at its Fall meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria last night passed resolutions indorsing the action of Dr. H. J. Haiselden, the Chicago doctor, who refused to perform an operation to prolong the life of a defective child. The resolution read:

"Resolved, That the Chicago physician is to be commended for his humane action in refusing to perform an operation to prolong the life of an imbecile child."

The society based its action on the ground that the physician was not taking human life, but that his action was merely the result of his decision to withhold professional action in a case where he believed he was aiding society by withholding it. The resolution was introduced by Oscar J. Smith, who said he believed if the child could have an instant of sanity and could speak it would ask for death rather than a helpless life.

Secretary Clark Bell said there was nothing new in the problem; that in his fifty years of practicing law he had known of many cases when physicians exercised their own discretion to the extent of taking a life that did not have a promising beginning.

President T. D. Crothers said that it was an unwritten law that a physician had a right to exercise his own discretion in many cases of birth, and that Dr. Haiselden was to be commended.

SYMPATHIZE WITH SURGEON.

But Baltimore Physicians Say Duty Is to Save Life.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 17. — Leading Baltimore physicians, including Dr. L. F. Barker of Johns Hopkins University, in discussing the case of the defective child in Chicago, say that in general it is the first duty of the physician to save life; that this is an imperative obligation, but, granted that the case of this particular child was hopeless, one could not escape sympathizing with the physicians and the parents in their determination to let it die.

"It is the present duty of the physician or surgeon to prolong life wherever possible in every case," Dr. Barker said. "So far as I know there is no legal justification for any other action. The time may come when the people will pass laws which will change that rule in special cases. Humanly speaking, however, I think every one will sympathize with the parents and the surgeon in this case, if the child is hopelessly defective mentally and physically."

"I do not think that babies should be allowed to die simply because they are cripples or because they have some abnormality of the hands or for any such reason," another leading physician said; "one cannot escape sympathizing with the parents and the surgeon in such a case as this if it is true, as indicated, that the child is condemned to imbecility and physical unfitness, too."

IT'S MURDER, JUDGE SAYS.

Philadelphia Official Denounces Course of Chicago Doctor.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17.—Seriously diseased and defective children, committed to institutions by Judge Raymond MacNeille of the Juvenile Court of this city, "die with frequent regularity" soon after entering the institutions, according to Judge MacNeille, who today discussed the question raised in Chicago of allowing mentally and physically defective babies to die.

"Do you, from your own knowledge, think the practice obtains in Philadelphia?" he was asked.

"I only can say," he answered, "that in cases of children afflicted with serious diseases committed by me to institutions death occurs with frequent and noticeable regularity. I have noted that about three weeks after the child is committed I am informed of its death."

"Does not such a state of affairs call for investigation?" he was asked.

Judge MacNeille shrugged his shoulders. "Well, what can be done?" he asked.

In his opinion the Chicago physician who decided not to perform an operation that would have saved the life of the defective child was committing murder. So, too, he said, were physicians who administered drugs they knew may kill their patients.

"I am convinced," Judge MacNeille said, "that if such things happened in this State the doctor would be convicted at least of manslaughter. If such physicians were brought before me I would hold them for court without bail and they would have to stand trial for murder.

"If I knew you were about to be run down and killed by an automobile and I did nothing to prevent it, wouldn't I be your murderer? The Chicago case is murder, simply murder. God gives life and He is the only one who may take it. It is our business to preserve life.

"With the rapid advance being made in science, how do we know that what is defective may not be overcome, perhaps in a very short time? Then, too, you are normal and healthy in this generation, but three generations hence your family may be defective. There hardly is a family that, traced back, will not show defective members. God treats these matters in His own good way and time. It is not our business to interfere with His plan."

OPPOSES FIGHT ON KITCHIN.

President Not Alarmed by Floor Leader's Antagonism to Defense.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Word came from the White House today that President Wilson did not favor any movement to punish Representative Kitchin of North Carolina, the Democratic leader in the House, for opposing the Administration's program of defense. This informal announcement is expected to prevent any organized effort to supplant Mr. Kitchin as leader of the party caucus to be held shortly before Congress convenes.

There is no doubt that Mr. Kitchin's recent letter in which he said that instead of being a passive opponent of the President's program he would use all his power to defeat it has aroused much resentment. Some Southern Representatives now in town who warmly supported Mr. Kitchin for the majority leadership are expressing indignation. But these men discount rumors that Mr. Kitchin will be supplanted.

There are practical reasons against any organized attack on Mr. Kitchin. He was selected for the Chairmanship of the Ways and Means Committee and the leadership of the party in the House at a caucus before the adjournment of the late session. When the new caucus meets it will have to consider committee assignments made tentatively by the Ways and Means Committee. A critic of Mr. Kitchin said this afternoon that if Mr. Kitchin were replaced all the work of the committee would be undone and the caucus would find itself hopelessly muddled.

From the President's point of view, no harm will come from leaving Mr. Kitchin undisturbed. The North Carolinian is not a dominating figure in the House, such as his predecessor, Mr. Underwood of Alabama, was, so that his opposition probably will do little more than give a rallying place to Democrats who oppose the program. Mr. Kitchin seems to realize this himself, for in the letter which stirred up the controversy Mr. Kitchin said he believed the President's program would go through by an overwhelming vote.

EXPECT BELMONT ON STAND

WHITE PLAINS, Nov. 17.—There was a report here tonight that August Belmont would be the principal witness in the Supreme Court tomorrow when the trial of the Empire City Racing Association's suit against the National Fair and Exposition Company begins. The Racing Association asserted that the Fair company violated the lease under which it took over the race track a few years ago.

It was charged in the complaint that the company was to conduct a fair and exposition on the grounds each year, and that it failed to live up to this agreement, and also that they used the grounds to stable war horses that were to be sent abroad.

It could not be learned what connection Mr. Belmont had with the suit, but it was said that he had been subpoenaed by the defendant company.

PENROSE IS A CANDIDATE.

Announces He Will Seek Republican Nomination for Presidency.

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 17.—Boies Penrose, United States Senator from Pennsylvania, said today here that he would be a candidate for the Republican nomination for the Presidency in 1916, but refused to discuss his plans beyond that he would make a formal announcement later.

Mr. Penrose was in San Antonio as one of the party escorting the Liberty Bell from the Pacific Coast to Philadelphia.

GEN. H. L. BURNETT, ILL, RIDES IN BAGGAGE CAR

General Henry L. Burnett, who was United States District Attorney under McKinley and Roosevelt, was seized with an attack of bronchial pneumonia at his country place in Goshen, N. Y., and was brought to his home in this city at 7 East Twelfth Street yesterday. He made the trip on a cot which was placed in a baggage car and on the journey was accompanied by Mrs. Burnett and a nurse. He suffered no pain and surprised his physician by his cheerfulness.

General Burnett is 77 years old and has been ailing for two weeks. His stables in Goshen burned last Spring and several months later his home was destroyed by fire, and he was engaged in rebuilding when he had to take to his bed.

Dr. Hamilton of Goshen believed the attack might have serious results, and called into consultation Dr. E. L. Partridge of 19 Fifth Avenue. It was General Burnett's own request that he be removed to his city home. Last night it was said he was resting comfortably.

General Burnett has had an interesting career as soldier, lawyer, and Judge. He is a lineal descendant of William Burnett, Colonial Governor of New York and New Jersey in 1720. He was born in Youngstown, Ohio, in 1838, and studied at Chester Academy and Hiram Institute, where James A. Garfield instructed him in mathematics. He was graduated from the Ohio State and National Law School in 1859. When the civil war came he enlisted in the Second Ohio Cavalry, and was made Captain of Company C. Gallantry on the field won him rapid promotion. He became a Major and later rose to the rank of Brigadier General. In 1868 General Burnside appointed him Judge Advocate General in the Department of Ohio. In April, 1865, he took part in the prosecution of the assasins of President Lincoln.

For the next seven years he practiced law in Cincinnati. Then he came to this city and was United States District Attorney for the Southern District of New York from 1898 to 1906.

BUENOS AIRES BANK ROBBED

National City's Branch Said to Have Lost $40,000.

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 17.—It is reported here that the local branch of the National City Bank of New York has been robbed of a large sum of money. The police say that $40,000 was taken. There is no clue to the robbers.

W. A. Simonson, Vice President of the National City Bank, said last night that the bank had received a message saying there was a difference in the cash of the Buenos Aires branch of 20,000 pesos. He said he had not heard that the bank was robbed.

PLAN OVERTURN IN P. S. BOARD

tween himself and John C. McCall. The profits in this matter amounted to $2,014.30."

Merton E. Lewis, counsel to the committee, said that in justice to Mr. McCall, he wanted it on the records that Mr. McCall disposed of this eighty-five shares of stock before he became Chairman of the Public Service Commission.

"I do not care to have the committee decide the ownership of this stock," Senator Thompson reminded Mr. Lewis.

Although this completes the committee's information regarding Mr. McCall's stock transactions, the committee's interest was revived in Mr. McCall's testimony under oath, given on Nov. 5, Senator Thompson, the Chairman, asked him in reference to the 387 shares of Kings County Company stock carried in the name of Mackin, his court attendant:

"Have you had any stock in any of these corporations in any other name except Mackin's?"

"Those are the only shares of stock I held," replied Mr. McCall.

"Were all of your holdings in the name of Mackin?" asked Mr. Lewis.

"Yes," was McCall's answer.

Swore 387 Was All He Had.

A day or two later Senator Thompson asked the Chairman this question:

"I think you testified the other day that this was the only stock you held?"

"Yes," replied the witness.

Yesterday the committee went again into Chairman McCall's use of the Public Service Commission's automobiles. The auto matter was testified to at length before the committee last Spring. It was brought out yesterday that since that time Chairman McCall has had the plate with the letters "P. S. C." taken off the automobile he used, so that it has the appearance of a private car, and that he discontinued the use of the chauffeur's cards showing the individual trips taken, so that the only record of trips in existence at present is the flat mileage statement.

"How many automobiles have the Public Service Commission?" Mr. Lewis asked Travis H. Whitney, Secretary of the commission.

"Five automobiles, three Fords, and one truck," replied Mr. Whitney.

The car used by Chairman McCall is a Locomobile, and was purchased on May 5, 1913, for $4,907.60. It cost to operate it from that time until last June $7,036.16, including chauffeur's salary. Up to last June it traveled 30,534 miles, an average of forty miles a day. A Cadillac, the oldest car in the service of the Commission, was purchased three years ago for $2,390.70, and has cost $7,067.12. It is used by the commission's engineers in Brooklyn, and has traveled 24,946 miles.

The Chairman's car is kept at a private garage in Eighty-third Street and he lives in Eighty-sixth Street.

"Does forty miles a day indicate the extent that Chairman McCall used his car for business purposes?" asked Mr. Lewis.

"I cannot say," replied Mr. Whitney.

The committee, through Secretary Whitney and Commissioner William Hayward, brought out considerable evidence relating to gas and electric light cases now before the commission. The committee intends to go thoroughly into all these cases, and asked Secretary Whitney to prepare a record of the attendance of the various Commissioners at all the meetings held since the commission was organized, in the Hughes administration in 1907.

At the afternoon session Commissioner Hayward was questioned at length regarding the New York Edison rate case. The company, he said, filed a schedule of rates, and certain consumers objected to what were termed "discriminatory riders." Colonel Hayward said he decided all these riders were discriminatory, but his decisions were voted down by the whole commission. He also told how he had forced the Edison Company to substitute tungsten lights, which gave twice as much light at the same cost as did the gem lights.

The witness said when he first became Commissioner each member had a private secretary and a stenographer. He tried to have the duties of both combined, thereby saving money. He said he also endeavored to have the salaries of stenographers reduced from $1,500 a year to $1,200, but the other Commissioners refused to allow the change to be made.

Ex-Commissioner Milo R. Maltbie is expected to be a witness today.

BROKE WITH WINSOR ON MORGAN'S ORDER

STEAMERS SENT TO PACIFIC

Sale and Transfer of the Yale and the Harvard Taken Up in New Haven Trial.

A dispute between the late J. P. Morgan and Robert Winsor of Kidder, Peabody & Co. of Boston, which altered the policy of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, came up yesterday as Charles S. Mellen was testifying for the Government in the trial in the Federal District Court before Judge Hunt of eleven ex-Directors of the New Haven for conspiring to break the Sherman law. Mr. Mellen had actually formed a written agreement for co-operation with Mr. Winsor, who was the power in the Boston Elevated Railroad, but when Mr. Morgan heard of it he frowned upon it, and Mr. Mellen had to write to Mr. Winsor and tell him it was all off.

Mr. Winsor was interested in the construction of a trolley line to be known as the Providence and Boston Interurban, which would invade the most sacred territory of the New Haven. The railway was never constructed.

Mr. Mellen explained that the agreement had been reduced to writing and a copy of it given to Mr. Choate, who is now one of the counsel for the defense. Its main points, he said, were that he was not to oppose the proposed trolley line as long as it did not infringe on the interests of the New Haven; that Mr. Winsor was to give the New Haven the option of buying one-half the stock of the new company; that Mr. Mellen would oppose the buying up by the new company of any trolley lines east of Worcester and north of Providence, and that Mr. Mellen and Mr. Winsor were to work together in legislative matters.

Frowned On by Morgan.

Mr. Mellen discovered, when he told Mr. Morgan about the agreement, that it did not suit him. Mr. Winsor was not in good standing with him and he would not agree to it. So on June 4, 1912, Mr. Mellen wrote to Mr. Winsor to tell him that he could not live up to the agreement, so it must be canceled.

"I found myself," Mr. Mellen testified, "unable to carry out the bargain, and so our harmonious relations were made impossible by Mr. Morgan."

When he was asked if he could explain the break between Mr. Morgan and Mr. Winsor, Mr. Mellen refused to reply on the ground that it had nothing to do with the New Haven. It was pointed out afterward by the Government that they considered this episode important, as it showed an agreement contrary to the Sherman law, and that it continued within the period covered by the indictment.

Before Mr. Mellen took the stand the Government called Harry W. Goodall, President of the Pacific Navigation Company, who had come from San Francisco to describe how the Yale and the Harvard, steamboats, disappeared from the New England trade.

The two steamers were built by the old Metropolitan Steamship Company while it was under Charles W. Morse, and were the fastest and finest coastwise craft on the Atlantic. In 1907, when the Metropolitan got into difficulties, the question of the use to be made of these vessels became pressing. Captain Goodall was asked about the negotiations at that time and said:

"I wanted to sell the Metropolitan Steamship Company's property to the New Haven, but I wanted to take the Harvard and Yale to the Pacific Coast. Mr. Mellen, however, would have nothing to do with the proposition, and said the New Haven did not want to touch any of the Morse property."

Asked to explain if he had control of the Metropolitan Steamship Company at that time Captain Goodall said that he had merely a tentative agreement with Mr. Morse, which enabled him to sell the property if the New Haven was willing to buy.

Sent Around Cape Horn.

In 1907 Captain Goodall failed in his arrangements, but he was more successful in 1910. The New Haven then took over the Metropolitan Steamship Company of New Jersey, which had bought up the old concern, and in December of that year it placed a second mortgage on the Yale and the Harvard for $750,000 and turned them over to the Pacific Corporation, a company it had formed. The ships were leased to the Pacific Navigation Company, which took them around Cape Horn and put them in service between San Francisco and San Diego.

The Pacific Navigation Company guaranteed a monthly rental of $32,960 for the boats, and it cost $250,000 to sail them around to the Pacific.

Charles F. Choate, who cross-examined Captain Goodall, tried to show that the use of the steamers in the West was the outcome of ordinary business reasons. The witness said they had made about $395,000 a year, or $1,900,000 since they had been taken around the Horn. They were certainly not making money on the New England coast, Captain Goodall testified.

"What, in your opinion, was the reason of that?" asked Mr. Choate.

"Well, in these waters they actually made money for only three months in Summer and broke about even the other two. They were laid up for seven months, and that meant heavy overhead charges. On the coast we use them all the year round, and that makes a big difference. Moreover, they burn about 1,000 barrels of oil a day, and as we get it at 67 cents a barrel to the 81 cents paid here, that is another important factor. Then we can charge $10 a trip from San Francisco to San Diego, while the fare from New York to Boston was only $3.85, and the Metropolitan was hesitating about raising that to $4."

For most of the afternoon other trolley purchases by the New Haven occupied the attention of the Court. Of these the most important were the purchases of the network of trolleys in the western part of Connecticut, which it acquired from the United Gas Interests of Philadelphia.

Rhode Island Trolleys.

At the same time the New Haven took over the Rhode Island trolleys through the Rhode Island Securities Company. These at Providence and other points connected with the steamboat lines and, so it is contended by the Government, supplied the means by which the Joy Line and the Enterprise Line could compete effectively with the New Haven to interior points. Consequently the capture of these lines restricted competition.

In a letter written by Mr. Mellen to William Rockefeller on Nov. 22, 1906, the former expressed his reasons for taking over these trolley systems. For the Connecticut lines in 1907 the New Haven would pay a rent of $975,000, which would gradually increase until it reached its maximum in 1915 at $1,400,000. Assuming a steady increase of 5 per cent. annually in earnings, he thought there would be a profit. On the Rhode Island trolleys there would be a deficit, but this, Mr. Mellen explained, would not fall on the New Haven.

A company was to be organized to take over the stock and indebtedness of the Rhode Island Securities Company and pay for them by $20,000,000 of 4 per cent. debenture bonds guaranteed by the New Haven. The New Haven would hold the common stock of this new concern, and $1,200,000 would be collected for its treasury by assessing the stock of the Rhode Island Securities Company at $10 a share. From this $1,200,000 the deficit would be paid until traffic had increased sufficiently to wipe it out.

Mr. Mellen in his letter went on to discuss the trolley deal as it affected the New Haven. He said:

> As I expressed to you, it is a hard trade, but from my standpoint and that of the other Directors, rather a necessary one, and one, if we fail to make it, that will probably cost us considerably more money in the end.
> I wish I were a better trader, but the parties who hold these properties are very strong financially, and are able to exact their terms, and our position is one that they understand fully and are disposed to take advantage of.
> We have a tremendous investment about Providence. It has suffered seriously in the past through the actions of the traction interests there, and it looks to be much more serious in the immediate future, if the control of these properties is not secured.

The trial will continue this morning. There will be no session tomorrow on account of the funeral of the mother of James H. Carton, juror No. 7, who died suddenly on Tuesday.

WALT WHITMAN HOME SOLD.

HUNTINGTON, L. I., Nov. 17.—The old Walt Whitman home, the birthplace of the poet, was sold under foreclosure proceedings this afternoon to G. J. Powell of Glen Head for $225 an acre. The farm consists of ninety-four acres and is situated in the West Hills section of this place.

The present occupant is Frank Rogers. Rogers failed to meet a note, and the bank, with other creditors, forced the sale of the property. Long before Theodore L. Archer, the auctioneer, arrived at the place there were many automobiles lined up on the roadway. When it came time for the sale there were about 1,000 persons on hand, but bidders were scarce. Powell refused to say whether he was acting for himself, for the creditors or for Rogers.

OFFICIALS SUSPECT BLOW AT WILLIAMS

Proposal to Abolish Controller of Currency Not Impersonal, It Is Held at Treasury.

SEE GLOVER'S HAND IN IT

Federal Reserve Council Would Limit Interlocking Directorates —Other Recommendations.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The action of the Advisory Council yesterday in recommending to the Federal Reserve Board the abolishment of the office of Controller of the Currency as no longer necessary was interpreted today as another chapter in the combat between John Skelton Williams, the present Controller, and C. C. Glover, President of the Riggs National Bank, and the officers of that bank associated with him in the suit brought against Mr. Williams, Secretary McAdoo and John Burke, Treasurer of the United States, to enjoin the Controller from continuing alleged persecution of the bank and to enjoin the Controller and the Treasurer from withholding $5,000 assessed as a fine against the Riggs bank for refusing to make certain reports required by the Controller.

It was stated by Treasury officials that Mr. Glover had been active in urging members of the Advisory Council to adopt the resolution proposing the abolishment of the office that Mr. Williams holds.

After its meeting yesterday the Advisory Council, which is composed of bankers, went in a body before the Federal Reserve Board to submit its recommendations. All members of the Reserve Board were present except Secretary McAdoo. It was said today by an official who was present that Controller Williams asked the members of the council not to be at all embarrassed by his presence as an ex-officio member of the board. When the recommendations had been read Mr. Williams observed that possibly the real recommendation of the council was intended to be the abolishment of the person who at this time held the office of Controller of the Currency.

The Reserve Board took no action on the recommendations. Treasury officials professed to believe that there was no likelihood that they would emerge into official light very soon. It is understood that when the proposal to abolish the office of Controller came up in the meeting of the Advisory Council it was discussed entirely on an impersonal basis.

Recommendations by Council.

The Reserve Board today made a statement listing the recommendations made by the Advisory Council as follows:

1. That the work of the office of Controller of the Currency be absorbed and administered by the Federal Reserve Board.

2. That Section 24 of the Federal Reserve act, relating to loans on farm lands, be amended to read:

> Any national banking association not situated in a central reserve city may make loans secured by improved and unencumbered farm lands situated within its Federal Reserve district, or in an adjoining district, provided the land on which the loan is made is within 100 miles from the office of the bank making the loan.

3. A reduction of two-thirds of the present paid-in capital of the Federal Reserve banks, leaving the subscribed capital and double liability as now constituted.

4. That the Federal anti-trust act be amended so that the second paragraph of Section 8 will read as follows:

> No bank, banking association, or trust company, organized or operating under the laws of the United States in any city or incorporated town or village of more than 200,000 inhabitants, as shown by the last preceding decennial census of the United States, shall have as Director or other officer or employe any person who may be connected in either of these official capacities with more than one other bank, banking association, or trust company located in the same place.
>
> Provided, that nothing in this section shall apply to mutual savings banks not having a capital stock represented by shares.
>
> Provided, further, that a Director or other officers or other employe of such bank, banking association, or trust company may, besides being an officer or Director in one other bank, be a Director or other officer or employe of not more than one additional bank or trust company organized under the laws of the United States or any State, where the entire capital stock of one is owned by stockholders in the other.
> And provided, further, that nothing contained in this section shall forbid a Director of Class A of a Federal Reserve Bank, as defined in the Federal Reserve act, from being an officer or Director, or both an officer and Director, in one member bank.

5. That the Anti-Trust act be so amended as to permit joint stock ownership by national banks of banks organized to do business in foreign countries through branches established therein.

6. That the National Bank act be amended to permit the establishment by national banks having an unimpaired capital of not less than $1,000,000 of branches, provided that no branches are placed outside of the limits of the city where the bank itself is located.

The Council resolved that it "is unalterably opposed to any provision whereby farm loan bonds described in the Hollis Bill may become security for loans from Federal Reserve banks and to their being made a basis for acceptances by member banks."

It was learned today that members of the Reserve Board were not at all friendly to the recommendation of an amendment to the Anti-Trust law in regard to interlocking directorates, nor was there much comment on the Council's criticism of the Hollis Rural Credits Bill, which, by the action of the House Committee on Banking and Currency, was adopted in a compromise form at the close of the late session of Congress.

MITCHEL WILL BE OUT IN ABOUT TWO WEEKS

Mayor Then to Spend a Fortnight Out of Town Before Returning to His Office.

If the hopes of the surgeons attending Mayor Mitchel are realized he will leave the Roosevelt Hospital in about two weeks and spend two weeks more out of the city in recuperation before returning to his office. The last bulletin was issued at 11 P. M., following three others of equally optimistic nature. It read:

> Mayor Mitchel continues to progress favorably in every respect. Temperature 100, pulse 80, respiration 20.
> WOODRUFF LAW POST, M. D.

The earlier bulletins, each signed by two surgeons, were:

> At 8 A. M.:
> Mayor Mitchel's condition continues favorable. He passed a comfortable night, sleeping quietly the greater part of the time, and his general condition is excellent. His temperature is 98.8, pulse 80, respiration 20.
> At 12:30 P. M.:
> Mayor Mitchel continues to improve. His condition is very satisfactory. His temperature, pulse, and respiration are normal.
> At 5 P. M.:
> Mayor Mitchel has been resting comfortably all afternoon and is very cheerful. He is doing better than the average case on the second day. His temperature, pulse, and respiration are normal.

The Mayor took nourishment yesterday for the first time since his operation on Monday afternoon, his food being broth and tea. Mrs. Mitchel left the hospital in the afternoon, for the first time since the operation, for a short walk.

Flowers from many persons and organizations were sent to the hospital for the Mayor. There were so many bouquets that all could not be put in the rooms occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Mitchel, so at the direction of Mrs. Mitchel some of them were sent to the charity wards. No one except members of his family was allowed to see the Mayor.

Among the many telegrams received was one from Colonel and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt. It was addressed to Mrs. Mitchel, and read:

> We are greatly concerned over the operation on your husband. We hope everything goes well. Pray accept our sincere sympathy.

Among those who left cards at the hospital were Mr. and Mrs. August Belmont, Dr. Abraham Jacobi, Colonel E. M. House, Magistrate McQuade, Alderman John McCann, E. G. Gallagher, Katharine B. Davis, Commissioner of Correction; George V. Mullan, the Mayor's former law partner; Frank Polk, counsel to the State Department and formerly Corporation Counsel; Seth Low, Thomas M. Mulry, Louis Heaton Pink, Magistrate Peter Barlow, David Ferguson, George Cormack, Secretary of the New York Yacht Club; Edward E. McCall, Chairman of the Public Service Commission; Harry Kieth, Internal Revenue Collector; John A. Wilbur, on behalf of the Harlem Board of Commerce; James T. Holle, on behalf of the Manufacturers' and Business Men's Association, and John A. Kingsbury, Commissioner of Charities.

Charles Sidenberg, who is connected with G. Sidenberg & Co., importers of laces at 114 Fifth Avenue, and whose home is at 43 West Seventy-sixth Street, called at the West Sixty-eighth Street Police Station last evening and inquired excitedly if a suitcase had been found and turned in at the station. When told that none had been turned in he asked the police to start a search at once for one belonging to his daughter that had dropped from a taxicab in Central Park West. It contained $5,000 worth of jewelry, he said.

Mr. Sidenberg said he and his wife, who accompanied him, had taken their daughter, Mrs. J. Baer, from their home to the Pennsylvania Station, where she took a train for her home in Pittsburgh. It was about 8:15 o'clock when they left their home and they had reached Sixty-fifth Street, in Central Park West, when Mr. Sidenberg thought he heard the suitcase tumble from the car where it had been resting beside the driver. He called to the chauffeur, who stopped; but, though the suitcase was gone, it had already disappeared from the roadway behind them and they saw no trace of it, though they retraced their route to the house.

Mr. Sidenberg said his daughter had had to hurry on to her train, but that he would offer a reward for the return of the case. Among the jewelry it held were a pearl collar, a gold bag, a diamond horseshoe pin, a diamond bar pin, two pearl studs, a pearl pin, a jewel case, two gold watches, two gold baby pins, and some smaller articles that Mr. Sidenberg couldn't remember.

Auto Speeder Goes to Jail.

Fred Halloran of 28 West Twenty-sixth Street, who runs a moving-picture show, fell a victim to the campaign waged by Magistrates in Queens against automobile speeders and yesterday he was fined $25 by Magistrate Fitch in the Long Island City Police Court. As he said he had no money to pay the fine he was sent to jail for two days.

REPUBLICANS PLAN LEGISLATIVE WORK

CARVE SENATE DISTRICTS

Investigators' Recommendations Will Add to Partisan Debate—Long Session Predicted.

With their work in the Constitutional Convention rejected at the polls by the most decisive adverse majority in the history of the State, the Republican leaders have determined to make a new Constitution piecemeal through the medium of successive Republican Legislatures. The object of this plan is to remove any valid ground for holding a new constitutional convention in 1918.

The Republicans think if the question of calling a new constitutional convention is submitted at the Presidential election next year and is answered in the affirmative, the Democrats would have the advantage in the election of the delegates in 1917. Republican leaders admit that the action taken by Chairman Tanner in calling the State Committee together to put the party organization on record in favor of the revised Constitution was a fatal error which had a great deal to do with the crushing defeat it suffered at the polls.

It is more than likely that half a dozen important proposals, which were rejected at the polls, will be put through the Republican Senate and Assembly this Winter. They will appear in a different form, however. Senate Leader Elon R. Brown is said to be at work formulating some of the proposed amendments. It is predicted that when he is through with them, the features which aroused such antagonism from the out and out organization men in the constitutional convention will have been eliminated.

Three Important Changes.

So far, it is understood, only three proposals have been put in shape for submission to the Legislature. One is the proposal providing for the reorganization of the State Administration. The "short ballot" feature which the Constitutional Convention adopted in a modified form will be lacking. All the present elective State officials would remain elective. The plan for the grouping of departmental functions will not be the rigid plan that was adopted by the Constitutional Convention and which would have left the Legislature powerless to increase the number of State departments, but will be far more plastic. It was said, too, that the Senate would be left in undisturbed possession of the powers of confirmation which it now holds.

Another proposal provides for the substitution of serial bonds for the present fifty-year bonds. The third proposal would do away with the much abused, so-called "emergency message." Complaint is made that it has served as a vehicle for hasty, ill-advised, or vicious legislation in the rush hours at the close of legislative sessions.

The leaders are having under consideration reforms in budget making. It is not at all likely that the changes proposed will be as radical as those adopted by the Constitutional Convention. Governor Whitman, it is understood, will send a special message to the Legislature in which budget reforms will be recommended, but whether the changes proposed by him will be fundamental so as to require a Constitutional amendment before they can be made effective, the leaders have not as yet learned.

Will be Late Adjournment.

The extensive and exacting program mapped out for this Winter's Legislature by the Governor and the leaders may possibly interfere with the plan of an early adjournment, invariably followed in Presidential years, when primaries are held in the Spring as well as in the Fall. In 1912 the session came to a close in the middle of April. Next year it is likely to last much longer, even with every known device for speeding up legislative procedure applied from the start.

Under the Constitution the Legislature this Winter must undertake the reapportionment of Senate districts. This process always provokes a bitter and prolonged fight along partisan lines. As the Republicans will have thirty-four members out of fifty-one in the Senate and ninety-seven out of 150 places in the Assembly, it is not to be expected that they will be satisfied with any half way measures, but will proceed to carve out districts to suit themselves, especially in this city. Incidentally, under the enumeration made this year, the city will be entitled to an additional Senator. Brooklyn will get him. It has eight Senators now.

SEND DINNER ROSES TO ANDREW CARNEGIE

McAneny Lauded at Mechanics and Tradesmen's 130th Anniversary.

Two hundred members celebrated the one hundred and thirtieth anniversary of the General Society of Mechanics and Tradesmen at the Founders' Day dinner last night at Delmonico's. A letter from Mayor Mitchel, evidently written several days before his operation for appendicitis, was read, in which he expressed regrets at not being able to attend "owing to a previous engagement." President McAneny of the Board of Aldermen said he would supplement the Mayor's regrets by stating that he had just left the hospital, where the doctors reported that Mayor Mitchel was making a favorable normal recovery. The announcement was greeted with hearty applause.

A letter of regrets was also read from Andrew Carnegie, who gave the society $500,000 several years ago. Secretary Richard T. Davies said the congratulations of the members had just been sent to Mr. Carnegie in honor of his eightieth birthday on Friday, and a bunch of American Beauty roses from the speakers' table had been sent to his home.

President Charles J. Richter in his opening address referred to the gift of $1,800,000 just left to the society by the late Amos F. Eno, and said its proper administration was receiving the serious attention of the officers.

Job E. Hedges, who followed Mr. McAneny, said he believed Mr. McAneny was the best informed man in the world on municipal government.

"The city is about to lose a splendid public official," added Mr. Hedges, "but I hope that Mr. McAneny will remain in newspaper work for the rest of his life, for I know that if he ever runs for public office again he will be an awful nuisance to the Republican Party."

On the subject of preparedness Mr. Hedges said:

"The man who has done most to bring our people to a sense of the necessity for preparedness is Mr. Bryan, because he has said we shouldn't do it. Whatever may be spent, whether one hundred millions or a billion dollars, is not of so much importance to my mind as the fact that we, as citizens, should know what we are preparing for and the best way to do it. Politics have been conducted too much on the principle of not doing things. We need to change this attitude to one of affirmation and get well defined views on the need of doing certain important things."

Other speakers were the Rev. Dr. Charles P. Pagnani and ex-State Superintendent of Elections, John R. Voorhis, the oldest living ex-President of the society.

MRS. ROGERS A DEFENDANT.

SUFFERN, Nov. 17.—Mrs. Ida Sniffen Walters Rogers, who was indicted in the Bronx for slaying her two children, was a co-defendant before Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins in Nyack on Saturday, in an action over property at Viola, Rockland County, near this village, which her husband, Lorlis Elton Rogers holds.

The action was brought by Mrs. Charlotte Verdin, who sold the property to Rogers, to force him to reconvey it. The action originally was entered against Rogers and his former wife, Caroline Giddings Rogers. Judge McCauley, counsel for the plaintiff, amended the papers and brought in Rogers's new wife as a co-defendant. She has filed a memorandum opposing the plaintiff's motion to vacate the defendant's answer to the suit.

BEGINS CARE AT THEIR BIRTH

War Prompted Europe to Preserve Its Children, but in America the Work Is Altruistic.

Dr. Josephine Baker, Director of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the Board of Health, told inside facts about her work at a conference on "What the City Does for the Child and What the City Should Do" at the Free Synagogue House, 36 West 68th Street, yesterday afternoon.

The health of the babies of the city has been improved so greatly within the last two years, Dr. Baker told her audience, that the young doctors in the hospitals are complaining that they have no practice and have begged to have the city milk stations connected with the hospitals on the chance that a sick baby may be brought in once in a while. Speaking of milk stations and the educational work done through them, Dr. Baker laid emphasis on the assertion that no cow's milk was proper food for a baby.

"The value of milk in preserving the health of the children is greatly overestimated," said Dr. Baker. "Cows' milk is not the proper food for a baby. The only proper kind is that of the mothers, and the greater number of babies who come to us are fed by mothers' milk."

She said the work undertaken by the health boards in this country was altruistic, while abroad the care of the health of the children, which began several years in advance of ours, was purely a business arrangement and a war measure.

"It was the fear of war that started the work in France," said Dr. Baker. "I will not say that there was not some philanthropy in it, but the French authorities were shocked by the decreasing birthrate and realized that there must be children to fill the ranks of an army. Their work for the child was begun as a result of that fact. It was the same in Germany, and after the Boer war England turned her attention to her children for the same reason. There were so many men who could not measure up to the military requirements at the time of that war that at its close the English made a study of the children in the schools and found their condition so bad that they immediately started corrective work."

"Corrective work belongs to the hospitals," said Dr. Baker, "and we begin when the child is born. As soon as the birth certificate is turned in a trained nurse is sent to look after it. We have 60,000 babies a year under our direction, and they are as well cared for as any children in private practice. We have reduced the death rate to 95 babies out of every thousand. New York City has the lowest mortality rate in the State and the lowest of the biggest ten cities of the country."

WAR REALISM AT GARDEN.

Several mishaps marked the program of the Military Show at Madison Square Garden last night. When the six three-inch field guns of Battery E, First Field Artillery, swept into the arena early in the evening a caisson crashed into the stanchions supporting Box V, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. John B. Powers of 789 Monroe Street, Brooklyn. A young woman in an adjoining box fainted, but the occupants of the Powers's box were uninjured.

When the bridge-blowing-up number was reached Captain Woodward of the Engineering Corps gave the order to fire just as two men of his corps walked toward the mine. They were thrown to the ground by the force of the explosion. The same explosion blew out several windows on the Twenty-seventh Street side of the building.

The largest crowd since the opening of the show saw the evolutions. Rear Admiral Usher, Commandant of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, was the guest of the evening and occupied the reviewing box. The drill of the United States Marine Corps so pleased Admiral Usher that he invited Captain Frank J. Kilgore of the marines to the reviewing box and congratulated him.

Tomorrow night Governor Whitman and Major General Leonard Wood, commanding the Department of the East, will be present.

HIT FOR ABUSING KAISER.

Park Row Debater Has His Curbstone Adversary Arrested.

Whether the Kaiser is too great a man to be called bad names in public was the question which Magistrate Marsh in the Tombs Court had to decide yesterday. Clarende D. Farley and Jacob Cohn, curbstone debaters, tried to settle the issues of the war with their fists in Park Row. Cohn delivered the telling blow in behalf of the Central Powers and Farley had him arrested.

In the Tombs Court Cohn insisted that Farley ought not to be permitted to abuse the Kaiser. Farley contended that Cohn kept pushing into his face a handbill advertising a meeting of the American Truth Society to which all Americans were invited to hear how they were "being sold into bondage."

Deputy Assistant District Attorney Manice, who appeared to prosecute Cohn on Farley's complaint, thought neither of the men had been exactly neutral. Magistrate Marsh discharged Cohn.

DEVICE TO ROB FOG OF TERRORS AT SEA

Dr. A. G. Webster Demonstrates the Phonometer Before the Academy of Sciences.

LIGHT REGISTERS SOUNDS

Navigators before long may find fog robbed of its terrors through a device invented by Dr. A. G. Webster for showing the direction of signals, which he demonstrated yesterday at the final Autumn session of the National Academy of Sciences held in the American Museum of Natural History. The apparatus, which he calls a phonometer, translates the intensity of sound into terms of light, so that, as the inventor expressed it, the deaf may see what they cannot hear.

Dr. Webster is connected with Clark University at Worcester, Mass. Impressed with the loss of the steamship Empress of Ireland in 1914, he went to Father Point on the St. Lawrence, where the vessel was sunk in collision and twelve hundred perished, and there made the experiments on which his invention is based.

In a thick fog, when two vessels are approaching each other, he said, it is often impossible for the Captains to tell within forty-five degrees the direction of the sounds from horns. In the St. Lawrence disaster the masters of both vessels should have stopped, in his opinion, in view of the uncertainty of determining the direction of signals in fog.

"Phone" Catches Vibrations.

First, Professor Webster showed a resonator or "phone" which took up the vibrations of a tuning fork and emitted a sound of standard pitch. This instrument took the place of a regular fog signal. The receiving instrument, or phonometer, looked like a small round box on a tripod and from each end of the box projected a conical horn resembling a megaphone. The small ends of the horns were turned toward each other.

The device is placed so that the horns are at right angles with the course of the vessel on which it is installed. The vibration caused by the signal is concentrated by the horns and communicated to a metal diaphragm, which is held in place by small steel wires. The pulsation goes to a tiny electric light, and the effect upon it is registered by the reflections of a mirror on a scale which can be read through a glass attached to the instrument. The scale shows the intensity of the sound as the image of the light widens or contracts. The horns swing easily upon a pivot and when they have been so adjusted by the operator that they show the greatest intensity, a tube of the instrument is pointing in the direction from which the signal is being sounded.

With the phonometer, although it is not absolutely accurate in its present stage, Dr. Webster declares that the direction can be determined within a very few degrees. Experts who witnessed the demonstration said that if the device could show within five or ten degrees it would be of incalculable value.

Variation of Fog Horns.

Dr. Webster himself saw a practical objection to the device in that to have it of universal use the navigation laws would have to be changed so as to prescribe that all fog horns and sirens be of the same pitch. As at present the actual variation of horns is within an octave or an octave and a half, he does not regard this objection as insuperable. He thinks that the Government of the United States would be well within its rights in standardizing fog horns. It would be too much to expect the masters of vessels to tune up their phonometers to correspond with the timbre of every new siren. In connection with wireless messages, it is believed, that the phonometer would be of value, for ships approaching each other could communicate details about the fog horns employed as a further guide.

Dr. George F. Becker gave his ingenious theory of the origin of spiral nebulae. Professor Henry Fairfield Osborn spoke of the extremes in adaption of the dinosaurs and other prehistoric monsters of which the museum has several newly mounted specimens.

The academy on its adjournment inspected the New York Zoological Park and the Botanical Garden, to which the members went in automobiles as guests of the local academicians.

SUFFRAGE TEST FOR COURT.

Supreme Court Justice Ford announced yesterday that he was not unfitted to try the suit of Herbert Parsons against Mrs. Harriot Stanton Blatch, President of the Women's Political Union, for $2,400 for rent, because if he had any feeling at all in the matter he was in favor of woman suffrage. Certainly he was not opposed to it.

Thereupon the trial began with the calling of talesmen. Each was asked if he was for or against woman suffrage, and each replied according to his lights. The result was that a jury divided pretty evenly on the question will sit in judgment upon the case.

Mr. Parsons complained that he rented headquarters to the union in Forty-second Street near Fifth Avenue in September, 1913, for one year, that the union moved out in the following February, owing him rent for the remainder of the year. He tried to collect, but failed, the defendants alleging that the premises were not habitable because of lack of heat. In fact, the members of the union said they were frozen out, that sometimes the temperature was as low as three above zero, that when a scrubwoman tried to clean the floors the water froze before she could mop it up, that the employes—some of whom were not suffragists, either—had to work in furs, and that there was no comfort, and that all were threatened with illness.

To prove that they were really forced to vacate the premises it was pointed out that the headquarters were admirably situated, because the show windows were splendidly adapted for the display of banners and mottoes. Now the union is on an upper floor of a building where there is plenty of heat, but barren of any opportunity of displaying appeals to the voters.

The union is not incorporated, so that Mrs. Blatch can be sued individually, and if she loses she must pay. She was chosen because she heads the organization.

HEARS SCANDAL IN SECRET.

Surrogate Bars Reporters in Case of Mrs. Frank Leslie's Will.

Surrogate Fowler yesterday heard in his private chambers arguments on a motion to strike out scandalous matter in the proceeding brought by Arthur Leslie in his effort to have the decree of probate vacated on the will of his aunt, Mrs. Frank Leslie.

The Surrogate refused admittance to the press representatives because of the legal rule governing in matters of "moral turpitude."

James H. Westcott of 40 Wall Street represented the nephew, and Horace E. Parker of 100 Broadway represented Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, the residuary legatee, who is to receive about $1,700,000 to be devoted to the cause of woman suffrage. Decision was reserved.

DR. WASHINGTON BURIED.

Plantation Melodies Sung as Part of Funeral Service.

TUSKEGEE, Ala., Nov. 17.—Simplicity marked the funeral of Booker T. Washington, the negro educator, race leader, and author, which took place this morning at Tuskegee Institute, which he made famous and which has taken such an important part in the elevation of the negro race. Fully 8,000 persons came to Tuskegee to pay their last respects to Dr. Washington, only 2,500 of whom could get into the chapel.

A procession formed in front of the administration building and marched to the chapel. It was headed by the Board of Trustees, and included William G. Willcox of New York, W. W. Campbell and Charles W. Hare, Tuskegee; A. J. Wilborn, William J. Schieffelin, New York; Belton Gilreath, Birmingham, Ala.; Frank Trumbull, New York; Warren Logan, Tuskegee Institute; Victor H. Tulane, Montgomery, Ala., and William H. Baldwin, 3d, New York. Members of the Faculty, the Executive Council of the school, and distinguished visitors, educators, and students followed.

The simple Episcopal burial service was read and many old plantation songs which Dr. Washington loved so well were sung.

A few of the thousands of telegrams of condolence from all parts of the country were read. Prominent men from all walks of life, whites as well as negroes, attended the services. Burial was in the institute grounds.

HILLSTROM PLEA BY WILSON

President Again Asks Utah's Governor to Delay Execution.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—President Wilson today urged Governor Spry of Utah to reconsider the case of Joseph Hillstrom, a Swedish citizen, sentenced to death next Friday for murder. The President sent to Governor Spry the following telegram:

"With unaffected hesitation, but with a very earnest conviction of the importance of the case, I again venture to urge upon your Excellency the justice and advisability of a thorough reconsideration of the case of Joseph Hillstrom."

Hillstrom is an I. W. W. worker, known as the "Hobo Poet," in whose behalf the President appealed to Governor Spry at the request of the Swedish Minister several weeks ago on the ground that Hillstrom had not had a fair trial. The prisoner was respited, but eventually resentenced.

A few days ago Mrs. J. S. Cram and Elizabeth Gurley Flynn of New York again urged the President to ask Governor Spry to intervene. The American Federation of Labor, in convention at San Francisco, asked clemency yesterday for Hillstrom.

SALT LAKE, Nov. 17.—Governor Spry would make no comment today regarding his attitude on the Hillstrom case. President Wilson's second intervention has caused much comment here. Hillstrom's execution has been deferred fifty days as a result of the President's first request, and it is said no new facts or reasons for clemency have been presented by Hillstrom's advocates. The case, it is said, cannot be taken into court again, as Hillstrom has exhausted all his legal rights.

LEAVES MILLION TO YALE.

J. S. Hotchkiss, New Haven Lumber Dealer, Bequeaths Half His Estate.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 17.—Approximately a million dollars is to go to Yale under the will of Justus S. Hotchkiss of this city, filed for probate today. The will disposes of an estate appraised at about $2,000,000. Mr. Hotchkiss was a retired lumber dealer.

Of the estate $700,000 goes to relatives and friends. Several public institutions receive gifts and when all are paid, Yale is to have the remainder, creating a fund, the income from which is to go equally to the academic, law and theological departments.

Five Independent Concerns in and About New York Combine as the Mutual Company.

Announcement was made yesterday of the formation of the Mutual Tobacco Company, a combination of five independent tobacco concerns in this city and vicinity. The new company will have a capital stock of $20,000,000, divided into shares of a par value of $10 each.

The organization was effected in the office of Benjamin Schwartz, 192 Broadway, attorney for the company. The following concerns figure in the merger: The Allen & Dunning Company, Paterson, N. J.; Campbell Tobacco Company, Newark; Mrs. G. B. Miller & Co. of this city; Hoffman & Co., Red Hook, N. Y., and Lane & Lockwood Company, Caldwell, N. J. These separate concerns manufacture cigars, smoking and chewing tobacco, and snuff.

William H. Dunning of the Allen & Dunning Company is President of the company. The other officers are James C. Tansy, Isaac L. Evans, William S. Massonneau, T. Star Dunning, and Henry S. Pfeil.

It was said yesterday that the Mutual Tobacco Company had plans to acquire other factories in the East. It is planned to launch a national campaign of advertising. Offices will be opened in this city.

It was said yesterday that the regulations of the Federal authorities, as laid down in the American Tobacco Company dissolution case, had been carefully considered. Representatives of the new company explained that their company could not be regarded in any sense as monopolizing any branch of the tobacco industry. They would seek to include other concerns on equal terms rather than exclude them, it was said. Also, there would be no change in business policy except in so far as the application of modern manufacturing and sales method was concerned.

A large amount of the stock was distributed to the concerns making up the new company, but some was reserved in the treasury. It is understood that there will be a public offering later and that application will be made to list the stock on one of the exchanges.

DRAW UP NEW SHIP BILL.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—A tentative draft of the new Government Ship Purchase bill which will be urged by the Administration in Congress was considered today at a conference at the Treasury Department. Secretary Redfield and Solicitor Thurman of the Department of Commerce went over the proposed measure with Secretary McAdoo.

It follows the lines suggested by Mr. McAdoo in a recent speech outlining the purposes of the Administration as to naval auxiliaries and the upbuilding of the merchant marine. Before the measure is put in final form it will be laid before President Wilson.

Mr. McAdoo's plan contemplates the expenditure of $50,000,000 by a Government shipping board consisting of the Secretary of the Navy, the Secretary of Commerce, and three other members to be nominated by the President. The board would be empowered to organize a corporation, to subscribe to its capital stock, and to vote the stock purchased in elections for directors. Through this corporation the board would maintain shipping lines, operating or leasing them to private concerns.

Secretary McAdoo also suggested that the board be authorized to reform shipping rules and regulations, study shipping problems and make recommendations to Congress looking toward the establishment of a strong merchant marine.

"Millions for Defense but not one cent for tribute"

The ringing words of Pinckney, more than a century ago, will be echoed in the 64th Congress which convenes in WASHINGTON in December.

Not since the Civil War has Congress been called upon for such vast appropriations as it will be this winter.

More than $500,000,000 will be asked for the Navy to be used in the next five years. Millions more for the Army and more millions for the Panama Canal and general preparedness.

It will be a busy winter in WASHINGTON!

The BALTIMORE & OHIO spent $100,000,000 in four years for the betterment of its lines, or $10,000 an hour for every working day of eight hours.

Lines were straightened, grades reduced, roadbed rebuilt, new ALL-STEEL EQUIPMENT FOR THROUGH PASSENGER TRAINS purchased, greatly increasing efficiency in service.

RUDYARD KIPLING WITH
FOR THE
New York American

His first article will be published in next SATURDAY'S AMERICAN. It tells of the great work of the little fishing boats—"the rovin' trawlers built for the herring trade."

They have cleared the British Channel of mines and submarines.

Rudyard Kipling has spent two weeks with the British Fleet. He is the only civilian that has ever seen the greatest navy in the world AT WORK IN WAR. He has also made a cruise on a British submarine.

Five of his unique war dispatches to the New York American will be preceded by NEW KIPLING POEMS.

The first article—published in next Saturday's American—has already been copyrighted in the United States, England, France, Italy and Russia, by Mr. Kipling.

The sole rights for the United States (and Canada) are vested in THE NEW YORK AMERICAN, which furnishes them to Mr. Hearst's other newspapers and to the INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE.

The New York American has the sole right to the entire war news of the London Times and London Daily Telegraph, and also has an exclusive arrangement with the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger and Le Matin, the two most widely circulated newspapers of Germany and France.

STRANGE NEWS FROM NEW JERSEY.

In discussion of Democratic candidates for Governor of New Jersey and for Senator in Congress from New Jersey there is something too much of talk about "the attitude of "the heavy German-American vote "in Newark and Jersey City." This or that person is suggested as likely to "appeal to" that vote. As a trial balloon the name of a man known for his pro-German sympathies has been offered to the public by some of the Democratic politicians. Would he be an acceptable nominee? And so on. In short, if we may trust Rivers Washington and Trenton dispatches, some Democratic sages of the Jerseys utterly misunderstand popular sentiment in their State and in every State.

If ever there was a time when every party and most citizens felt American unity and American patriotism, beyond distinction of birth or origin, unyoked to any hyphen, it is now; and the feeling is growing deeper and stronger every day. The murder of Americans on the seas, the attempts at home to ruin American industries, to make the torch and bomb missionaries of Frightfulness in a peaceful country guilty only of carrying on a legitimate business unsatisfactory to Germany and Austria; the burning of ships, the fomenting of strikes, a swarm of spies and conspirators banded against our industrial prosperity and waging an industrial war at the instigation of or for the advantage of two foreign countries; a foreign Ambassador sent home for his patronage of the shameful work; other diplomatic and consular representatives under grave suspicion of complicity in it; certain "German-Americans" boasting of their hand in defeating Democratic candidates supposed to be friendly to Mr. WILSON: the record of the injury and the insult done by Germans abroad and here to the United States is too long. Doubtless the number of "German-Americans" who uphold a foreign Government or agents and are disloyal to the United States is inconsiderable in proportion to their industry of tongue and pen; but any efforts of politicians to conciliate the "German-American" vote are doomed to disaster.

The sole "German-American" objection to Mr. WILSON's Administration is that it has been consistently American and neutral, not German. Are any Democratic politicians of the President's State possessed by the notion that he and his party will be strengthened there by seeking to curry favor with any part or element of the electorate that resents his policy of Americanism? A hundred dispatches will not make us believe it. It is possible enough that Governor FIELDER's successor, that Senator MARTINE's successor, will be a Republican. The Jersey Democrats can make that possibility a certainty by a reinjection of the hyphen, by putting America last instead of first.

GERMANY'S GREEK DEPUTY.

A part, at any rate, of the confused Greek situation is cleared up. It no longer bears the aspect merely of a country trying desperately to avoid war because of the dangers of whatever course of action it might take. It is a struggle between German diplomacy and the people of Greece. It is a struggle between a minority of the nation, headed by a King who is the German Emperor's brother-in-law, and the majority; and in that struggle the German diplomacy which works through the King is ready to go to any length in overturning the law of the land or suppressing popular sentiment for the sake of ranging Greece against the Allies. It is no longer to be said that the King is trying to avoid war; he is trying to avoid war on behalf of the Allies, but his policy is one which, if successful, must tend to bring Greece into the war on the German side, and seems to be designed for that purpose. It may be presumed that CONSTANTINE would declare war as a German ally today if he dared. But the people are against him, and his hands are not free. He is freeing them as rapidly as possible by unconstitutional and illegal methods. These methods may force Greece into the war on the side to which the majority of her people are opposed. Such is the aim of the German diplomacy of which CONSTANTINE is the tool.

CONSTANTINE is a Constitutional King. The people voted last June and elected a Venizelist Parliament. VENIZELOS was forced out and the Ministry now in office has no mandate. CONSTANTINE proposes to hold an election, but in the meantime he has mobilized his army, so that most of the voters cannot vote. The fragment of the population that is left is expected to return a Parliament which will do the King's will. Iron-handed and rough-shod, he rides over that of the people at orders from Berlin and Vienna. Significant of his temper and his ignoring of public opinion to the furthest possible extent consistent with safety is the fact that fifty Deputies who were mobilized asked that the date of their enrollment be postponed until the election; they were Venizelists, and the request was refused. There is a struggle between the King and the people of Greece; or, to be accurate, it is a struggle between the people of Greece and the directing forces at Berlin.

A BRAVE PEASANT NATION.

For between twelve and thirteen centuries the brave Serbian people have kept the spirit, if too often unable to maintain the form, of independence. To Byzantines, Bulgarians, Hungarians, Turks, they have submitted insubmissively and shaken off as they could. Assassination has been a too frequent incident of their dynasties. The people, simple, fierce, indomitable, no matter how often conquered, have always been admirable for valor and resolution; such they showed when, in the seventh century, they came down from north of the Carpathians and drove the Avars out of that old and barbarian-wasted Thracian country that was to be Serbia. Unnumbered woes they have seen in their secular adventurous history, the captivity of hundreds of thousands, the extermination of multitudes, famine, fire and sword, the Turk; and now something like a culmination of disasters at the hand of the allies of the Turk.

A country with no noble class, a country of free peasants, each tilling his little freehold farm. A country without great towns. Belgrade has, or had, only some 90,000 inhabitants, Nish less than 25,000. A country where, before the free hand was given to Austria by the Hohenzollern, poorhouses and paupers were unknown.

To these plucky peasants, making their last stand, goes, without violation of neutrality, the respect and sympathy due to brave men bound to be free, men "that know how to die."

THE CITY'S FUTURE.

Mr. SCHIFF is a banker, a member of a profession which requires imagination, foresight, and hard-headedness. That he possesses those qualities appears from the fact, stated by him at the "prosperity dinner" of the Fifth Avenue Association Tuesday night, that thirty years ago he chose wisely the place for his residence in this city, in a part of the town then almost uninhabited, Fifth Avenue above Seventy-fourth Street. In those days there were much more valuable parts of the same avenue, more convenient to his place of business in the financial district at the lower end of Manhattan, and with a far larger population. The reason for making the comparison is that he fears lest his section of the city should suffer the fate which has overtaken the southerly section of the avenue. That is a matter of imagination and foresight with him, but it is a sad reality, a demonstration regarding what was the choicest residential section of the city, and which was ruined as such for the lack of those qualities which give his words weight.

Lower Fifth Avenue was first ruined for residences and then impaired as a business centre because the city authorities allowed the construction of buildings unsuited for that district. Its character as the social centre of the city might have been preserved indefinitely, together with the retail centre dependent upon it and only a little distance away. The street frontages were what were valuable, and acres of floor space were allowed to be created in high buildings far above street travel. There was no need for such accommodations there. There being no demand, the space was crowded upon the market for the lowest bidder's acceptance. The streets became impassable at certain hours, with business and traffic useful and desirable in their place, but not on the Fifth Avenue of those days. Huge losses were taken by the unfortunate owners, who suffered for no fault of theirs but for the lack of the city planning for which Mr. SCHIFF makes so urgent a plea. Let the city take care lest there should be other similar experiences of the devastation of the unearned decrement, which plays no part in the philosophy of those who want to appropriate the unearned increment.

Mr. SCHIFF deprecates the exercise of authority in such affairs, but he strikes so new a note that its very difference from what is customarily heard commands attention. He lifts his voice for crosstown subways, especially at the Fifth Avenue crossings. For lack of them, he says that it takes from twenty to twenty-five minutes for vehicles to traverse the mile and a little more from Thirty-fourth to Fifty-ninth Street. That is intolerable for either horse or motor traffic. If that is not bettered, the high-class traffic of that sort will seek or make another residential and shopping centre, as already in some measure it has done, more to the satisfaction of itself than of the city. That would not be so easily done again, for there will not soon be another subway built, and it ought to be made unnecessary by wise regulation of building construction, as well as by provision of crossing facilities. Plans for the separation of grades at both Thirty-fourth and Forty-second Streets and Fifth Avenue have been proposed, but have hung fire for lack of such presentation as Mr. SCHIFF makes. Plans also have been considered for crosstown travel between Fifty-ninth and 110th Streets, the southerly and northerly limits of Central Park, which divides the city. There, if anywhere, a subway connection would seem to be easy, and comparatively cheap. Only financial reasons should delay construction. The H plan of the dual subway provides for only one crosstown connection, and there is need of another in the region named by Mr. SCHIFF. For that, also, there is a plan pending, but the city's finances are in no condition to stand the cost. Mr. SCHIFF foresees that in "fifty, or even twenty-five, years" New York will be a "tremendous town," with between nine and ten million inhabitants, and he is troubled about the street accommodation. Well he might be! His dream of a ten million town about 1940 or 1950 falls below the curve of population as drawn by engineers. It requires only continuance of past growth for New York to have 9,800,000 inhabitants in 1930 and 13,700,000 in 1940. Manhattan is not built for such multitudes. Already there are streets where walkers are crowded between the gutters, the sidewalks being unable to hold them. Another such street is in process of preparation when the subways are completed. The sewers cannot carry their wastes and the rivers cannot assimilate them in the way of nature. Those responsible for the city's future must be blind if they leave its development to such short-sighted seeking for private profit as that which has caused such ruinous shifts of value, making and unmaking entire regions.

The new danger differs from the old danger. Once it was impossible to get about town through the difficulty of crossing the waters which surround it. The rivers have been abolished as impediments to travel. The Public Service Commission has estimated a rapid transit accommodation in 1920 of 21,000,000,000—if anybody can appreciate the figures. There no longer is any mechanical obstruction to the growth of a city which will make London seem small. But it must be decentralized. Concentration, hitherto deemed a virtue, must be taken for a deadly sin. The city of five boroughs must be a city of fifty centres, all intercommunicating with the speed of electric travel. Hereafter the city must grow where it can—that is, where it is empty. No more should population be crowded upon population vertically. Southward there is a borough in which four wards contain half the area and one-eighth the population. Eastward there is another borough with the same surplus of land, the same deficiency of population. No forecast of the city's future is complete without an attempt to visualize those boroughs.

FRANCE IN 1870 AND IN 1915.

In the latest number of the Revue des Deux Mondes, M. ANDRE BEAUNIER reviews elaborately the seventeen volumes of EMILE OLLIVIER'S "The Liberal Empire." The unfortunate statesman whom LOUIS NAPOLEON chose to preside over the liberalization of his empire, in the vain hope of consolidating and perpetuating it, was Premier when France declared war on Prussia in the midsummer of 1870. On him the public opinion of his time and history since have placed the responsibility for the disaster in which that war resulted. His ponderous work is a desperate effort to rid himself of this responsibility, and to show that France was ready for the war and actually won victories which, had they been followed up, would have brought prompt and final success. Certainly the period treated is a tragic one for France, and it is intensely interesting to see how it is now regarded by a publicist so authoritative and so fervently patriotic as M. BEAUNIER.

The significant point in the extended and candid review is that the reviewer substantially accepts M. OLLIVIER'S apologies, and holds that not OLLIVIER, nor the Emperor, nor GRAMONT, the Minister for Foreign Affairs, was chiefly responsible for beginning the futile and humiliating struggle. The real author of that dreadful blunder was the public opinion of France. It was the voice of the French people, through all its organs of expression, and especially through the Chambers that determined, that forced the action of the Government. It is seldom that a conclusion so important regarding a matter so complex can be established by a single document of a few lines, but in this case it is possible. On July 10, 1870, the French Ambassador, M. BENEDETTI, was instructed to obtain from the King of Prussia "a decisive response" to the French demand for a guarantee that no Hohenzollern would seek the throne of Spain. GRAMONT explained his motive for haste:

> You cannot imagine to what degree public opinion is excited. It presses upon us from every side, and we are counting the hours. It is absolutely necessary to get a response from the King, affirmative or negative. We must have it by tomorrow; the next day will be too late.

On the 11th, BENEDETTI reluctantly, for he knew the peril of the situation, made his demand. The King naturally refused it. BISMARCK published his garbled and mendacious account of the interview and France entered on the war.

OLLIVIER announced in the Chamber of Deputies that he faced the war "with a light heart." In after years the phrase was quoted against him, very unfairly, but it cannot be denied that the French people of all parties and all classes did regard the adventure with hopeless levity and with a self-confidence which smacked of delusion. It is, as we have said, extremely significant that at this day when France has again entered upon a struggle with Germany, on a far greater scale and with wider consequences pending, a publicist so eminent as M. BEAUNIER should audibly recognize the popular responsibility for the tragic error of 1870. It throws a gleam of light upon the present temper of the French people. They recognize that it was their fathers who made the disastrous war of 1870, and that it is they who must atone for it. What the nation then was it must not now be; what then it was not it now must be. Light-hearted and light-minded passion of vanity must and does give way to stern, deliberate, steady resolution, bravado to firm courage, overconfidence to invincible patience. It is a momentous change and a noble one.

CURIOSITIES OF OPEN LITERATURE.

The American Tariff Reform League has sent an "open letter," rather curious in some respects, to Mr. WILLIAM F. MCCOMBS, Chairman of the National Democratic Committee. "War in the East; Peace in the West; Thank GOD for WILSON!" is the League's "campaign slogan." A little too fervent, too much in the King CAMBYSES vein to suit the taste of the modest gentleman in the White House, but let it pass. Attention will be given to a name or two in the League's roll of honor:

> The League is in entire accord with the foreign and domestic policy of the Wilson and Marshall Administration and commends the Cabinet, particularly Messrs. LANSING, MCADOO, GARRISON, DANIELS, and REDFIELD.

For Mr. LANSING and Mr. GARRISON everybody has respect and praise. Mr. DANIELS has of late shown an appreciation of his great duties that goes far to palliate or wipe out some earlier errors of taste and judgment that seemed almost temperamental. But why is the name of Secretary FRANKLIN K. LANE, one of the strongest members of the Cabinet, omitted from the list? And for what is the Secretary of Commerce particularly commended? Mr. MCADOO, too. Would the particular commenders of the Secretary of the Treasury make an enormous crowd? Light on the posies for Mr. REDFIELD is thrown by the fact that he is a member, we believe an officer, of the League. Is Mr. MCADOO?

The League is for preparedness, a fact which we commend to some of its members. We sympathize with its purpose and its spirit, but wonder a little at some vagaries of its "open letter" writer.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

His Decision Certainly Was Wrong.

Much discussion of a kind vastly more animated than useful is sure to follow the news from Chicago that a doctor in a hospital there, with the approval of nineteen out of twenty nurses and the consent of a new-born baby's mother, had decided not to perform on the child an operation that would save it from death only to survive a hopeless and helpless idiot.

The wisdom of such a decision can be maintained by arguments in themselves not without weight, for it is easy, and in some extreme cases, of which this may be one, it is fairly safe, to assume, that for individuals and for society it is better to decrease than to increase by one the almost crushing burden of "defectives" already carried. Such arguments all have a fatal weakness in their premises, however, and there can be no doubt that by an overwhelming majority the members of the medical profession will declare that the Chicago doctor was wrong—that his duty, like that of every other doctor, at all times and in all circumstances, is to prolong life when and as much as he can, regardless of whether, in his judgment, the results of the prolongation ultimately will be beneficial or not.

In principle, at least, only that policy is safe and sound, and any departure from it, no matter how well-intentioned, more or less opens a door through which may enter abuses, crimes, and evils so serious that in comparison with them the occasional advantages, real or imagined, to be obtained by that departure are unworthy of consideration. Diagnosis, it must be remembered, is an art, not a science. In it absolute certainty is very, very rarely, if ever, attained, and it is not infrequently that the confident predictions of competent physicians, or what are taken to be such predictions by those who hear them, bring confusion on their makers because of the amazing possibilities that lie in the "healing power of nature."

There are cases, perhaps not a few, in which the physician takes the heavy responsibility of deciding that the agonies of a deathbed have lasted long enough, or rather that he will do no more to lengthen them, but when he does this, if wise, he bears the weight of that responsibility alone and in silence. He does not attempt to divide it with his patient, with the patient's relatives, or with the attending nurses. To do so complicates the problem to no purpose.

A Minority with a Meaning.

There must be much significance in the fact that when the lower house of the Georgia Legislature took action this week on a bill appropriating $5,000 with which to pay the expenses incurred in protecting the residence of ex-Governor SLATON from mob attack after he had commuted the sentence of LEO M. FRANK the ayes had it by the overwhelming vote of 123 to 6.

The vote was, indeed, preceded by a long and hot debate, which revealed the survival among some members of this presumably representative fraction of the State's population of the bitter feelings that prevailed during the trial of FRANK and finally brought about his lynching. The group of irreconcilables, however, was small, and they repeated in vain the old arguments of passion and prejudice. More voted for the appropriation, probably, than have been, or have yet become, convinced that Mr. SLATON's course was correct as well as conscientious, but these at least saw that to refuse payment of money due for guarding a State official from mob violence would be an intolerable disgrace to the State itself.

How many of the 123 voted as they did for this reason, and how many because they sincerely acquiesced in the commutation, is not revealed and probably never will be known. But that there has been a change of sentiment is obvious, and the taxpayers of the State, as they think of this $5,000 to come out of their pockets, are presumably divided just about as the lawmakers were as to the necessity and the propriety of paying it from the public funds.

Perhaps, too, by a like majority, if they had a chance, they would express an opinion to the effect that it was not Mr. SLATON, by doing his duty as he saw it, who brought this mulct upon them, but the fraction of the Georgia people for whom the unchanging six were the belated spokesmen.

Showing a Curious Sensitiveness.

It is more than a little—well, call it queer, that there should have come by wireless from Berlin and Vienna, Tuesday night, practically identical dispatches, both official, telling of some damage done by Italian cannon to buildings of architectural and historic interest in the ancient city of Gorizia.

The Germans seem to have been as well informed as the Austrians in regard to the effect of the bombardment on the monumental structures, and to be as deeply shocked by the barbarism that could make mere military necessity or efficiency an excuse for destroying venerable works of art. Or was the haste so thoroughly to spread abroad the sad story of Gorizia's fate due only to a desire to make us admit that, as the saying is, "There are others!" meaning that more than folk of the Central Empires are capable, on occasion and at need, of earning the name of Huns?

Coming from the source it does, the implied demands upon us for indignant protests are more than a little amusing, and most will see in the narrations of Italian misdeeds, no matter on what theory they may be interpreted, the workings of minds peculiarly Teutonic. The inclination to respond to the demand might be stronger, too, if it were not known that the Italians have been, for good reason, particularly reluctant to inflict damage upon the "irridenta" towns, and that repeatedly they have besought the Austrians not to compel them to do it by using monumental buildings as points either of attack or defense.

These pleas have all been ignored, and nowhere more notably than in this very town of Gorizia.

MONEY FOR PREPAREDNESS.

What Have We to Show for the Huge Sums Expended?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Now that the President has recommended that we invest $500,000,000 in strengthening our military and naval forces to insure immunity against attack by foreign nations, a plain citizen may rise to inquire as to what we have been doing with all the money so far appropriated for these purposes and how it compares with the sums expended by other nations for preparedness. The correct answer thereto may be as surprising to others as it was to me when I looked it up.

The United States leads the world in its annual appropriation for the expenses of wars, past, present, and future! Here are the items: 1913—Army, $160,000,000; navy, $133,000,000; interest on public debt, $22,000,000; pensions, $175,000,000; total, $490,000,000! Let us compare the army and navy expenditures of the six leading powers for the year 1913 in millions of dollars:

	Army.	Navy.	Total.
Russia	317	122	439
France	191	119	310
Germany	183	111	294
United States	160	133	293
Japan	49	46	95

If spending all this money still leaves us unprepared, how much will we have to spend? How much of a super tax on their incomes will our rich men stand—30 to 40 per cent.? Let them pay the piper if they want to call the tune! J. E. ARNETT.

TO EDWARD LIVINGSTON TRUDEAU, M. D.

Your spirit passes, but a star is born
To burn steadfastly in the silent night
Where single purpose kindled into light
Your highest hopes, and living deeds adorn
Your memory! What though our hearts are torn
With loss? You welcomed Death with eyes alight,
Who long had fought with all a soldier's might,
And it were braver if we did not mourn!
Now sleep is yours, beneath the balsam hills
In whose strong, healing breath, in whose repose,
We who have loved you feel the health that fills
Your soul. . . . Great-hearted hills from which arose
Your dream, and whence your deathless spirit wills

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The array of names, published by the Mayor, as comprising the committee of 1,000 on National Defense is really an imposing one. Nevertheless, I venture to ask whether it would not be more to the point if the Mayor were to publish the names of those who, though invited by him, refused to serve on this committee? Particularly, if he were to publish the reasons they gave for their refusal? Surely, in this important question those men ought to be heard who, aware of the mental and moral fallacy of military preparedness, refuse to second the efforts which would turn this fair country into a Plattsburg camp. JOEL BLAU.

Not Even Self-Respect Saved.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The deeds of Germans and Austro-Hungarians in this country against American interests have become so incessant and numerous that it is impossible for a layman to begin to recall them. But, why is it the Government seems to get absolutely nowhere on any single line and these dastardly crimes continue unabated and unchecked?

It seems to be common knowledge that the consular offices of both these countries are hotbeds of traitorism to the United States, and yet the Government sits supinely by and lets it go on. So far, it appears none of those caught has had more than a light sentence—six months and $1 fine for Stahl and Van Horn, it is to be presumed, Wintering in a New England lockup. The most we seem to have done was to gently request Austria to recall its Ambassador.

What are we waiting for? To have our fleet blown up or the Halls of Congress blown down? The latter pretty nearly was done, but what of it?

Patience can become weakness and it is what appears to have happened to the United States, for as far as an ordinary citizen can see we have shown absolutely no will to grapple with the situation and to do business. There must be some way to make enemies of this country realize they must behave or get out. I personally know of no one who has a real feeling of satisfaction at the course we have pursued since the invasion of Belgium to the torpedoing of the Ancona. Lots of us have tried to feel satisfied and can't.

Some of the energy that went into the compiling of the volume to Great Britain on matters of commerce might well have been expended, it seems to me, in upholding our self-respect as a nation and the interests of humanity at large. We have been about as effective as the State Labor Commission proved itself in the Diamond candy fire. Investigation and report was made and the factory owners ordered to fireproof, &c., but nothing was ever done to make them do as ordered.

And so with the enemies of the country within and without—investigations and reports and letters and protests and not one clean-cut, unequivocal act—Belgium, the Lusitania, and now the Ancona and hundreds of barbarous and outrageous deeds in between, and still we're just where we were, for we cannot now congratulate ourselves that the temporary cessation of German submarine warfare was due to anything other than the efficiency of the British fleet.

I am sure that there are thousands of Americans like myself, sick at heart to feel that in this awful conflict we haven't even maintained our national self-respect.

May it not be profitable to make a little reckoning of the price of such peace as we still enjoy? For we can with difficulty maintain the fiction that Germany is not making war upon us when her agents, or spies, have almost a free hand in destroying ships, factories, and, incidentally, the lives of our citizens even on our own territory. We have, of course, incurred the deep enmity of Germany; in the circumstances we do not regret this.

We have seriously offended England over a matter of trade of small importance in comparison with the enormous profits we are making out of her necessities and those of her allies, and at a time when her fleet is not only protecting us from possible German aggression but making it possible for us to have any foreign commerce at all. We have not yet directly offended France, but French opinion of us is clear enough.

We do, however, seem on the point of offering a serious affront to Italy; for if the Italian Government decides that the Ancona was sunk by a German submarine there will be three courses open to the President. He may regard it as an act of war against us, he may tell the world that our notes to Germany are mere scraps of paper, or he may, as he has so often done before, postpone the day of reckoning by doubting Italy's good faith and waiting, waiting, waiting! Is it not appalling to consider the state that we are approaching—a Europe solidly arrayed against us when our day of trial comes?

These are some of the larger items of the price that we are paying.

Her Thanksgiving Day Prayer.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I add my word of protest to those which have already appeared in THE TIMES regarding the inaction of our Government at the various grave national crises of the past year? How any true American can feel differently when our best traditions are being violated, I cannot understand. Surely when we were a unified nation, and not isolated groups of hyphenates, we at least followed the dictates of common humanity.

No detailed resume of the situation is necessary. We are all familiar with the facts—our indifference to Belgium's fate; our continued callousness when the lives of our own countrymen were wantonly destroyed; our policy of watchful waiting; the sending of literary masterpieces to the offenders which meant absolutely nothing. We prate loudly of our "diplomatic victories" when the Lusitania note has not even been answered!

If we have thought to gain any moral power or dignity by the course we have pursued, we may be assured that we have lamentably failed. Only last week a lady who has lived in the war zone told me that the United States had become a disgrace among the nations.

Yet, as individuals, what can we do? We are as much at the mercy of the Administration as the subjects of the most autocratic kingdom across the water. Beyond voicing our indignation in letters to representative papers, we are apparently helpless. Yet as protesting is our only weapon, let us continue to protest and protest and still protest. Our attitude does not mean that we are eager to plunge America into a bloody war. If we had done the right thing in the first place, quickly, decisively, uncompromisingly, we would not be as near war today as we are. But our weakness has invited bomb plotting, munition plant outrages, continued murder on the high seas. Every day we glance at the headlines for the newest crime.

This Thanksgiving, instead of thanking God in smug self-complacency that we have escaped the terrors about us, let us rather utter the humble, earnest petition: "Give us strength to follow honor, wherever it may lead!" MAY EMERY HALL.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In yesterday's paper under the heading "Victorious but Not Invulnerable," you rightly say "the natural and inevitable implication of setting a watchman to blow a trumpet in case of danger is that those thus awakened should have arms within easy reach with which to defend themselves when they leap to their feet."

You might also have said that the city would be a walled city and the watchman's position would be upon the wall or tower. In other words, the passage, to any one who knows the Bible and Bible lands, should have suggested a place and a people, provided with every protection against an enemy that was known to their time. No one suggests for this country anything more than what would correspond to that. ROBERT BARBOUR.

WHEN GERMANY ATTEMPTS TO APOLOGIZE.

By GERTRUDE ATHERTON.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Some days since Gouverneur Morris wrote a letter to THE TIMES making an eloquent plea to the children of the United States to buy the beautiful and artistic dolls made by the French, to be sold here during the holidays for the benefit of the afflicted in France, and to ignore for once, at least, the unindividual products of the German factories upon which the taste of generations of British and American children have been educated. I heartily hope the American children will listen to Mr. Morris's plea, but of that I will write more presently.

It is a highly significant fact that when the Germans, or their progeny in this country, feel driven by pressure of public opinion to make a lame apology for such infamous acts as sinking passenger ships with or without warning (the legal point concerns the respective Governments only; with each new outrage the Germans incur wholesale enmity in neutral countries) and the bombarding of undefended cities from the air, they base their defense on the French Revolution or some ancient misdeed of Britain.

One of our hyphenates, with that Teutonic psychology that is now almost as famous as Teutonic brutality, wrote to THE TIMES a day or two since, ostensibly to protest against Mr. Morris's appeal, really to get in a defense of Germany on the familiar grounds I have just cited. If the French were brutal and ruthless a century and a half ago, why cannot the Germans be as brutal as they like today? Her accusation against Britain was more obscure, but she could have found specific instances of cruelty and oppression, or of ruthless vindictiveness, practiced by Britain in the eighteenth century if she knew more of history than she apparently does. (I have yet to meet one German who knows anything about any history save that of his own country.)

This sort of argument in any but a German would be stupefying. But we have grown too accustomed to it to do more than swear. It is, however, quite impossible to pound into their skulls the truth that their arguments strengthen our admiration of the British and the French, while accentuating the peculiar position won by Germany within a very brief period after the outbreak of the war. For this is the point they unconsciously demonstrate: neither Britain nor France is capable today of the reckless violations of humanity or of moral laws which are isolating Germany in the history of civilized Europe, excluding her from the class of the great modern nations and relegating her to that of such old, barbarous leftovers as Turkey.

A century and a half may be but a second geologically, but historically it may be a stage so crowded by vital and tremendous events, by achievements and progress and change, by the rise and fall of dynasties, and so many wonders in scientific development and in racial growths—as in the case of the United States, for instance—that no man in casting his memory backward over such a reach of time can begin to see the whole of its history in a flash. Such has been the case in the history of the world since, say, the French Revolution, and nothing has been more significant during even the last fifty years alone than the spread of humanitarianism.

There is much to accomplish yet, but the world is a far easier and safer place to live in than in the days when even boarding school children were starved and beaten, the backs of prisoners were lashed to ribbons as a matter of discipline, and the sea Captain was a synonym for hideous brutality.

In this respect, as in many others, Japan has ranged herself with the great enlightened nations of modern times. When her war broke out with Russia we all shuddered at unimaginable horrors of warfare sure to be perpetrated by a yellow race. We all know that no race, in the field or in the hospital, in action or in the treatment of prisoners, ever displayed a prouder observance of ethics and humanity. The knowledge of this record of Japan alone should make Germany, a white race, and swollen with pious self-approval, blush and mend her ways.

When Germans cite the French Revolution—whose excesses they seem to be unaware were committed under mob rule by a people driven mad by centuries of injustice—as an excuse for Germany's abominations today, for, to use her own phrase, her "policy of frightfulness," they tacitly admit that their vaunted Fatherland is just that much (a century and a half) behind the times.

Why, even Napoleon's wholesale execution of prisoners in Turkey as a matter of military expediency—the sacrificed being soldiers who had faced death in war voluntarily—is not in the same class with the sinking of the Lusitania, or the least of the passenger ships that have been torpedoed by submarines, with little or no chance for the hundreds of neutrals, women and children, and noncombatants to escape. I know of no war crimes among civilized nations in the history of the last 200 years comparable to Germany's. At the moment indeed my mind leaps back to the massacre of the Huguenots.

The stupidity of Germany in torpedoing passenger ships and raining bombs on unfortified cities is a part of her Dodo psychology. If these disgusting acts had brought her even one formidable advantage, we, while still execrating her, might be compelled into an unwilling admiration. But she has gained by her entire submarine and Zeppelin warfare exactly nothing. She has not deprived Britain of a crust of bread or a round of ammunition that could not be replaced before needed; she has not succeeded in inspiring England with fear, and she has won the abhorrence and contempt of the civilized world—abhorrence for her grossly callous inhumanity and contempt for her woodenheaded stupidity. No wonder she bellows that might is right. As to the meaning of the word right she has the same moral confusion as a defective who steals and knows not why. But might is a different proposition—that standard having been quite within the comprehension of even the most inferior races since the world began. It was indeed consistent in this literal-minded race that when it started out to conquer the world with the mightiest army of the age it should stick to its last as firmly as the prudent cobbler, and not risk confusing its machine-made mind with modern improvements.

We have not escaped the apologists for Germany when striving to divert the hailstorm of execration unloaded upon her devoted head. We did hard things to the South during the civil war, and even nowadays we have sweated labor and children working far too many hours a day in the cotton mills of the South. But we are fifty years older, and more civilized—like Britain and France—than we were during our fratricidal conflict; and our economic evils are not parallel cases. They are rotten spots in our civilization in this easiest of all countries to live in, of which decent citizens are heartily ashamed and a respectable number are striving to rectify. Worse have been rectified, but there is more to do, and these are in no case the effect of deliberate cruelty, but the results of faults in our economic system and the get-rich-quick spirit born of too many opportunities. They are, moreover, an erratic growth, starting no one knows just how or where, and continued through the mere force of habit. For there is no force so subtle as habit, and employers long since grew accustomed to see children, sent by their parents, working for long hours at a stretch. If I am not mistaken, girls began to go into the New England factories when men began to desert for the great cities the small towns of that section of the country. And the foreigners who bring their families over in these days wring the last ounce of work out of their women in order to return the sooner to Europe. If he kills them in the process there are plenty more in the land where they came from.

The point is that, so far as Americans are concerned, none of these instances comes under the head of deliberate cruelty, and if in these few regrettable exceptions we are now behind the almost excessive humanity of Britain, it is mainly because of our own excessive hospitality to races that need a full generation under this flag to become converted to something more than a compulsory respect for the finer principles of humanity. In any case we are guilty of shortcomings only, not of crime. We may, in spots, be indifferent to certain abuses that have subtly grown up in our midst, but we, equally with France and Great Britain, are literally incapable of the acts that have knocked the bottom out of Germany's assumption that she belonged to the small group of States in the forefront of modern civilization. In many respects, besides her military and civic efficiency, she was quite marvelous; but her development was lopsided after all—something we should have been long in discovering if the war had not come—and the solid masses within her spiritual body, dense, unrelieved by a ray of light, far outweigh her attainments and weld her to the past.

The only clever thing she has done so far is to fool her own people. So far she holds them in the hollow of her hand, and so she will until their stomachs are really empty. The German stomach is not to be trifled with. Better it were to defy every State of Europe in turn, aye, even the great continents overseas. The German stomach will brook a certain amount of anguish in the sacred cause of the Fatherland, but not its own sacred right to feed bounteously at least once a day; and hunger, never!

There is in Germany a small percentage of highly bred men and women quite capable of schooling themselves into a complete indifference to the pleasures of civilized life so long as the success of their cause demands it. But the highly bred are in a vast minority in Germany, which is essentially a plebeian race, and, as such, grossly carnal. When the middle-aged men who use to crowd the German restaurants, stuffing themselves for two hours on end without once raising their eyes, begin to suffer from that acute form of dyspepsia caused by gastric juices darting hither and thither in search of prey and taking it out on the lining of the stomach, oh, then let Germany beware! Mysticism, religious patriotism, sentimentality, spirituality, (sic,) may be proof against the inexplicable length of the war and the extreme inconclusiveness of repeated "victories," but it will collapse like a punctured balloon when Germans can no longer eat.

But therein perchance lies the hope of Europe. If the Germans are great eaters that is merely the defect of their bigness of stature and their virility. All those fancy qualities enumerated have been artfully sifted through the race from above to make them easy tools in the hands of the few mediaeval absurdities who rule Germany to the distraction of the world. Heavy feeding has also been encouraged, for much food stupefies. But when the several hundred thousand Germans left at home, for one reason or another, begin to think with the clear brain caused by untaxed digestive organs, and, later, when the stomach is empty and the blood surges to the head of a naturally excitable race, oh! then let the numerically small groups at the top beware. Talk about the French Revolution——

But let us return to dolls.

Like Mr. Morris, I, too, hope that the day of the simpering pink-and-white-and-flaxen Gretchen is over and that the little Americans will hereafter be worshipping—and imitating in natural sequence—graceful Maries and piquant Célestines, artistic Mimis, and elegant Dianes. It would not only plant the seeds of a fine taste, besides giving them pleasures both subtle and acute—everything, in fact, that is the reverse of smug—but there is another reason for educating their inclinations in that direction as early as possible. Let me whisper it, my children; you may be too young to understand, but tuck it away in your memory: The French are the greatest race in the world today, the only great race. Every other race involved has crumbled somewhere at this awful touchstone, but France rose like a phoenix from the ashes of another nation's dishonor. She has had a renaissance only half understood as yet, and morally as well as artistically, and possibly intellectually, she will be the most powerful influence in Europe after this war is over. It is to be hoped that her singing tides will reach these shores of ours. We need them far more than what we were accepting so unanalytically from Germany—coming fifteen months ago.

GERTRUDE ATHERTON.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Has the city no obligation to fulfill toward the hundreds and hundreds of girls waiting for appointment as teachers? Some of these girls have been waiting a year or a year and a half. The majority of them come from families who sorely need their help—families who have stinted and denied themselves in order to get the talented member in a position where she could be of assistance. And with what result? There are over 600 vacancies in the schools, yet the city seems to be perfectly unmoved in the matter. It seems not to care whether the children suffer or the unfortunate young women, who have given so many years in preparing for their work. Has it no obligation in this matter?

'BORIS GODOUNOFF' SUPERBLY PRODUCED

MR. DIDUR AGAIN AS BORIS

Boris	Adamo Didur
Theodore	Raymonde Delaunois
Xenia	Lenora Sparkes
The Nurse	Maria Duchene
Schouisky	Angelo Bada
Tchelkaloff	Vincenzo Reschiglian
Brother Pimenn	Leon Rothier
Dimitri	Paul Althouse
Marina	Margarete Ober
Varlaam	Andrea de Segurola
Missail	Pietro Audisio
The Innkeeper	Marie Mattfeld
The Simpleton	Max Bloch
A Police Official	Giulio Rossi
Tcerniakowsky	Carl Schlegel

Conductor—Giorgio Polacco.

Moussorgsky's opera, "Boris Godounoff," which has been one of the most interesting and impressive of the new productions of the last two seasons at the Metropolitan Opera House, is retained in the repertory for the current season, and took its place as the opera given there at the second performance last evening. The audience was not large, nor was the enthusiasm so great as it has been on some of the occasions when the work was given before. It remains to be seen whether the enthusiasm over this opera will retain its potency.

"Boris Godounoff" is a wide departure from the familiar forms of operatic art, old and new, and depends for its effect upon the vivid representation it gives of a people and a life strange to most of its listeners at the Metropolitan, the power with which the elements of folksong are used in the massive choruses, and the tragic climax to which it it conducted at the end. It is episodic, and some of its episodes, as that of the love making in the garden scene of the second act, have little to do directly with the development of the opera; but all of them, however loosely they are put together, have in themselves something fascinating and original. The music is directly sprung from the Russian soil, rooted deep in the native folksong. It is not strange that the work should have had its powerful appeal, especially in the superb production that is given of it at the Metropolitan Opera House.

The production given last evening is very nearly the same as that which was heard last season, with the exception of Max Bloch, who took Mr. Reiss's place as the Simpleton, and Mr. Polacco took Mr. Toscanini's place. The exception was naturally important. Mr. Polacco conducted "Boris" at one of the last performances of it here last season, and he has frequently conducted it in performances it has had in Europe; he is therefore wholly familiar with it, and his familiarity was evident in the manner of his conducting it and the results he achieved.

Some of Mr. Polacco's tempos seemed not quite fortunate, and need have surprised nobody that there were places where some of the electric and sweeping power of Mr. Toscanini was absent; but the solidity and the dramatic force of his reading were in evidence, and he made most of the picturesque scenes move with their accustomed effect.

Mr. Didur's intensely tragic impersonation of Boris, sometimes somewhat overdrawn, is remembered as the most imposing single figure in the opera. The cast as a whole is singularly efficient. The chorus last evening was in fine form, and so was the orchestra.

Next Week's Metropolitan Operas.

Lucrezia Bori will make her first appearance of the season with the Metropolitan Opera Company Monday night of next week, the opera being "Iris." On Wednesday evening "Samson et Dalila" will be repeated. "Parsifal" will be heard at the annual special Thanksgiving Day matinée and that evening the first performance in several years of "Il Barbiere di Siviglia" will be given with three new principals, Giacomo Damacco, tenor; Giuseppe De Luca, baritone, and Pompilio Malatesta, bass buffo. Mme. Erma Zarska, the new Bohemian soprano, will make her first appearance here Friday night as Elsa in "Lohengrin" and the opera for Saturday afternoon will be Puccini's "Manon Lescaut."

Yvette Guilbert Coming for Tour.

Yvette Guilbert, the French music hall artist whose last appearance here was seven years ago, will arrive shortly to begin a tour of the principal cities of the United States and Canada. Mlle. Guilbert will give a series of special matinées at the Lyceum Theatre beginning on Dec. 10. Instead of her songs of the Latin Quartier she will sing songs of the days of Charlemagne presented in costumes of the period.

MISS K. S. SANDS, BRIDE OF JOHN M. P. THATCHER

Wedded Amid Chrysanthemums in Chapel of St. Bartholomew's Church—The Attendants.

The wedding of John M. P. Thatcher, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Thatcher of Somerset, Ky., and Miss Katharine Sedgwick Sands, the only daughter of Dr. Robert A. Sands and Mrs. Sands, was celebrated at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Chapel of St. Bartholomew's Church, at Madison Avenue and Forty-fourth Street. The chapel was decorated with white chrysanthemums tied in clusters on the pews and arranged in vases and bowls about the chancel and altar. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks, the rector of St. Bartholomew's.

The bride walked up the aisle with her grandfather, Edward Van Volkenburgh, who gave her in marriage. She wore a trailing robe of white satin; the court train suspended from the shoulders was bordered with orange blossoms. The corsage top was white tulle shirred into a round neck and the shoulder straps were trails of orange blossoms. The long tulle sleeves were laid in folds from shoulder to wrist and the satin skirt hung full and had old point lace draped in garland effect from the waist line nearly to the hem. The point lace veil was arranged in a high pointed effect on her golden brown coiffure and was held by orange blossoms. She carried a large cluster of white orchids with lilies of the valley.

The four attendants were Mrs. William S. Fairchild, Miss Cornelia de Lancey Cammann, and the Misses Elizabeth P. Thatcher, (a sister of the bridegroom,) Olive A. Tripp, and Vera A. H. Cravath. Their black velvet hats were trimmed with large silver lace butterflies, and their pink satin and tulle frocks were completed by silver slippers and hose.

Mr. Thatcher had Karl T. Frederick as his best man, and the ushers were Clinton M. Harbison of Lexington, Ky., Edward V. V. Sands, a brother of the bride; Douglas M. Moffat, J. Hampden Dougherty, D. Chester Noyes, and Walter S. Gifford.

The ceremony was followed by a small reception at the home of the bride, 101 East Thirty-ninth Street, where the bride and bridegroom received in a bower of white chrysanthemums, and American Beauty roses were used in the dining room. On their return from their honeymoon journey Mr. and Mrs. Thatcher will be with Mrs. Sands for a part of the Winter.

Among the guests at the chapel were Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Cravath, Mrs. Edward Van Volkenburgh, Edward Van Volkenburgh, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Cammann, Jr., Mrs. Daniel Lamont, the Misses Lamont, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Curtis, the Misses Curtis, Mrs. Frederick F. Frelinghuysen, Miss Louise Ceballos, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Overton, Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Ford, the Misses Gertrude and Eva Mali, Mrs. W. G. Read, Jr., and Miss Read, Mrs. Francis Storer, Miss Fanny de Groot Hastings, Mr. and Mrs. Guy E. Tripp, and Miss Mary A. Tripp.

NEWPORT, R. I., Nov. 17.—The wedding of Miss Adele Magruder, daughter of Captain Thomas P. Magruder, U. S. N., and Lieutenant Stuart O. Greig, U. S. N., on duty in the Atlantic submarine flotilla, was held tonight, with Chaplain Matthew C. Gleason officiating, at the Training Station.

Outerbridge-Witt Wedding Tonight.

The wedding of Miss Helen Evans Witt, daughter of Mrs. Katherine Stuart Witt of 369 Jefferson Avenue, Brooklyn, to Ernest Henry Talbot Outerbridge will take place at 8:30 o'clock this evening at the home of the bride's mother. The Rev. A. W. E. Carrington of Brooklyn will perform the ceremony.

Miss Kate Gibson Engaged.

Mrs. W. C. Gibson, widow of the late Rear Admiral Gibson, U. S. N., of Washington, D. C., announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Kate Gibson, to Charles Pierce Whitten of Nashua, N. H. No date has been set for the wedding.

MISS ELLEN YUILLE WEDS W. J. STURGIS

SISTER IS MAID OF HONOR

An attractive mid-November wedding took place yesterday afternoon in St. Mary's Church, at Scarborough-on-Hudson, when Miss Ellen Yuille, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Yuille, became the bride of William J. Sturgis, son of the Rev. Joseph R. Sturgis of Virginia. Bishop Joseph Blunt Cheshire of North Carolina performed the ceremony.

The church was filled at 3:45, when the ceremony was performed, the guests including only the relatives and intimate friends, owing to the limited seating capacity. Preceding the ceremony there was a brief organ recital by Mrs. Walden Laskey, organist of Chrust Church, Bronxville, N. Y., which the bride attends.

The bride, who walked with her father, wore a simple gown of white satin and tulle, the tulle veil enveloping her like a cloud, falling over her face and forming an unusually long train of tulle, which was carried by her two young sisters, the Misses Nancy and Burks Yuille. The veil was caught close to the coiffure by a circlet of orange blossoms, and she also wore a girdle of orange blossoms. The skirt was short length and veiled in chiffon. She carried a large bouquet of lilies of the valley.

Mrs. A. J. Drexel Biddle, Jr., was matron of honor, and Miss Melissa Yuille was her sister's maid of honor. They were gowned alike in short-length costumes of orchid colored taffeta veiled with old blue tulle, caught up with bows of silver. Their hats were orchid colored tulle, with wide flat brims, and encircled with a band of silver. Their slippers and hose were orchid colored. They carried arm bouquets of pink snap dragons and columbine.

The young Misses Nancy and Burks Yuille were in old blue velvet, their costumes fashioned to represent a page, with white tulle cuffs and collar, and small blue velvet hats edged with silver. They wore their hair short and curled, and looked as though they had stepped from the canvas of an old master.

Angier B. Duke was best man, and the ushers were Philip O. Mills, A. J. Drexel Biddle, Jr.; James A. Blair, Jr.; George B. Glaenzer, Theodore S. Watson, Walbridge S. Taft, Theodore P. Dixon, and J. Steele Sturgis of Chicago, a brother of the bridegroom.

The reception which followed at the Sleepy Hollow Country Club was a large one. The rooms were festooned with oak leaves and varicolored chrysanthemums. The bridal couple received the congratulations of their relatives and friends near a big log fireplace. A buffet collation was served and there was dancing.

The bride is the second of the bridal attendants at the Duke-Biddle wedding in Philadelphia last Spring to wed, the first being Miss Hope Truxton Beale, who married Oliver E. Cromwell, son of Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury.

Among those at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin N. Duke, Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Dula, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Dula, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Hill, Dr. and Mrs. Preston P. Satterwhite, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Fuller, Mrs. Cyril Dugmore, Miss Florence Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Helm, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Perkinson, Mrs. Edward La Montagne, Mrs. Alexander Brown, Mrs. William James, Mr. and Mrs. Morton W. Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Townsend Horner, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus L. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Gould, Mrs. Edward Kane, Mr. and Mrs. Jaquelin P. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Jungbluth, Mr. and Mrs. David Heller, General and Mrs. Edward P. Meany, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Horan, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Evans, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Wiggin.

SOCIAL NOTES.

Mrs. Alphonse H. Alker of 21 East Sixty-sixth Street will give a coming-out reception this afternoon at her home for her daughter, Miss Mabel W. Alker.

Mrs. William B. Thompson will give a tea dance on Saturday, Dec. 18, at the St. Regis to introduce her daughter, Miss Margaret A. Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin, who are at the St. Regis for a few days, will not close their country place until December, and will then return to the St. Regis for the season.

MRS. HELEN CASEY A BRIDE.

Mrs. Helen Elise Casey and John Riegal De Witt were married at noon yesterday at the home of General and Mrs. Nelson Henry, 29 Waverley Place, the Rev. Howard Duffield officiating.

The bride is the daughter of an old schoolmate of Mrs. Henry's, Mrs. D. Erastus Evans, who was Miss Madeleine Thornton of Rome, Ga. Mr. De Witt is a former football star, having been captain of the Princeton football team, class of '04.

The ceremony was performed in the drawing room, which was decorated with American beauty roses and Southern smilax. The bride wore a gown of peach below chiffon, with a brown maline hat, the gown and hat being trimmed with Kolinsky fur. She carried mauve orchids.

Miss Amy Rodgers Sloan, who attended the bride, was in white chiffon trimmed with black velvet, and a silver hat. Miss Mary Erskine of Atlanta, Ga., a niece of the bride, was the flower girl. She wore a shell pink frock and a lace hat. Edward T. Martin was best man.

Only relatives of the couple attended the wedding, which was followed by a breakfast, the guests coming from Philadelphia and Riegalsville, Penn., and other points in eastern Pennsylvania.

MISS JULIA CHENEY WEDS.

Married to Ridgely Hunt, Jr., in the Chantry of Grace Church.

The marriage of Miss Julia de Forest Cheney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Cheney of 30 West Eighty-sixth Street, and Ridgely Hunt, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ridgely Hunt of Washington, D. C., took place yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the chantry of Grace Church. The Rev. Dr. Charles Lewis Slattery officiated.

Mr. Ridgely is a graduate of Yale University, class of '14.

Mr. Hunt is a grandson of William H. Hunt, who was Secretary of the Navy in the Cabinet of President Garfield, and was Minister to Russia under President Arthur at the time of his death. Gaillard Hunt of Washington, well known as a writer on historical subjects, and Judge William Hunt of the United States Circuit Court are the young man's uncles.

The first of the series of literary matinees that will be a feature of the Theatre Francais's season will be given tomorrow in the Berkeley. "Mlle. de la Seigliere" will be the offering, and Ginnette Guerande will play the principal role. The first Sunday night concert will be given Sunday.

KLAW & ERLANGER PUT BLAME ON W. A. BRADY

Failure of Managers to Correct Ticket Evils Due Largely to His Stipulations, Firm Say.

A statement was issued yesterday from the offices of Klaw & Erlanger in which that firm's side of the ticket controversy was set forth at some length. The dissolving of the ticket association was cited as a justification of their earlier statement that the association was not really an organization that could admit or expel anybody.

"Klaw & Erlanger are well within their rights," the statement read, "so far as the managers were concerned, in everything that they have done, and were so convinced by the facts and the advice of their counsel. When Mr. Brady makes the statement that he is now going to Albany to fight against cut-rate tickets and hotel agencies he is talking absent-mindedly, because any lawyer will tell him that no law can be passed which will prevent the sale of tickets at any price; that the best that can be done is to have a law regulating the sale, with licenses so adjusted that it will be impossible for the agencies to make any profit.

"In so far as the present attempts of the managers have fallen through, Mr. Brady is largely responsible for all the foolish stipulations with which the original agreement was loaded down, for he played innocently or willfully right into the hands of the smaller or 'gyp' agencies."

One of the largest dealers in cut-rate tickets under the old régime said yesterday that he would soon have cut-rate tickets for the plays of many managers on sale. This agent will make a bid for patronage by sending to his patrons printed lists of the attractions he handles.

DAVENPORT AT IT AGAIN.

The Bramhall Unpleasantly Reopened for the Season.

The strange Butler Davenport broke forth again last evening, when the Bramhall Playhouse, his morsel of a theatre in East Twenty-seventh Street, was reopened for the season—or for the present, at least—by the production there of a double bill. The first part was a bright, though quite scanty, satire called "The Courtship of Then—Today—and Tomorrow." This is the work of Anna Wynne and it was sufficiently described at the time of its presentation by the Gamut Club last Spring. The second part was a one-act play by and with Mr. Davenport himself. It is called "Depths of Purity."

Previous efforts have taught the patrons of the Bramhall that Mr. Davenport can be tedious, unintentionally amusing and nasty all in one evening, so that "Depths of Purity" can scarcely be called a disappointment. It is not without dramatic force but, though affectedly realistic, it is couched in a language never spoken in any country under the sun, and its author's pronounced tendency to shrill the unmentionable makes it altogether rancid and abominable. It is a pity to waste so competent an actress as Catherine Proctor in such an endeavor.

There might be a word also for the pleasing work by William Raymond, but after all the players at the Bramhall are contending against impossible odds. They are at work in what is really no theatre at all, but a refurbished parlor. Mr. Davenport's playhouse holds only 210 persons when it is full, which it was not last evening. It is far too small for genuine dramatic work, though quite spacious enough to receive all those likely to find pleasure or instruction in its present entertainment.

Lucrezia Bori Arrives from Naples.

Lucrezia Bori, the Spanish soprano of the Metropolitan Opera House Company, who is to sing Monday night in "Iris," arrived yesterday from Naples on the Italian liner Duca degli Abruzzi after spending the Summer with her brother, Vincenti, also a passenger on the ship, at their home in Valencia. About the middle of December Mlle. Bori will sing at the opera house for the benefit of the widows and orphans of Italians killed in the war, she said.

E. M. GRUNWALDT DEAD.

Edward Michaelovitch Grunwaldt, former Councilor of Commerce for Russia and special representative of that country at the St. Louis Exposition in 1905, died suddenly yesterday of diabetes at 84 West 119th Street, where he had been living during his latest visit to this country, which began about a year ago. He was 51 years old.

Mr. Grunwaldt brought with him to the St. Louis Exposition paintings valued at $300,000. He got into financial difficulties through the sale of the pictures and owed about $75,000. For several months he faced poverty here, but, returning to Russia, he engaged in the fur business with his brother, Paul M. Grunwaldt of Paris and made a fortune. He was one of the first to become interested in the conservation of the seal industry in Alaska, and he represented his country in making treaties which concerned the seal trade in Alaska.

For the last seven years Mr. Grunwaldt's interests have brought him to this country to stay several months at a time. He was a bachelor and had no relatives in this country.

LOUIS GOTTSCHALK DEAD.

Chemist Had Received Patents on Process to Synthesize Rubber.

Louis Gottschalk, an expert chemist and the inventor of a process to synthesize rubber, is dead at his home, 372 North Seventh Street, Newark, from a complication of diseases. He was 67 years old, and came here from Germany forty-one years ago. He was educated in the University of Munich. Two years ago Mr. Gottschalk was at work on his rubber synthesizing process in his laboratory at Seawaren, N. J., when an explosion occurred which fatally injured his wife. Some time later there was another explosion, in which his son-in-law was killed. Patents for the process were granted only a few weeks before Mr. Gottschalk's death.

ARTHUR C. MORELAND

Arthur C. Moreland, editor and publisher of The Elks Antler, the leading publication of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, and for many years a prominent figure in the councils of the Elks, died yesterday in the Post-Graduate Hospital of gangrene of the right foot. He was taken there two weeks ago, when it was said that an operation would be necessary to save his life, but his condition was so weak that the operation was thought inadvisable.

Mr. Moreland was 68 years old on last Friday. He joined the Elks nearly forty years ago, when it was a comparatively small organization.

CHARLES L. LOOP DEAD.

Vice President of Southern Express Co. Was Prominent in Chattanooga.

Special to The New York Times.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Nov. 17.—Charles L. Loop, Vice President of the Southern Express Company, and for 22 years a leading citizen of Chattanooga, died at his home here today of heart disease. He was recognized as a master in the field of transportation industry. He served the company with which he was associated for nearly half a century.

Mr. Loop was in his seventy-sixth year. He was born at Thorntown, Ind., and lived in various cities in that State until a young man. In 1862 he was sent to Memphis by the Adams Express Company, and was appointed cashier there. A few years later he was made cashier and auditor for the Southern Express Company. When headquarters were removed to Chattanooga Mr. Loop was the general auditor. Since then he has been General Manager and Vice President.

He was one of the many examples of men in the transportation industry whose career began in the lowest grades of service and by unremitting attention to duty rose to the highest positions in the service. Mr. Loop was keenly interested in the welfare of Chattanooga, and was a pillar of strength in the city's commercial and industrial life. He held membership in many clubs and lodges, among them the New York Athletic Club, American Museum of Natural History, and New York Zoological Society.

The children who survive Mr. Loop are Mrs. G. Manning Ellis, William Rush, Chester Henning, and John Lewis of Chattanooga, and Mrs. Spencer Lewis of Boston. His wife died in 1910. The body will be taken to Memphis Friday for interment.

THEODOR LESCHETIZKY DIES

DRESDEN, Nov. 17.—Theodor Leschetizky, the famous teacher of the piano, is dead at the age of 85. He lived for many years at Vienna, but more recently at a village near Dresden. He was the principal master of Paderewski.

Leschetizky made his début in Vienna in 1845 and for several years taught piano at St. Petersburg Conservatory.

Theodor Leschetizky has been the most famous teacher of great pianists of the present generation, and aspiring students, who flocked to Vienna from all countries, considered themselves "made" if they could be admitted to his classes. Among the great pianists now in this country on account of the war there is scarcely one who has not come under his instruction or influence in one way or another, just as there is hardly a musical magazine which has let a year of its issues go by without at least one article descriptive of some phase of the "Leschetizky method."

He was born in Austrian Poland and attracted notice by his piano playing in Vienna when he was 15 years old. He retired from the St. Petersburg Conservatory in 1878 and went to Vienna. His marriage with his pupil, Mme. Essipoff, took place in 1880 and was dissolved in 1882, and two years later he married another pupil. He is the composer of a successful opera, "Die Erste Falte," and has written many salon pieces for the piano. His father was a prominent teacher in Vienna and was his first master. Later he studied with Czerny in pianoforte and with Sechter in composition.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 17.—In selecting Parker Allen for right end, the Yale football coaches today settled the lineup for the game at Harvard next Saturday. Otherwise they will stand pat on the make-up of the team as it faced Princeton.

Jim Higginbotham, the former University of Texas outpost, was picked ahead of Allen to succeed Carl Wiedeman, when the latter was injured last Saturday. When it became evident last Sunday that Wiedeman could play no more this season, the coaches were undecided between Higginbotham and Allen, and both had been tried in the position this week. Today they used Allen alone and tonight definitely announced his selection.

Allen is a Meriden boy and was prepared for Yale at Andover, where he played tackle. He was tackle for the freshmen last year. He and Moseley have been Yale ends most of this season. He is 20 years old, weighs 170 pounds, and is 5 feet 10 inches in height.

No serious thought of lineup changes other than that made imperative by the injury to Wiedeman has been tolerated by the coaches, who have adhered to the principle laid down when the directorate of ten, headed by Tom Shevlin, took charge of the squad three weeks ago.

Today twenty coaches, the largest staff gathered at Yale in years, assembled in the Bowl for the final practice of the season. John Kilpatrick, Howard Jones and Lucius Bigelow were in uniform to illustrate a few Harvard tricks to the 'Varsity defense. Every member of the directorate summoned by Captain Wilson was present and, although no speeches were made, all had a few words to say to the individual warriors.

Illustrating a few plays in which the coaches wished to polish the eleven in both attacking and defensive work, dummy football which was strenuous enough to be termed routine scrimmage was ordered. The second team included the pick of the freshmen, the ineligible and the scrub elevens. Again Harry Legore, taking the plays in Harvard formation, in which Ned Mahan stars, was driven into the 'Varsity rushline, whose defense seemed wonderfully improved over the form shown yesterday. The regulars appeared to have grasped the mystery of the Harvard attack through the laboratory demonstration given them yesterday when the second team first tried it on them, and they met it firmly and in most cases drove it back.

No attempts at scoring touchdowns were made, but both offensive and defensive work were tried, the final feature being the lineup of the 'Varsity in kick formation with the second team endeavoring to crash through and block the field goals of Otis Guernsey from drop kicks. In no case were the opposing team able to reach Guernsey, attesting to the perfection reached by the protective formation devised by Tom Shevlin.

Guernsey was in his cleverest form as drop kick lifter. Out of eight tries he boosted six over the crossbar, beginning at the thirty-yard line and gradually moving backward until the last two, which were perfect successes, were hoisted from, respectively, the forty-one and the forty-three yard mark.

Captain Wilson, Way, and Church, who remained longer in the Princeton game than any other of the Eli players, were excused from the drill after the signal rehearsal, following the play around the field during the scrimmaging, while Baldridge, Higginbotham, and Jaques played their positions.

Tonight the entire squad were the guests of Major Louis E. Stoddard at his residence, Tenacres, on Prospect Hill, where a vaudeville exhibition and beefsteak dinner were served.

Part of the players' equipment was shipped to Boston tonight, the remainder going with the eleven tomorrow at 1:40 o'clock. Of the squad thirty-seven players will be taken to the Woodland Park Hotel, Auburndale.

Arrangements have been made for the Yale squad to practice in the stadium about 1 o'clock Friday afternoon for an hour, the Harvard team following them in final signal and punting rehearsal. Late Friday afternoon the players will take an automobile ride around the Boston suburbs.

Maroon's Strenuous Preparation for Carlisle Game.

Fordham 'Varsity and scrub battled for over three hours yesterday in preparation for the game with Carlisle on Saturday. It was the longest scrimmage of the year, but the Maroon players all finished in fine condition. Mulcahy kept at his task of fighting back into the regular line-up and he is showing a big improvement. His sudden grasp of the low charging methods insisted on by Coach Vaughn shows the effect of a forced vacation from the place he occupied for two years at left tackle. Hall, who has taken Corriden's place at left end, figured prominently in the fray. He completely outclassed his scrub rival and got away with five forward passes. Most of the players had watched the senior-junior game early in the afternoon and were fighting to show that they outclassed the former 'Varsity players who figured in the class contest. McGuire went back to guard, and with Kendrick and Treanor, the left side of the line was like a stone wall. Golden used a varied method of attack. Starting with straight plays he soon swung into the kind of attack the Maroon will use against Carlisle.

Fordham Seniors Victors.

The first of the interclass football games at Fordham was played yesterday, the Seniors defeating the Juniors, 19 to 0. Viviano made the first score after taking a long forward; O'Connell made his on a broken field run of twenty yards, while in the last period Butler was brought back to full back and smashed the Junior centre

HARVARD'S LAST SCRIMMAGE

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 17.—Harvard held its final scrimmage for the Yale game this afternoon. The scrub team, which had scheduled a game at St. Paul's School, at the last moment was recalled and went into a short but very brisk scrimmage against the regulars. The coaches allowed no tackling, but the drive was hard on both teams. The scrubs have been working for ten days on the Yale attack, but were able to do little with it today. The regulars broke through well, and showed that they have learned the defensive assignment lessons.

On attack the 'Varsity did not put on any frills, but aimed to make more smooth the plays it has been using most of the Fall. There are a few variations, of course, but Harvard will play the same game as it did against Princeton, only hoping to put its "stuff" on better. The backs had a long drill in catching kicks this afternoon, Coach Leary, who kicks a very high and hard ball to handle, providing this practice. Mahan also did some splendid kicking. He made at least four punts of more than sixty yards yesterday and was just as good this afternoon. Mahan's punts have great height, and the ends have been speeded up to get down under them. Soucy was shifted to the left side of the rush line today, but it is not known what the arrangement of the Crimson rushers will be on Saturday.

Gilman and Parson may be shifted, and as the heavy guard, Cowen, will start the game, it will not be known until the last moment whether he will be on the right or the left side of Wallace.

Billy Boles, the regular right half back, was used this afternoon at quarter back for the scrubs for a time, and McKinlock got into the scrimmage. Boles may displace Watson if the latter is not injured, and would mean that Enwright would go to half back. Enwright was on the field today and in togs, and the managers said that they had heard nothing about his being placed on probation, this being one of the rumors that was about the college campus today.

Harvard is now physically fit for the game. There will be a short drill tomorrow, and then the men will go to Lowell, Mass., to remain until Saturday morning. It has been decided that Taylor will not begin the game at guard, but he is now in shape to enter any time he is needed. Parson and Gilman received a lot of coaching this afternoon from C. Blagden, the veteran tackle of the 1901 championship team. Parson was the weakest of all the Harvard rushers against Princeton, but the coaches are confident that he will be able to duplicate last year's brilliant game against Yale again this year.

COLUMBIA DEFENSE WEAK.

Coach Nelson Metcalf gave the Columbia football defense a long drill yesterday afternoon at practice, and found it in a rather disorganized state. For nearly an hour the freshmen eleven pounded away at the 'Varsity, making use of all the open formations it has used this season, and it was some time before the first team took a brace and held the ball. The freshmen were particularly proficient in forward passing, whereas the secondary defense of the 'Varsity showed little ability to figure the plays in advance, and to disrupt them after they had started. Dunn, the freshman right half back, made several good gains by wide end runs.

As soon as the 'Varsity showed anything resembling a stone-wall defense, Coach Metcalf switched the program and put his players through a series of trick plays, with the freshmen team trying to break up the attack. Columbia will use many open and trick formations in Saturday's game with New York University, and yesterday's results showed the Blue and White ready with a strong and active offensive team.

Punting was another phase of gridiron work that received extra drilling yesterday. In the three games so far played by Columbia the punting distances made by Captain Simonds and Mansbach were far short of those negotiated during the practice hours. The Columbia kickers hold the ball too long, and then have difficulty in executing a good spiral with the right distance and direction. Simonds, Mansbach, and Donoho showed ability yesterday, averaging more than forty yards, and another drill in the kicking department will be on today's program.

Bill Wadleton, half back, was out for the first time since the Stevens game, in which he dislocated his left shoulder. He trotted around the field, but did not engage in the scrimmage or signal drill. It is not likely that he will be used Saturday in the N. Y. U. contest, but he will be in condition for the Wesleyan game on Thanksgiving Day. Wilber returned yesterday after an injury, and was immediately put in his old position at right tackle. He will probably start Saturday's game.

Middies Cheer Their Eleven.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 17.—There was a continuation of secret practice at the Naval Academy this afternoon, the only people admitted being those connected with the service. The forward pass plays which will be used against the Army were practiced and the smooth work of the backs and ends called forth hearty applause from the Midshipmen who filled the stands. Johnson, Von Heimburg and Blodgett, from whom the ends will be chosen, all showed that they had learned to hold the ball on the pass plays. The only real competition for a place on the team is that of Blodgett and Von Heimburg at left end. The one chosen will drop back to do the punting, and Blodgett seems slightly the favorite at present. He has something in weight and experience on his competitor and is covering more ground with his punts.

Official figures of the weights of the players show that the back field, composed of Craig, Davis, Westphal and Martin, is the lightest that the Academy has had for years. Its average is 161 pounds, just twenty pounds per man lighter than last year's back field. The line averages well up to teams of former years.

Brown Team to Cross Continent.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 17.—The Brown University football team will cross the continent during the Christmas recess to meet the University of Washington eleven at Pasadena, Cal., on New Year's Day, in connection with the observance of the annual tournament of roses. The squad will leave Dec. 22 and return two days after college resumes, President Faunce announced tonight.

EMERGENCY MEN N. Y. U. TEAM'S NEED

The New York University 'Varsity football team, with all except two of the regulars back again in the lineup, engaged in a good drill lasting over an hour yesterday on Ohio Field. The work was limited, however, to some further drill with the plays and formations which the Violet expects to use in its game against the Columbia team on Saturday, and Coach Reilley excused the team from the regular daily scrimmage with the scrub aggregation. Except for a brief practice in handling the leather and in kicking, the signal rehearsal occupied the entire period for the regulars, although the second eleven underwent a more difficult ordeal against the De Witt Clinton High School team.

Realizing the uncertainty which will handicap the Violet in the Columbia game, providing only the first string players are available, Reilley is taking no chances, and in the event that any of the regulars are injured in the game, he will have at his disposal several second-string players of 'Varsity calibre to put in the vacancies. Egan, who has been out of practice for two days, returned to his position at right end yesterday, but Reilley is also keeping "Jerry" Noonan, who rejoined the squad yesterday after an interval of several days' absence, in training for this position.

In the back field, the reinforcement of Taylor, and Sterret, last year's Captain of the Culver Military Academy eleven, is expected to be ample provision for any emergency. Reilley tried out Sterret, the new back field candidate, in full back position, and appeared to be well satisfied with the experiment. It is not expected that Erwig, the regular right half back, will have sufficiently recovered from his injuries to play a full game Saturday, but Taylor, whom Reilley is coaching for either this place or the full back position, is expected to complete the shift of offensive machine with little difficulty. Taylor as a running mate of Cann, the New York team's sensational left half back, may be depended upon for a large share of the attack against the Blue and White eleven.

A dinner and football rally was provided for the regulars in the gymnasium. The affair was attended by a large part of the student body and was arranged in order to stimulate enthusiasm for the work of the eleven in anticipation of its battle against Columbia on Saturday. Besides the members of the team, Coaches Reilley, Gorsch, "Ray" Hulsart, '05, and Dr. John P. Munn, President of the Athletic Association, were guests. Speeches by Coach Reilley, Dean Archibald L. Bouton, Dr. Lilmouze, and Dr. Munn were greeted with applause.

SURPRISE FOR COLUMBIA.

The old days of Columbia's football triumphs were recalled last night, when at 9:30 o'clock about 500 students from New York University marched across the Columbia campus and aroused the students in the nearby dormitories with their cheers. The "serenade," which was only a demonstration before the football game between N. Y. U. and Columbia on Saturday, took the Blue and White men by surprise, and for a time they thought they were due for a battle with their rival collegians. About 600 Columbia boys rushed out on the campus prepared to repel the "invaders" if it became necessary, but they found themselves among friends and athletic rivals. Cheers of both colleges were then given on the university steps. None of the Columbia boys could recall any such demonstration in their time at the university, but the old-timers on the heights harkened back to 1905 when Columbia defeated Yale.

Led by several cheer leaders, the band of demonstrative students formed in marching order, and in lockstep proceeded down Broadway on either side as far as 113th Street, where they turned and came back to the college green, and once more gave their college cheers and then dispersed.

Residents of Morningside Heights were imbued with the spirit of the occasion and turned out in thousands to view the Broadway procession of the exuberant collegians.

Wesleyan Prepares for Trinity.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Nov. 17.—Wesleyan is preparing to meet Trinity at Hartford on Saturday, and is favorite at present. A team composed of the ineligibles and coaches including Dan Kenan, last year's captain, and assistant coach, is making the regulars word hard. Wesleyan has the best team that has represented the college for ten years. Deetjen and Harman, are expected to outshine Brickley of Trinity. Deetjen has made more yards on end runs than any other man, while Harman holds the record for the longest run, 95 yards against Williams.

CORNELL IN HARD 'BOUT.'

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 17.—The Cornell football team today was compelled to play its best to score a single touchdown on the scrubs. The scrimmage was one of the liveliest staged here in weeks. The 'Varsity played with power and showed good form, but had to work hard for its gains. With the exception of a couple of forward passes, Shelton and Eckley carrying the ball, the regulars used straight football almost entirely, making most of their gains on dashes outside of tackle. After they reached the five-yard line, Mueller ran through centre for a touchdown.

The whole team played this afternoon except Jameson, the left tackle, who did not report until late in the day, so Welles was placed in that position on the 'Varsity. The Cornell squad appeared to be in excellent condition. Bard, first choice substitute guard, who turned an ankle in yesterday's practice, was unable to play today. The coaches think that he will be in shape in a few days, but in the meantime Dan Reed is grooming McKeage and Snyder for the positions. Reed is going to hold Tilley as a general utility lineman, sending him into a position which may appear to be weakening. Welles and Jewett are to be the substitute tackles and Ryerson and Zander the substitute ends.

Coach Sharpe expects to take at least three extra backs to Philadelphia, Hoffman, Schlichter, Lewis, and probably Benedict.

When the team got through scrimmaging this afternoon it went into the baseball cage and for an hour worked out the new plays that Sharpe has devised to fool the Quakers. The Ithacans have at least a dozen of these plays, which Barrett will be instructed to use freely. It would not be surprising if Cornell's tactics were much different in this Pennsylvania game than in the earlier contests.

Dartmouth's Work Nearly Ended.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 17.—No scrimmage was held today for the Dartmouth squad as the two hours before darkness set in were spent in a hard signal drill. Dusossoit continued in his new position at quarter back with Worthington on left end and Coach Cavanaugh seems quite pleased with the result. It is still uncertain regarding Carolan's condition. He is still progressing rapidly and may be dismissed from the hospital tonight. If so, he will make the Syracuse trip. Tomorrow's practice will begin at two o'clock to enable Coach Cavanaugh to get in a light practice before the team leaves at 5 o'clock. The squad of thirty men, coaches, managers, trainers, and faculty members of the athletic council will drive to White River Junction, where they will have dinner preparatory to leaving on the 6 o'clock train for Syracuse. They will arrive there Friday morning and that afternoon they will have a light practice.

Syracuse Ready for Dartmouth.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 17.—A brief scrimmage this afternoon featured the final hard practice of the year for the Syracuse University football team. The eleven will play Dartmouth in the stadium here Saturday. Immediately after the Dartmouth game eighteen members of the squad, in charge of Assistant Coach M. F. Horr, Manager E. H. Crooks, and Graduate Manager W. S. Smith, will leave on a trip of approximately 8,000 miles and which will require about three weeks. Three games are to be played, University of Montana at Missoula on Thanksgiving Day, Oregon Aggies at Portland on Dec. 1, and Occidental College at Los Angeles on Dec. 4.

SLOSSON NO MATCH FOR WILLIE HOPPE

Willie Hoppe won his second match in the 18.2 handicap billiard tournament at the New York Theatre Building Concert Hall last night, when he defeated George Slosson by a score of 500 to 168. Again it was demonstrated that no system of numerical handicapping, except that it assume very large proportions, offers the opponents of the champion an even chance of victory. Slosson started with an advantage of 125 points and he could add only forty-three to this total before Hoppe ran out his full string of 500. For an expert Slosson played an ordinary type of game, one that would not include him, as far as average was concerned, with Class B amateurs. This no doubt in part is accounted for by the fact that there is always a certain amount of discouragement in playing against Hoppe's wonderful skill. Slosson must have realized that even with the liberal handicap he was struggling against inevitable victory for the champion. His game reflected it, for his average was only 2 11-16, while Hoppe made 31 4-16.

Hoppe did not make any such runs as those which marked his first game of the tournament, but he always gave an exhibition of interesting billiards, combining close play with occasional sparkling around-the-table shots. In estimating the play of the champion, who is to be his opponent in a later game, Welker Cochran said: "The thing that impresses me about Hoppe in tournament competition is not how he makes his shots, but how it is that he ever misses." That seemed to be the case last night. Hoppe would go along smoothly, holding the globes under perfect control, and then, when every one was anticipating a long run, he unexpectedly failed on an easy shot.

The best run that Hoppe made was 87. He was not left a particularly good position to start with, the balls being widely separated. His second count in this inning was one of the prettiest shots of the match—a drive twice the length of the table. The champion soon had the ivories in command and began to weave them across the end of the table for quick counts. He played them close along the lines and clicked off many of his points on the delicate line nurse, his blocking of the first object ball being perfect. This run ended with a miss of an easy two-cushion shot when all three balls were nested close in one corner.

Hoppe's first turn at the table gave him a run of 59, and in the eighth inning he took the lead from Slosson, who had gained in that time only 32 points to add to his handicap of 125.

Hoppe (scratch)—59 0 1 3 48 0 4 65 18 43 0 87 29 48 8 87. Total—500. High runs—87, 87, and 65. Average—31 4-16.

Slosson (125)—0 6 7 0 4 0 14 1 0 1 2 1 4 0 2 0. Total—168. High runs—14, 7, and 6. Average—2 11-16.

Referee—George Moore.

Koji Yamada, playing with a handicap of 125, defeated Joseph Mayer, the former amateur champion, handicapped at 125, in the afternoon game, by a score of 500 to 458. This makes the second defeat for Mayer, who was considered one of the formidable contestants in the tournament. He started well in yesterday's match, and it seemed that he would be returned a winner. At one time, with the handicap included, Mayer was leading his rival 104 points, but in every instance that Mayer drew away to a lead the Jap would follow with a long run that placed him close to his opponent. Still Mayer was maintaining an advantage, and Yamada was always contesting in an uphill game.

In the twenty-fifth inning Mayer, with a run of 33, made the score 458 to 380, and then the Jap started on what proved to be one of the prettiest runs of the tournament, the best made by any contestant other than Hoppe. The total gradually mounted as a result of close play until Yamada won the match with an unfinished run of 111. Yamada's average was 15, while Mayer's was 11 8-25. The scores:

Yamada, (125.)—7 0 9 11 7 14 18 0 14 0 0 1 19 1 1 0 33 12 29, 32 31 21 0 4 111—Total, 500. High runs—111, 33, and 32. Average, 15.

Mayer, (175.)—51 3 0 44 11 0 15 15 14 0 0 6 12 2 7 4 10 0 2 21 23 0 3 33—Total, 458. High runs—51, 44, and 33. Average, 11 8-25.

Referee, George Moore.

Other Winners with the Cue.

Charles Morin, the Chicago representative in the Interstate Three-Cushion Billiard League, last night won a closely contested match with Charles Otis of Brooklyn at the Brooklyn Billiard Academy by a score of 50 points to 42. The game went ninety-two innings, and from the start the Western cueist held a small lead. Morin recorded the highest run of the game, gathering six points in one inning, while Otis's best effort netted him four points. Morin plays John Danklman in Philadelphia tonight.

In the handicap three-cushion billiard tournament at the Audubon Billiard Academy last night, W. Miller scored over Dr. H. Pope by a 50 to 19 count. Pope plays at 25 points and Miller at 42. Miller made a trio of runs of three points each, while two was the biggest number Pope could collect in a single inning. The match was decided in eighty-one innings.

Yesterday afternoon at Fuller's Billiard Academy, 110th Street and Broadway, J. P. Jager defeated F. W. French in a three-cushion billiard game, 24 to 19. Jager had three runs of four points.

The final match was played last night in the one-cushion balk line tournament at the Knickerbocker Billiard Academy, Brooklyn, and resulted in C. R. Lewis winning third prize by defeating C. P. Matthews by a score of 185 to 166. Matthews had to make a score of 185 to win. In the forty-eight innings of play Lewis recorded an average of 3 41-48 against Matthews's 3 22-48. The victor had runs of 22, 20, and 17, while Matthews made the biggest collection when he totaled 26 points in the thirty-fourth inning. He also had clusters of 18 and 13.

Rutgers and Stevens Game Next.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 17.—Coach George Foster Sanford put the Rutgers team through a hard drill this afternoon in preparation for the Stevens Tech game on Saturday. The two colleges have played annually for the last thirty years, and the game always has drawn a big crowd of alumni from both institutions. During the past few years Rutgers has won rather easily, but the game has the interest of tradition and is always hard fought. Sanford will start the regular team on Saturday. Bracher, Talman, and Scarr are sure to begin hostilities, and it is probable that Wittpenn, who was out of the All-Star game at the Polo Grounds will be in shape to play. Much time has been spent this week on Jackson and Robeson, the two big freshmen, and they will get a chance to show their ability on Saturday. Nash, the star tackle, is rounding into the form which made him practically invincible earlier in the season, and will be the principal performer in the Rutgers forward pass combinations.

More Alleged "Pros" Suspended.

YACHT PRIZES DISTRIBUTED.

At an executive meeting of the Gravesend Bay Yacht Racing Association held last night at the Crescent Athletic Club, Brooklyn, the winners of the championships in their various classes last season were announced.

J. Stuart Blackton's Virginia won the title in the Q Division, with nine out of a possible ten victories. In the second handicap class, C. D. Byram's Careless was first, with W. Anderson's May second. The third division handicap prize went to C. Hollinstad's, Bug. The Mouse owned and sailed by A. F. Luffer, easily carried off the honors in the knockabout class. Among the Stars, K. H. Finlay's Meteor was declared the champion. The Davis Cup, an added trophy donated by Gherardi Davis, was taken by C. D. Byram's Careless.

The meeting was called to order by Carle de Zafra, President of the association, C. A. Merritt, Bergen Beach Yacht Club, acting as Secretary. A communication was read from the Gravesend Bay Yacht Club asking for admittance to the organization. The request was granted, and the club will become an active member from the first of next year.

The members present voted to give championship shields to the yachts which won the most races in the various classes during last season. It was also decided to place the names of the clubs which hold an associate membership with the association upon these championship insignia.

Gherardi Davis was elected an honorary member of the association, the only other yachtsman to hold this title being John R. Brophy of the Atlantic Yacht Club.

Among those present were C. A. Kelly, Brooklyn Y. C.; John R. Brophy, Atlantic Y. C.; A. F. Aridge, Crescent A. C.; S. L. Finlay, Atlantic Y. C.; W. E. Inman, New York Canoe Club; C. A. Merritt, Bergen Beach Y. C., and Carle de Zafra, Atlantic Y. C.

Cornell in Tie Soccer Game.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 17.—Cornell and Haverford battled in a 1 to 1 tie in soccer here this afternoon. The Ithacans showed a lot of improvement since their game with Yale last Saturday, and their strong defense rather surprised the Haverford team. Both Thomas and Carey scored in the first half. Captain Thomas and Dyer played best for Cornell, while Carey and Stokes starred for the visitors. As the result of the tie each team scored one point in the standing.

LINOW HURTS SHOULDER.

Bones were bent and dispositions were disturbed at the International Wrestling Tournament at the Manhattan Opera House last night. It was a night of entertaining sport and it amused the big crowd, but it was more or less embarrassing to the wrestlers.

Ivan Linow, the Russian Cossack, wrestled to a twenty-minute draw with Karl Pospisil of Bohemia, and after the bout was over Referee George Bothner discovered that the Cossack's shoulder had been dislocated and that he had wrestled the last few minutes of the bout entirely on his nerve.

The best bout brought together Helmar Johnson of Sweden and George Sandele, the Greek. It was a spirited bout from the start and the best tactics of wrestling were brought into play before the Swede finally pinned the Greek to the mat.

The most amusing tilt was the bout between the Greek Tofalos and Hevonpaa of Finland. These contestants were to wrestle to a finish, but the Finn resorted to rough tactics and commenced to wrestle his opponent in catch-as-catch-can style, and he was promptly disqualified by the referee after 36 minutes and 59 seconds of wrestling.

The most accomplished bit of work on the mat was contributed by Zbyszko, who tossed his opponent, Asam of Bavaria, to the mat in less than two minutes. He floored his opponent with a waist and pivot hold and had the Bavarian so dizzy that he had to be assisted from the mat. The summary:

The matches scheduled for tonight are as follows: Hevonpaa, Finland, vs. Cutler, America, to a finish; Johnson, Sweden, vs. Pospisil, Bohemia; Wagner, Germany, vs. Balsa, Spain; La Coloese, France, vs. Tofalos, Greece; Gardini, Italy, vs. Asam, Bavaria; Irsa, Austria, vs. Olsen, Denmark. The great Daro of Hungary vs. Zbyszko of Poland, (return match.)

Pitcher Shaw Seriously Wounded.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Nov. 17.—It became known here today that James Shaw, a pitcher of the Washington club of the American League, was probably fatally injured yesterday while hunting in Westmoreland County. Shaw and a companion were making their way through a wood when Shaw's gun was accidentally discharged as he climbed over a fence. The charge entered his neck. He was taken to a farmhouse nearby, and then brought to a hospital here.

Why the City Uses Garfords

This winter a battery of Garford motor trucks will take the place of horse-drawn street sweepers on the streets of New York.

Street Cleaning Commissioner John T. Fetherston reached this decision after the big snow and sleet storm of March 6 and 7, 1915.

At that time a number of Garfords, equipped with heavy scrapers, were put to work in Central Park where deep snow drifts had blocked all traffic.

Starting at 6 o'clock on Saturday evening, the Garfords worked continuously until 5 o'clock the following day. By that time the roads assigned to them were entirely cleaned.

In 23 hours the motor trucks had completed the work for which the city's horse-drawn sweepers formerly required 10 days.

Garford Motor Trucks

"Last year we found that the Garford trucks performed good work and I propose to hire an additional number for snow work this coming winter," he declares.

Garfords are not affected by weather conditions. They are equally reliable winter or summer. They can work continuously—24 hours a day if necessary. And—they involve no expense when not working.

No matter what your business—whether it is large or small—there is a Garford which will exactly fill your needs.

LONG RACING SEASON ON NEW YORK TRACKS

It has been practically decided that there will be Fall racing on the Aqueduct and Jamaica tracks, as well as at Belmont Park, during the Autumn of 1916. This conclusion was reached at a meeting of the men who finance the tracks in the metropolitan district as well as that at Saratoga and those in what has come to be known as the Maryland circuit. Dates will be agreed upon during the Winter months when the racing now in progress at the Bowie (Md.) track is concluded.

This year there was a fourteen days' meeting at Belmont Park in September, with the incidental racing at the Hunt Club tracks, which is very "sporty," but has never been able to enlist material public patronage. Arrangements made a year ago, and the allotment of dates to the Maryland circuit tracks, prevented any racing at Aqueduct or Jamaica the past Autumn, or—owing to a legal squabble over the lease of the Empire City track at Yonkers—at that point. Owners of the Maryland tracks, all but one of which are concerned by the same men interested in racing in the vicinity of New York, are understood to have consented to a shortening of the season at those tracks, even though with the pari-mutuel system of betting in vogue there they have proved to be "gold mines" to the owners, so that about thirty days of racing in the Fall can be had at the New York tracks.

Tentative plans call for racing here from the close of the Saratoga meeting—the last week in August—up to about the middle of October, before the exodus to the Maryland tracks, where the season may be stretched out to close about Dec. 15. The change is said to be due to the persistent demands of owners that they be allowed to race in the vicinity of New York City at the season of the year when horses are at their best and when New Yorkers, returned from their Summer outings, most want racing. These owners and trainers prefer to have their horses race here than take them to the Maryland tracks, where the courses are not so good, and the facilities for caring for their horses not equal to those in this vicinity.

So much more successful than had been expected was the race season here the last Summer, the Metropolitan Jockey Club has decided to complete the work of restoring the Jamaica track to its old form. Plans have been prepared for the rebuilding of the roof over the grand stand, which was destroyed by storms a few Winters ago. Work on this structure will be begun in the early Spring, and be ready for the race-goers when the Summer meeting is held next year.

That the members of The Jockey Club who are financially interested in the Belmont Park and Saratoga tracks believe that racing is to take on a new lease of life is evidenced by the fact that they have already announced an increase in the size of the purses, to $500, $600, and $700, for races at Belmont Park track, where the Westchester Association holds its meetings. The same association has increased the stakes for the Spring meeting, entries for which close next Monday, by changing them from guaranteed stakes to sweepstakes with added moneys, which will materially increase their value to the winner. Thus $2,500 has been added to the Suburban Handicap, $2,000 to the Metropolitan Handicap, $1,500 each to the Ladies and Toboggan Handicaps, and $800 each to the Harlem, Hollis, and Amateur Cup, enhancing the value of each by a third or more over their value the past season. Guaranteed value of the Juvenile and Keene Memorial stakes for two-year-olds has been increased from $3,000 each to $5,000, and the Fashion from $2,500 to $3,500. These latter increases are due to the fact that there now promises to be about double the number of youngsters in training in 1916 over those in 1915. The value of the Belmont stakes of 1917 for three-year-olds, for the same reason, has been raised from $2,500 of 1915 to $7,500, and of the Withers for the same year from $2,000 to $5,000.

The Saratoga Association has also increased the value of its two-year-old stakes, the most important change—due probably to the fact that the Coney Island Futurity has been shifted from its track to the Belmont Park Fall meeting—being an increase of the value of the hopeful from $7,500 to $17,500, which will make it close to the Futurity in its gross value. Both the United States and Grand Union have been increased from $5,000 each to $7,500 each.

The Westchester Association has also announced that it will increase the value of the Futurity for the Autumn meeting of 1918, entries for which close on Jan. 3, next, by adding $5,000 to the stakes, of which $1,750 will be divided between the breeders of the three placed horses in the race.

APPEAL FOR AUCHTERLONIE.

Erasmus Hall School to Fight Debarment of Full Back.

The action of the Public Schools Athletic League in debarring James Auchterlonie, full back on the Erasmus Hall football eleven, from competition in scholastic sports has stirred the Erasmus Hall authorities and Dr. Walter B. Gunnison, principal of the high school, asserts that he will not abide by the decision of the High Schools Games Committee, but will appeal to the Board of Education. Dr. Gunnison says that Auchterlonie will play the two remaining football games on the Erasmus Hall schedule and will take part in other forms of athletic activity.

Dr. Gunnison, who feels that Auchterlonie has been unfairly treated, says that the institution will defend the full back. Dr. James Sullivan, principal of Boys' High School, which protested Auchterlonie, and Dr. Gunnison agreed before the Boys'-Erasmus Hall football game to submit the Auchterlonie case to arbitration and they have picked Dr. Clarence Meleney, Assistant Superintendent of Schools, as chairman of the arbitration committee. The other two members have not been selected.

Dr. Gunnison asserts that Auchterlonie failed in only Latin at Boys' High School. Mr. Auchterlonie, the boy's father, is incensed at the action in regard to the young athlete and denies that his son was about to be dropped from Boys' High School when he decided to enter Erasmus Hall. He says that if such a record exists, he will ask the Board of Education to remove it. Meanwhile Auchterlonie remains barred from scholastic competition.

WINSTON BEATS CORDIER.

National Squash Tennis Champion Wins Columbia Club Tournament.

Eric S. Winston, of the Harvard Club, national squash tennis champion, won the first tournament of the 1915-16 season yesterday at the Columbia University Club, when he defeated A. J. Cordier, Heights Casino, in three straight games at 21—11, 21—14, 21—16. The result was according to the form displayed by the two players during the tournament. Winston maintained his best form throughout the match and appeared to have plenty in reserve, although he was not required to extend himself to win.

Although the score was one-sided the contest was interesting and brought out many smart rallies and rapid exchange of shots. Cordier appeared slightly uncertain with his stroke, although he steadied as the match progressed and at the end was fighting for every point. Winston was more at home than his opponent on the neutral courts and played the corner and sharp angle shots with confidence and precision. He drove the ball hard to all parts of the court and bothered Cordier by his clever handling of the wall shots.

Forming Private Schools League.

Headmasters of five New York and Brooklyn private schools met last evening at the Columbia University Faculty Club for the first session, preparatory to organizing an association to govern private school athletics. The election of officers and the routine matters of business were postponed until the first meeting of representatives of all private schools, which will be held on Nov. 29 at the Faculty club.

Dr. Virgil Prettiman, Headmaster of the Horace Mann School, presided as temporary chairman, and appointed the following committee on organization: Dr. Eugene C. Alder of Adelphi Academy, Dr. A. N. Shaw of Hamilton Institute, Dr. W. T. Hazen of the Barnard School and Dr. D. R. Lane of Polytechnic Preparatory School. The scope of the association will be to regulate the eligibility of members of school teams and to supervise all branches of private school athletics.

A tentative list of rules and regulations was drawn up and these will be submitted to all the private and preparatory schools around New York who have expressed a desire to join the prospective league. These rules were drawn up with the assistance of Rowland Patterson of the Public Schools Athletic League, and will conform with most of the important regulations of the latter organization.

SINCLAIR WILL NOT LEAD NEW YORK CLUB

Boston Man Probably Will Head Federal League Invasion of Manhattan.

It is now definitely known that Harry F. Sinclair of the Newark Club of the Federal League will not be the new owner of the New York Club which is to have a place on Manhattan Island within a short time. James A. Gilmore said yesterday that the owner was a man not before identified with baseball, and it is understood that he comes from Boston.

It was reported yesterday that a meeting had been held at the Biltmore between the owner of the prospective New York Feds and James A. Gilmore and Harry F. Sinclair, but there was no definite information concerning it. Gilmore said yesterday that the league was not ready to announce all of the details of the proposed invasion of New York, but that the Federal League was opposed to any syndicate baseball whereby one man would dominate two clubs.

It had been the general impression that Sinclair was to be the owner of the Federal League club in this city, as it was reported that he entered the Federal League only on the condition that if such a club was formed he would have the controlling interest. The effect of a double ownership, however, might have a bad effect on the public, and this was no doubt realized by the Federal League, so that a new man was brought in. This owner is said to be a friend of Sinclair and of the late Robert B. Ward, and practically all of the details for the New York invasion were arranged before the death of the latter.

Gilmore said that the plans for the new park and its exact location on Manhattan Island would be announced next Tuesday or Wednesday. Several places have been suggested as the possible home of the Feds in this city, one the grounds at 225th Street and Broadway, which were a couple of years ago selected by Frank Farrell as a new home for the Yankees. The only intimation that Gilmore would give was that the ball park to be was located on or near subway and surface lines that would make it accessible.

Pat Powers said yesterday that all the talk of the Federal League seeking meetings with the representatives of organized baseball was contrary to the facts. The Feds, he said, had never sought a peace conference with the men of organized baseball, and that all conferences that had been held were at the solicitation of a member of the National Commission. In view of the interest that Garry Herrmann has evinced in peace, he was suggested as the possible leader of the conferences. Powers, however, said that John K. Tener, President of the National League, was the one who was instrumental in making overtures to the Federal League. He added that he had definite proof that such was the case, and if necessary could supply it to justify his statement.

It now develops that the conference at Philadelphia was the last, and not the first, meeting between the representatives of the warring factions. Powers says that five conferences in all were held at the solicitation of organized baseball, and that they came at intervals during the Summer.

While President Tener is understood to have leanings toward some kind of a settlement, he has always emphatically denied that organized baseball ever asked for a meeting with the Federals.

Edward G. Barrow, President of the International League, returned to this city yesterday from San Francisco, where he has been attending the National Association of Minor Leagues meeting. He said the minor leagues had pledged their loyalty to organized baseball under any conditions which might arise, but that it was agreed the coming season would be a hard year in baseball. A policy of retrenchment and economy would be in force, with shorter training trips and a reduced number of players. The minors agreed to sustain the rule that no jumper to the Federals would be taken back into organized baseball.

Speaking of his own league, he said there was nothing definite to announce regarding changes in the circuit, but that the only one being considered was in relation to Harrisburg, which was formerly Newark. There has been talk that the Harrisburg Club would be transferred either to Hartford or Springfield, and Barrow remarked that it was not unlikely that one or the other would be selected, provided the Eastern Association, which discontinued last year, was not revived next season. He has had men looking over the conditions in both cities, and the report has been favorable. It is understood now that the New England Association will be revived, and in that case the Harrisburg Club could not invade its territorial right. In any event, it is certain that Harrisburg will be transferred to some other city. After the removal from Newark the club did very well at the new location for a few weeks, but the end of the season at Harrisburg did not show so favorably that it could be considered as a permanent city in the circuit.

Bill Donovan received a letter from Johnny Evers yesterday which was to the effect that Pipp, the first baseman of the Yanks, who is now on the Coast with the All-Nationals and All-Americans, was doing the best work of any of the men. Mullen, another Yankee, is making a record as a second baseman, so that it seems as if Daniel Boone would have to work to hold his position next season.

FIFTY-MILE COACHING TRIP.

Horse Show Officials and Exhibitors Enjoy Drive to Westbury.

The first step toward the revival of four-in-hand long-distance coaching were taken yesterday when a party of officials and exhibitors at the recent Horse Show at Madison Square Garden made the trip from the Hotel Biltmore to Old Westbury, L. I., and return, a distance of nearly fifty miles. The journey was made on the coach Vigilant, which was used by the late Alfred G. Vanderbilt in his coaching trips between London and Brighton. While no attempt was made for fast time the journey was covered at a brisk pace. The outward trip was made in 2 hours 40 minutes and the return journey in 2 hours and 50 minutes, making an average of about ten miles an hour.

When the start was made at 10:17 yesterday morning G. Louis Boissevain was on the box. He drove to Flushing, where the first stop was made. The second stage of the journey was to the Red Lion Inn, Lakeville, with E. von der Horst Koch tooling the reins. The third relay was driven by Samuel Willets, who brought the coach to a standstill before his country home at Bridehome, where luncheon was served to the party. The guests looked over Mr. Willets's big string of thoroughbred hunters.

Just before dusk the return journey was started with Mr. Willets on the box. He was followed by Mr. Koch and Mr. Boissevain, the party reaching the Biltmore about 7 o'clock. Those who made the trip were Reginald C. Vanderbilt, Samuel Willets, Louis E. Waring, Harry Godfrey, G. Louis Boissevain, W. Russell Grace, John McE. Bowman, E. von der Horst Koch, Albert Zabriskie Grey, George Rose, and Preston Gibson.

AMATEURS IN THE RING

Amateur boxers furnished a good night's entertainment to the members of the Crescent Athletic Club of Brooklyn last night in the club gymnasium, where nearly two score bouts were decided according to the rules governing the Amateur Athletic Union contests. Four classes were scheduled, in which the majority of the bouts were decided by the judges after the stipulated three rounds. About one out of every ten aspirants for boxing honors showed any knowledge of the art of hit-and-get-away, and as a result many of the bouts were one-sided and for the most part uninteresting, but the exceptions to the rule afforded sufficient excitement for one night's entertainment.

The 110-pound class brought out a big entry, and the youngsters made a good showing, several of them earning the liberal applause bestowed upon their efforts by their cleverness with the padded mitts. M. Hocheim of the Jersey Harriers displayed exceptional skill, and easily earned the decision over S. Farrara after three lively rounds. The judges failed to agree on the winner of the bout between B. Berdie, Rutgers Place Gymnasium, and M. Rosen, unattached, and the referee selected the former after a lively exchange of blows for three rounds. The decision failed to meet with the approval of the majority of the spectators.

In three of the bouts in the 130-pound class the referee exercised his right of interference owing to the one-sided contests. J. Lewis, unattached, dropped W. McLean with a right hook on the jaw in the second round of their contest and Lewis was helped to his corner, McLean being declared the winner. J. Baisel, another unattached boxer, was so hopelessly outclassed by J. Payne that the latter received the decision in the first round. In the next contest G. Schroeder punched A. Justice all over the ring and the referee decided that the latter had received enough punishment, stopping the contest before the end of the first round.

A. J. Dughano, unattached, a deaf-mute, used a left swing on A. Faucher of the Dominican Lyceum with such telling effect that the latter was all in at the end of the third round. Each of the contests in the 120-pound class went the limit, with plenty of action to make the bouts interesting. There was plenty of blood spilled but little real damage.

F. Thompson, the Bronx Church House welterweight, put up a cyclonic bout against W Skillman, and the referee stopped the contest in the first round. The summary:

110-Pound Class, Preliminaries.—H. Gold, Ruis House, defeated Peter Pappgeorge, Greek-American A. C., two rounds, Pappgeorge quit; J. Collins, unattached, defeated Lewis Kloffen, New West Side A. C., one round, Kloffen quit; T. Eisenstadt, New West Side A. C., defeated J. Finnettie, Ozanam Association, two rounds, disqualified in second round for hitting with open glove; M. Hochstein, Jersey Harriers, defeated S. Farrara, unattached, three rounds, judges' decision; A. J. Gorman, unattached, defeated J. Bowden, unattached, three rounds, judges' decision; A. Berkowitz, New West Side A. C., defeated R. Phalen, unattached, two rounds, Phalen quit; A. Fratts, unattached, defeated D. J. Bianco, by default; S. P. Slane, unattached, defeated W. Silberman, Educational Alliance, three rounds, judges' decision; B. Berdie, Rutger's Place Gymnasium, defeated M. Rosen, unattached, three rounds, judges disagree, referee's decision.

120-Pound Class, Preliminaries.—M. Geld, unattached, defeated J. Pressner, Educational Alliance, three rounds, judges' decision; J. Mickenburg, unattached, defeated A. J. Schavfeno, three rounds, judges' decision; Robert Sauer, unattached, defeated R. G. Hamburg, Mercury Athletic Club, three rounds, judges' decision; A. J. Gughano, unattached, defeated A. Faucher, Dominican Lyceum, three rounds, judges' decision.

130-Pound Class, Preliminaries.—J. Payne, unattached, defeated J. Baisel, unattached, one round, referee stopped the bout; J. Lewis, unattached, defeated W. McLean, Trinity Club, two rounds, referee stopped the bout; J. Dempsey, Rosebud Athletic Club, defeated L. C. Graff, Long Island Athletic Club, three rounds, referee's decision; W. Leibson, Educational Alliance, defeated F. Lennon, unattached, three rounds, judges' decision.

Fifty dogs were benched at the Fall show of the Airedale Terrier Club of Long Island at Bryant Hall last night. Patrick Oorang, owned by Messrs. Jones and Baldwin, was judged best dog in the show. The big Airdale has a black saddle and tan head and legs, and W. F. Patterson, who was the judge, had little difficulty in selecting him as the winner. Harold Ober's Bingley Bashful was adjudged best of the opposite sex.

S. Stokes's Powder Puff received first honors in the class for puppies, 6 to 12 months old. Mr. Stokes's entry resembled the best dog in the show, but was smaller. It has a black saddle and tan head and legs. In the open puppies class, under 6 months, Mrs. Mabel Mouland's Mischief captured the blue ribbon. For puppy dogs, John McGough's Clear Sport was returned the winner, and in the American-bred bitches class, Harold Ober's Bingley Bashful took first honors.

W. C. Eckerson's Entertainment took the blue in the class for open bitches, and Patrick Oorang was the winner of the class for winners, dogs. For winners' bitches Bingley Bashful received first honors. There was a large attendance at the show, which is the first of a series to be given by the Long Island Club during the Winter.

Fulton Scores a Knockout.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 17.—Fred Fulton, the Minnesota heavyweight boxer, knocked out Andre Anderson of Chicago in the fourth round of a ten-round no decision contest tonight, by three left blows to the solar plexus. Anderson was floored three times in the concluding session. The third time, he failed to rise for five minutes and was carried to his corner.

Sacred Heart Circle Road Race.

An invitation three-mile road race will be conducted tomorrow night by the Sacred Heart Circle from their clubhouse, 506 East Fifteenth Street. All athletes, whether registered or not, are invited to participate in the event.

TWO BOXERS AND ONE CLUB SUSPENDED

Al McCoy, the so-called middleweight champion of the world, and the Zulu Kid were each suspended for thirty days and the Olympic Athletic Club of Harlem had its license suspended for the remainder of this month at a special meeting of the State Athletic Commission yesterday.

These radical measures were taken by the commission because the boxing public was not fairly treated by the parties punished, and in inflicting the suspensions Chairman Wenck said that the policy of protecting the public against infractions of rules by clubs and boxers would be vigorously continued. In both cases Chairman Wenck had the support of Major Dixon, the other member of the commission.

The Al McCoy-Zulu Kid mixup occurred at the Clermont A. C. in Brooklyn on last Saturday night. McCoy weighed one pound overweight at ringside, but refused to part with the weight forfeit of $150. Zulu Kid refused to take part in the contest unless he received the forfeit. For fifty minutes the "fight fans" had to wait while the boxers and their managers argued the matter before they reached a settlement. Chairman Wenck reprimanded the managers of both boxers severely yesterday and told them they were both to blame for the delay, which was a violation of the commission's rule that the main bout at every club must start promptly at 10 o'clock. McCoy was represented by his father, Rudolph McCoy, and the Zulu Kid and his manager, Dominick Raymond, were present. Both boxers were barred from taking part in any boxing bouts in New York State during their suspension.

The Olympic A. C. was suspended for the manner in which it conducted the Battling Levinsky-Tom Cowler bout on Monday night. H. P. Stevenson appeared before the commission to substantiate the complaint which he had filed against the club. Mr. Stevenson produced newspaper advertisements and asserted that the cards advertising the bout read that the prices would be 50 cents for admission and $1, $2, and $3 for reserved seats.

Mr. Stevenson stated that on last Monday night, accompanied by four friends, he went to the club at 8 o'clock and a sign had been posted over the box office stating that the prices of admission were $1, $2, and $3. He refused to pay the extra money, and in leaving the club asserted that himself and friends were jostled by club attendants.

The club's representatives, in defense of their actions, stated that there were only thirty-five 50-cent seats, and these were sold early. Mr. McDonald, manager of the club, said that the admission prices were 50 cents and $1. He admitted that usually there are more than 300 admission seats, but on Monday night there were only thirty-four, as the report to the commission showed. Chairman Wenck said that he had frequently heard of clubs boosting prices when they thought there would be a big crowd, but this was the first occasion in which he had been able to get evidence.

Jack Britton, welterweight, was called upon for an explanation of his failure to notify the Clermont A. C. that he would be unable to take part in a bout scheduled with Young Joe Gans on Saturday night. He was also asked why he had failed to comply with the recent rule of the commission that it be notified at least one day previous to the time for the bout.

The boxer told the commission that in sparring with his partner last week he had injured his finger in striking his opponent's teeth with a broken glove. The finger festered, but Britton felt sure that he would be able to go on with the bout. On Saturday afternoon he visited Dr. Munson, who advised him not to box, and he immediately went over to the clubhouse and showed them the finger. Britton was then exonerated.

Walter Liginger, President of the Wisconsin Boxing Commission, sat with the members of the New York Commission at yesterday's meeting, and at its close made some interesting remarks. He said he was in favor of co-operation between State boxing commissions whereby the suspensions of one commission would be recognized and upheld by the other commissions, but he said that so far as Wisconsin was concerned such a thing was impossible because it could not be done under the present law.

He made several suggestions as to the conduct of boxers while in the ring, and Chairman Wenck said that some of them would probably be adopted here at the next commission meeting. President Liginger's opinion of decisions in boxing bouts is that such decisions would place the contest in the same category as a prize fight. There is no question of decisions in Wisconsin. They are barred by law. He favored the co-operation of all boxing commissions with the new American Boxing Association, as he felt they were all working for the good of the sport. He said that he personally was doing everything possible for the success of the organization, and recommended that the New York Commission do the same thing.

Yerkes Star in Newtown Victory.

Newtown High School's basket ball five defeated the Bryant High School quintet at Juniper Hall, Maspeth, yesterday afternoon by the score of 18 to 10 in the first game of the series to decide the scholastic basket ball championship of the Borough of Queens. George Yerkes was the star for Newtown, and he tossed three field goals and made eight foul goals, scoring fourteen of Newtown's eighteen points. Feinstein was the big point getter for Bryant. In a preliminary game between the second teams of the two schools Newtown won, 12 to 6. The line-up:

Newton.	Position.	Bryant.
Damico	Right forward	Delaney
Garrett	Centre	Newman

Field goals—Yerkes, (3,) Garrett, Bernstein, Feinstein, (4.) Foul goals—Yerkes, (8,) Feinstein, Stanfield. Substitutions—List for Damico, Quacktassel for Newman. Referee—Mr. Fallon. Umpire—Mr. Berkowitz. Time of halves—Fifteen minutes.

Nine Women in Hastings Walk.

Nine members of the Ladies' Walking Club took part in the weekly jaunt Sunday. Starting from Van Cortlandt Park, they walked to Hastings, a distance of seven and one-half miles. Those who participated were: Ruth Linden, Ida Seigel, E. Greingold, M. Simhukoff, R. Arange, D. Dareiskin, G. Pomeronz, F. Goldberg, K. Mandeville, and P. Weston. All women who desire to join the club are requested to meet the President, Sarah Usivald, next Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock at South Ferry, where next Sunday's jaunt will start.

Ten Clubs in Cross-Country.

A large entry has been received for the junior metropolitan cross-country championship race to be run over the six and a quarter mile course at Van Cortlandt Park on Saturday. The entry list closed yesterday with ten teams nominated. There was a prospect that two additional entries would be received this morning. The only big club in New York missing from the list is the Irish-American A. C. It was unable to organize a team of good runners. Last year the Winged Fistites won the championship. The clubs entering teams are: The Yonkers Y. M. C. A., the New York A. C., Ozanam Association, St. Christopher A. C., Brooklyn A. A., Holy Family Lyceum, Millrose A. A., Mohawk A. C., Bronx Church House, and Swedish-American A. C. Altogether there will be about eighty starters, for each club is permitted to enter eight men. There are a few individual entries. The most prominent is Frank Zuna of the Irish-American A. C., who won the Brockton marathon recently. Gaston Strobino of the New York A. C., Charles Pores, Millrose A. A., and George Kiely of the Bronx Church House are among the team nominations who should be factors in the competition. The Holy Family Lyceum of Jersey City and the Yonkers Y. M. C. A. are the only clubs outside New York City represented in the championship.

NEED MORE CONSULS TO PUSH OUR TRADE

WAR GIVES OPPORTUNITIES

Nearly Seven Hundred Trade Bodies to Vote on Appeal to Congress for Funds.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 17.—In view of the present opportunities for the development of American commerce in other countries, a referendum has just been sent out by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, giving the members an opportunity to indorse a report of the Department of Commerce Committee. This recommends an increase in Congressional appropriations for the the Government's foreign commercial service. The questions are being submitted to the various commercial bodies throughout the country—nearly 700 affiliated organizations, representing every State, the territorial possessions, and the principal American Chambers of Commerce abroad.

In considering increases for the Consular service, the committee makes many specific suggestions, asserting that the most pressing needs of the Consular service are Americanization, adequate clerical assistance, promotion of certain consular agencies to the rank of consulates, the establishment of new consulates, and adequate inspection of the service.

The report gives a list of cities in which the United States maintains Consular agencies, where, in the committee's opinion, there should be Consulates. It recommends the establishment of Consulates in fifteen new cities and urges more adequate provision for Inspectors and more frequent inspection. Finally, a fuller publication of statistics of internal commerce relative to the movements of trade is urged. The committee recommends the resumption of the publication of such statistics, initiated several years ago and suspended, owing to the failure of Congress to continue the appropriation.

The committee recommends the investigation in foreign countries particularly of investment possibilities and of railroad rates and other means of inland transportation. It recommends also expert study of banking and tariffs. In this field it also urges an appropriation for the collection and exploitation of samples, the appointment of geographical experts at Washington who shall inform business men regarding climate, living conditions, and similar information in addition to data strictly commercial; the distribution of American literature abroad and a radical change in the attitude of the Government toward the traveling and living expenses of its Consuls, commercial agents, and commercial attachés.

Special consideration is given to the promotion of commerce in Latin America. During the present year a Congressional appropriation of $50,000 is available for this purpose. Next year the amount will be $75,000. It is generally believed that with the close of the European war, America may be able to hold against European competitors a goodly proportion of the markets for its products which it has gained in Latin American countries. The committee believes that the appropriation should be increased.

STEEL COMPANIES COMBINE.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 17.—It was announced today that Vice President Franklin of the Guaranty Trust Company, New York, was active in the consolidation of the Penn Steel Casting Company of Chester, Penn., and the Baldt Steel Casting Company of New Castle, Del. Rodney Thayer, President of the Baldt company, will, it is expected, become President of the new combination, which will be capitalized at $2,000,000.

It is said that $1,100,000 was paid for the Penn plant and $700,000 for the Baldt works. The latter plant is on the Delaware River two miles above the projectile plant of the Bethlehem Steel Company.

The Test of an Investment is its ability to give an income which can be depended upon always. For this reason we believe the preferred stock of the Consumers Power Company (Michigan) should have the careful consideration of conservative investors.

The Consumers Power Company has always shown most satisfactory earnings, which are now three and one-quarter times the amount necessary to pay dividend charges after paying all fixed chares. The stock is protected by tangible property.

Rapid upbidding of prices which was a phenomenon confined for a long time to the stock market and to those commodities in which speculative operations are customarily carried on has extended to the basic commodities of industry. Nowhere is the process more strikingly revealed than in the steel trade in which consumers are contracting long ahead and overbidding each other in the attempt to fill even their remote requirements. This is a process which eventually puts a check upon itself and already some uneasiness is being felt lest the rise in the prices of steel products should be quickly carried to so great an excess as to cause orders to be curtailed, owing first to the difficulty of getting deliveries at any near-by date and secondly because of the high prices to which steel products are rising.

Many steel manufacturers are increasing the capacity of their mills as rapidly as they can, but it is an impossible task to keep up with the demand for steel at the rate at which orders have been coming to hand in recent weeks. This does not mean necessarily that the present rate of production will be short lived, but it does mean that it is becoming increasingly difficult to plan ahead. Meanwhile the steel trade is working at capacity and is realizing profits which befit a period of such urgent demand. This is a condition which the stock market began to anticipate months ago. The rise in stocks in the earlier months of the year was a forerunner of the increasing activity which has been coming about in industry in more recent months. One reason for the hesitancy which the stock market has been showing is doubt regarding the duration of the commercial activity which is finding reflection in the steel trade and less conspicuously in many other directions. We have developed conditions which make for increased demand for general merchandise and there are signs that that demand is making itself felt in increasing volume. By no means all of the country's industries are yet working under the tension which is seen in the steel trade, but the tendency is in that direction for the great majority at least of industries. Belief that this is so is at the bottom of the confidence which a very great many feel in the security market; doubt lest the reflex action of the war in Europe or other cause should bring to a sudden halt the demands which are adding daily to the country's prosperity accounts for the opposite opinion which some hold. The market of recent days is in effect the result of conflict between these two opinions. The confident ones argue and argue plausibly that general business signs give no indication of an early termination of this activity, that rather they point to a further spread of this movement. The doubtful ones who at least have served the useful purpose of a break on a rapidly moving vehicle feel that the country has been returning to prosperity at a rate too fast to last.

More of the effect of the conflict between these two views will be seen in the stock market, but meanwhile any one is justified in taking satisfaction in the great amount of evidence which goes to prove that the country's business position is steadily improving. The dealings in the stock market yesterday showed much irregularity because neither of these two views of the outlook is controlling among traders at the moment. There were again some sharp advances, but there were also many declines. Trading, however, was more active than on any other day since last Wednesday.

General Motors' Dividend.

Common stock of the General Motors Company made a new high record yesterday by selling at 405. The price at the close was 402, representing a net gain of seven points for the day. The advance was made in the first session, following a meeting of the Directors, at which it had been expected that regular dividends would be inaugurated on the stock, but at which no action to that end was taken. On the first trading day of this year shares of the General Motors Company sold at 82. The surplus for the year ended July 31 is reported to have been 81 per cent. on the common stock, so that the rise has evidently been based on substantial grounds, and the failure of the board to declare a dividend did not cause any alarm. Besides, as frequently has been demonstrated, the realization of dividend predictions has usually resulted in a decline in the stocks affected, so that it is not inconsistent that a rise should have followed a disappointment in this respect.

Dodging New Business.

If all the stories that are heard about the steel trade are to be believed, the time is coming when a buyer wanting a few hundred tons will make use of his influential friends to get a hearing before a sales agent. Agents for one of the European Governments at war have been trying to get manufacturers of munitions to accept orders for shells totaling $30,000,000, and have been rebuffed on the ground that the steel market is so uncertain that it would not be feasible to contract to deliver anything requiring high-class steel. To date the order has not received a welcome in any quarter. A dispatch from Pittsburgh yesterday brought the news that agents of the French Government have been trying in vain to place an order there for 9,000,000 hand grenades. It is said that there are more foreign agents now in the Pittsburgh district trying to buy steel products than at any time in the history of the city. Every mill in the country which can make steel is said to be in receipt of orders for all the work it is prepared to handle.

Marine Preferred Breaks.

Certificates for the preferred stock of the International Mercantile Marine Company, which rose in a few days from 59 to 75, suffered a break to 68⅝ yesterday on the Exchange, on the statement of Receiver Franklin deprecating ticker reports of very high net earnings for September and October. Considerable support was encountered, however, and the current belief that "good people" had bought the certificates all the way up to the new high level served as a stabilizer. The certificates crossed 71 in the afternoon, and closed at 70¾ with a net loss for the day of 4½ points. Those who speak well of the International Mercantile Marine stock say they are taking into consideration the probability of an early settlement of the receivership as well as the increased earnings.

Railroad Earnings.

Before the end of this week and early next week a number of railroads will publish their October earnings. These earning statements, for the last few months, have been responsible for general buying of rail stock. One broker remarked yesterday that he became active only once a month, just about the time the earning statements of the leading Eastern roads were expected. It is believed that some new records will be established for October among Eastern roads. The improved condition in coal traffic has brought up the earnings.

War to 1918?

There were inquiries in the market yesterday for high explosives to be delivered to the Allies monthly throughout 1916 and 1917. On the surface, this indicates that the peace rumors are not even being considered by the enemies of Germany. These specific inquiries called for deliveries which increased month by month so that the largest consignment would be sent in December, 1917.

Predictions Futile.

The most far-sighted men in the financial district did not foresee twelve months ago the prosperity in the steel business which this country is now enjoying, according to one business leader. "It might be expected," said this observer, "that some of our shrewd bankers would be able to look far ahead and take advantage of golden opportunities. I have asked some of the biggest men in the Street whether they predicted the present situation, and none has admitted such a thing. Even now it is hard to predict what the future will bring forth. Some of the railroad men say they can see at least two good months ahead, but they won't go further. The most optimistic prediction that I have heard came from Pittsburgh. Steel men told me that if the war stopped now they would have six to eight months of big business to look forward to. They were counting only on their contracts for domestic needs."

Cambria Steel in Equilibrium.

Cambria Steel shares in Philadelphia closed both yesterday and the day before at 68, giving the impression to some traders in this city that the stock was "pegged" at that figure. One interpretation of the stability of Cambria of late, after two months of active fluctuating, was that holders were waiting to see just how the company would figure in the much-discussed merger. No actual confirmation of a union of steel concerns with the Cambria in the centre has yet been obtained, but speculators in Philadelphia and New York are convinced that it is coming along pretty soon. A few weeks ago Cambria stock sold up to the neighborhood of 75, starting on the upward movement to this figure from 54. The "on again, off again" status of the reported merger caused quick changes from 66 up to 73 and back, and now the issue appears to be poised between these quotations.

War Stocks Not Yet Dormant.

It would seem, from conversation in some brokerage offices, that the war stocks have few friends any more. In these quarters little is heard among the traders except gossip about the copper issues. They sold out their Baldwin, Crucible, and Westinghouse to buy Anaconda, Utah, and Inspiration. Just the same, the war specialties do not display extraordinary signs of neglect. Bethlehem Steel yesterday showed a genuine return of form by swinging upward more than twenty points, and the others were inclined toward strength under fairly active buying.

LONDON TRADING MODERATE

Stock Market Anxious Regarding Outcome of the Balkans Situation.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The stock market is in a state of anxious expectancy regarding the outcome of the Balkans situation and the visit of the members of the Cabinet to France, and the dealings today were moderate. Copper shares were strong features on the rise in the price of the metal, and International Mercantile Marine preferred advanced 10 points, but rubber stocks were active and easy.

American securities maintained a firm tone on a moderate amount of business, despite the rise in exchange. Denver & Rio Grande shares were firm features, while United States Steel was inclined to droop.

Money was in good demand, and discount rates were steady. The completion of the Anglo-American banking credit had a steady effect on exchange, and cable transfers were quoted at 4.67¼.

Trading Quiet on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Nov. 17.—Trading was quiet on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 65 francs 35 centimes for cash. Exchange on London, 27 francs 80½ centimes.

DISCOURAGED BULLS THROW OVER COTTON

RUSSIA IS REPORTED BUYING

Advices from the South Say There Is a Better Spot Inquiry, with Liverpool in the Market.

Although cotton closed yesterday at a net loss of 4 to 7 points, the undertone in the later trading was steady, and the market showed signs of being fairly well sold out. Liverpool was again a shade easier, and its poor showing prompted a good deal of liquidation. Big bull interests threw overboard their cotton, owing to discouragement over the failure of prices to advance. The offerings amounted to about 30,000 bales, but were very well taken. The absorptive power of the market was something of a surprise. It was rumored, however, that Russian interests were buying, and the reports were accompanied by so much circumstantial detail that they were given more or less credence.

Unsettled and colder weather is again making its appearance over the Southwest, and it begins to look as if the further growth of cotton for this season would be completely checked as a result of the rain and freezing temperatures forecast by the Weather Bureau. Reports from Texas say that cotton was killed all over the northern and central portions as a result of the frost of Nov. 15.

Advices from Southern spot markets yesterday stated that a better spot inquiry was showing up. Liverpool was said to have been a good buyer. An Alabama wire stated that there was no weakness anywhere, and that a good business could be done if holders would meet prices on a basis with contracts.

A rumor late yesterday afternoon stated that returns to the National Ginners' Association indicated a ginning of 8,730,000 bales up to Nov. 14. The report, however, was said to be subject to revision. A Memphis wire stated that in a great many places through the central belt the gins were turning out only two to three bales per day.

Southern spot markets, as officially reported, were unchanged, Norfolk 12 points decline; Augusta 13 points decline. The local market for spot cotton was quiet, 10 points decline.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Firmness early was succeeded by irregularity on the Consolidated Stock Exchange, with real weakness developing toward the close in a number of stocks. It was evident that a great deal of realizing by recent buyers was under way, although there appeared to be no particular news of a market-influencing sort. Very favorable advices, however, again came to hand regarding conditions in the steel and copper trades.

The business of this corporation is making a wonderful expansion—not yet generally appreciated.

Its securities now offer an exceptional opportunity for a safe and profitable investment. Their present market position is very strong.

This same circular, besides showing, in an interesting way the extent of last week's decline for the industrial issues, gives much information about

Int. Mercantile Marine — Braden Copper
Cerro de Pasco — U. S. Light & Heating

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The Guaranty Trust Company yesterday received $2,750,000 in gold in English coin.

Norman Merriman, William F. Kloecker, Jr., and Thomas E. Noyes have formed a copartnership under the firm name of Noyes, Merriman & Co. and will deal in securities at 27 William Street.

The Guaranty Trust Company and Kidder, Peabody & Co. are offering the unsold balance of $3,000,000 Butte, Anaconda & Pacific Railroad Company guaranteed first mortgage 5s at 97½, to yield about 5.15.

The Hudson & Manhattan Railroad Company carried 5,287,420 passengers in October, an increase of 4.48 per cent. over October, 1914. For the first two weeks in November the increase was 265,000 passengers, or 11.3 per cent.

TRUSTEES TO CONTROL ROAD

Will Have Charge of St. Louis and San Francisco for Five Years.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 17.—Detailed examination of the reorganization plan of the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad today revealed that the plan places control of the road in the hands of trustees for five years. The voting trust is to consist of Festus J. Wade of St. Louis, James Speyer of New York, Frederick Strauss of New York, Frederick W. Allen, George W. Davison, Seward Prosser and Charles H. Sabin.

The trustees are to issue certificates in exchange for the shares of stock, and are to pay dividends to the certificate holders. At the end of five years the stock reverts back to the stockholders. Shareholders can sell their certificates the same as shares.

At the office of James W. Lusk, receiver in charge of the finances of the road, it was stated today that the purpose of the voting trust is to assure a safe reorganization.

Under the plan submitted the managers of the reorganization are to be permitted to become members of a purchase syndicate, which will buy $25,000,000 of the first mortgage bonds and $47,700,000 of the common stock certificates. The bonds will be offered to stockholders who pay a $5 assessment. The commission of the syndicate is to be 4 per cent.

The reorganization plan provides for three series of bond issues—the prior lien mortgage bonds bearing 5 per cent. interest, the cumulative adjustment mortgage bonds bearing 6, the interest of which is to be paid out of net earnings, and the income mortgage bonds, which bear 6 per cent. interest, payable only after interest is paid on the two other issues, and non-cumulative in the event of inability to pay.

SUES FOR CORPORATION TAX

Government Brings Action Against Ten Hartford Insurance Companies.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 17.—Ten insurance companies and two banks in Hartford have been sued by the United States Government for taxes. Complaints issued from the office of District Attorney Thomas J. Spellacy show a sum aggregating $20,218, with interest from the Summer months of this year, when demand for payment was made and refused. The Travelers Insurance Company is sued for the largest amount, $5,642.

The Government claims the amounts due are additional corporation taxes for the years 1909, 1910, and 1911, with an addition of a 50 per cent. penalty for their not being paid on demand.

An issue in the case is the claim of the insurance companies that 1 per cent. paid to the State on the market value of their stock is a tax, and such tax may be deducted from net income when returns are made to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. The Government, however, claims the State payment is not a State tax, but an assessment on the shareholders paid through the companies as agents. Another issue is that the Commissioner did not assess additional taxes until the three years as provided by law amending returns had elapsed.

STEAM PUMP STOCK FREED.

Hawkes Committee Releases Holders of Preferred Shares.

McDougall Hawkes, Chairman of the Protective Committee for minority preferred stockholders of the International Steam Pump Company, sent a notice yesterday to stockholders who had deposited their holdings with this committee that they could yet withdraw their support and seek to align themselves with the majority stockholders.

This stand on the part of the Hawkes committee does not indicate that the court fight to upset the reorganization plans furthered by the majority stockholders has been abandoned. Litigation is still pending, but has so far been unsuccessful. On the surface, however, it appears as a weakening of the committee's stand against the reorganization. The reorganization plan, which was drawn up by a joint reorganization committee, has already been declared effective, and some members of the Hawkes committee held to the view that stockholders ought to be given a chance to join the majority before it was too late.

The only conditions of withdrawal are that pro rata allowances of a small amount must be made for meeting the expenses of the committee. It was announced that August Heckscher had been added to the Hawkes committee.

COPPER COMPANIES IN BIG COMBINATION

MAY TRADE ITS UTAH STOCK

Kennecott to Take Over the Latter, and Will Acquire Control of the Braden Mines in Chile.

The Guggenheim Exploration Company, a holding concern for stocks in various mining and smelting properties, will be dissolved in the near future and the assets divided among shareholders. Rumors of this action, heard frequently during the last three months, were confirmed yesterday at the same time as announcement was made of steps being taken by the Kennecott Copper Company to buy up the stock of the Braden Copper Company. The terms of the Exploration Company's plan are expected to be made public before the close of the week.

The Guggenheim Exploration Company has outstanding $20,793,300 stock and owns these securities: $4,045,040 Utah Copper Company stock, $6,950,000 common stock of the American Smelting & Refining Company, $1,543,000 stock of the Ray Consolidated Copper Company, $488,750 stock of the Chino Copper Company, and a majority of the stock of the Yukon Gold Company. Until recently $3,400,000 series A preferred stock of the American Smelter Securities Company was owned, but this was sold to Eugene Meyer, Jr., & Co., and by them distributed to investors. The company also holds valuable ore lands in Alaska, and in the treasury is $14,000,000 cash.

The 404,504 shares of Utah Copper stock will be sold to the Kennecott Copper Company, payment being made in Kennecott stock on a reported basis of 1¼ shares of Kennecott for each share of Utah. This block of Utah shares constitutes the largest single holding of the company's outstanding stock.

President Stephen Birch of the Kennecott Company issued a statement saying that leading shareholders had practically come to terms on the proposed purchase of Braden shares, and that the plan would be submitted to Directors and stockholders for their approval. Opportunity will be given all Braden stockowners, said he, to accept the terms considered by the majority interests, payment to be made either in cash or in Kennecott stock.

"The properties of the companies," said the statement, "while situated far apart geographically, are admirably fitted to supplement each other in their workings and future output of copper at a low cost. It is expected that arrangements may also be made by which some of the steamships now used by the Kennecott Company in the transport of ore from Alaska may be used during the Alaskan Winter in connection with the Braden mines, which are in Chile, and that such an arrangement may indirectly have a material effect upon the country's South American trade."

The Guggenheim management declined to say in advance of the formal statement on the dissolution just how the plan would work out. In Wall Street it was figured that a pro rata distribution of the American Smelting, Ray, Chino, and Yukon Gold shares would bring each Guggenheim Exploration stockowner about $33 worth of stock at current market prices for each share of Guggenheim stock owned. In addition, it was said, the stockowners could take either $37.50 in cash or Kennecott Copper stock, this stock representing the company's investment in the Utah Copper shares sold to the Kennecott Company. The division of the cash would mean about $16 for each Guggenheim share, making the total liquidating value of the Guggenheim stock $86.50 at yesterday's market quotations. Guggenheim Exploration stock sold on the Exchange yesterday from 77¼ up to 79⅝.

This estimate makes no allowance for the Guggenheim Company's physical property in the Alaska gold fields, the disposition of which is not yet known. The purpose of dissolving this important holding company has not been made public, but is believed in the Street to presage an important realignment of copper producing concerns, to be brought about after the stock of the companies mentioned has been distributed more widely than at present.

To Investors

Anglo-French 5% Bonds

A careful study of the financial resources of the issuing Governments and their long record of fidelity to every obligation will convince you that these bonds are thoroughly safe.

A comparison of the income yield of nearly 5½%, obtainable when buying these bonds, with the income yield of other Government securities, will satisfy you that these bonds are cheap.

An analysis of the past record of prices and yields of British and French Government bonds will give you some idea of the possible value of the conversion privilege attaching to these bonds.

These bonds are payable in five years, October 15, 1920, in United States Gold Coin, and are free from all present or future taxes of either of the issuing Governments.

We shall be glad to send to any investor full information concerning these bonds from which can be obtained a better realization of their many attractive features.

BARES HUGE LOSSES OF THE ROCK ISLAND

Report of Receiver Dickinson Turns $8,700,000 Surplus Into a $12,000,000 Deficit.

$21,000,000 IS WRITTEN OFF

A graphic story in figures telling how the liabilities of a big railroad increased more than $21,000,000, and how a surplus of $8,700,000 was converted into a deficit of $12,000,000, is given in the delayed report of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway for the year ended June 30, 1915, which was sent out to stockholders yesterday by Colonel Jacob M. Dickinson, receiver for the railway.

The annual report recites how more than $13,000,000 of securities once held on the books of the Rock Island under the old Reid-Moore management at or near their face value are actally worthless securities, and how other items appeared in former reports at much above their real value. Under the scrutinizing eyes of public accountants, working under the jurisdiction of Receiver Dickinson, the trimming and slashing of the Rock Island's assets column was very severe. The exact trimming was $21,264,774. The surplus as of June 30, 1914, was $8,733,811, and the deficit as of June 30, 1915, is reported by the accountants at $12,530,862.

One of the first things which Colonel Dickinson did when he became a receiver for the Rock Island last April was to get expert accountants to go over the books. The firm of Touche, Niven & Co. was engaged. Unofficial reports of the findings of these accountants were reported from Chicago about a month ago. These early reports, because of their depressing effect on the stock of the Rock Island, were criticised in some quarters. It now appears, however, that the unofficial figures of the deficit were at least $3,000,000 lower than the true figures.

The railway showed gross earnings of $70,947,889, an increase of $2,272,047, or 3.31 per cent. for the year. The net income from operation was $14,039,894, an increase of $336,142, or 2.45 per cent. The net income account, however, showed a deficit of $734,676, the first deficit which the Rock Island System ever showed in its history. This deficit compares with a surplus over charges in 1914 of $450,621, and with a record surplus in 1907 of more than $4,000,000.

The accountants found a long list of stocks, bonds, and loans made by the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway which were written off the books as worthless. Here are some of the items: Peoria Railway Terminal stock, $210,000; Rock Island Company preferred stock, $690,102; Nebraska Central Railway Company and Nebraska Construction Company stock, $200,000; Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad Company bonds, $5,960,961; an advance to the Trinity & Brazos Valley Railway Company of $3,729,863, and an advance to the Consolidated Indiana Coal Company of $2,695,849.

The value of other stocks and bonds held by the Rock Island was reduced $4,800,000 by the accountants. The total amounts written off as representing depreciation in assets was $18,527,201, and this, with other reserves and depreciation charges, makes up the total sum of $21,264,777 written off the books for the year.

The depreciation for the year is given in the report as $478,371. In a preliminary statement by the accountants, however, it appears that this figure was determined on by others than the accountants, for they say:

"We are of the opinion that the provision made for depreciation of equipment is not fully adequate."

The preferred stock of the Rock Island Company, which is designated as worthless in the receivers' report, was carried on the books last year for a face value of $1,002,000 and for a book value of $690,000. Similar stock has sold recently on the New York Stock Exchange between 60 cents and $1 a share. The assets of the old Rock Island Company have shrunk from millions to a few pieces of furniture, according to information available.

Since the receivership went into effect payments of interest on bonds and notes amounting to about $700,000 have been discontinued. About $100,000 has been saved in salaries of officers and in expenses at the local offices, 14 Wall Street.

Receiver Dickinson points out in his report that the depreciation in the book value of securities was not incurred entirely in the year under review. The chief losses, he says, were incurred years ago. Colonel Dickinson intimates that it was considered wise to clear the books of all rubbish in order to have a clean slate for a thorough reorganization. The stockholders of the Rock Island, by means of this report, will get the best interpretation of the assets of their company which has yet been produced.

HOLLINS'S DEBTS ALL PAID.

Both He and His Firm Settle in Full with Creditors.

Harry B. Hollins and his firm, H. B. Hollins & Co., have settled in full all the claims of their creditors. The final checks in payment have been sent out.

Mr. Hollins was a friend of the late J. P. Morgan, and when his firm became bankrupt on Nov. 13, 1913, only a few months after the financier had died, it was commonly said that if Mr. Morgan had been alive he would never have permitted the failure. The firm was occupying a large office at Wall and Broad Streets, and had been one of the most important concerns in the financial district. It had, however, gradually lost its prominent position.

A. Leo Everett of 37 Wall Street was appointed receiver for both the firm and Mr. Hollins personally. The claims against the firm amounted to about $6,000,000, and against Mr. Hollins to $1,111,093. The principal creditors were the Dowager Duchess of Manchester, the estate of J. P. Morgan, and William K. Vanderbilt. On Feb. 26, 1915, Judge Mayer dismissed the petition against Mr. Hollins, and the checks which have now been sent out to the creditors of the firm are in accordance with a composition offered on June 29, 1914.

LAWYERS WIN OVER ROBIN.

The report of William P. Maloney, to whom was referred the claim of the law firm of Gifford, Hobbs & Beard for $15,000 for services rendered in settling up the affairs of the Northern Bank, was confirmed by Justice Gavegan of the Supreme Court yesterday. It recommended that the claim be paid in full. More than 300,000 words of testimony were taken in the period since 1911, when the claim was first presented, until July last.

The claim was for services covering a period of ten years and for disbursements. The State Superintendent of Banks allowed the claim, but objections were filed by Joseph G. Robin. Then the matter went to ex-Judge Ernest Hall as referee. He found in favor of the claimants, but Robin again intervened, charging that the report was based on erroneous testimony. The matter was reopened and the papers were sent to Mr. Maloney. Robin asked that the latter's report be vacated on the grounds that the referee was prejudiced and biased in favor of the claimants, but his motion was denied. In confirming the report Justice Gavegan said:

"No reason is advanced for such a charge, and I am unable to discover any. On the contrary, the record discloses that the referee acted with commendable fairness and patience and with due regard to the interests of all parties."

A suit brought against the same firm of lawyers by Frank Demarest, a depositor of the Northern Bank, for an accounting of $2,750,000 said to be due the bank, is still pending. Robin is said to be behind this suit and to be furnishing some of the facts upon which it is based.

LABOR FIGHT ON BUDGET.

The Finance Committee of the Board of Aldermen held a public hearing yesterday on the 1916 budget as it was received from the Board of Estimate. Representatives of several labor organizations said that mechanics in the city employ had been reduced to below the prevailing rate of wages. They wanted to know if the committee under Section 56 of the charter could not have the wages restored.

Stewart Browne, President of the United Real Estate Owners' Association, suggested that all salaries above $3,000 be reduced 10 per cent. for next year. Alderman Curran, Vice Chairman of the board, said the committee last year looked into that phase of the situation and discovered that if such cuts were made the total reduction in the budget would be insignificant.

"Most of the higher salaries are mandatory," said Alderman Curran," and if small salaries were reduced 5 or 10 per cent. it would be unequal and unfair."

Mr. Browne suggested that one Deputy Tax Receiver in each borough be eliminated from the budget schedules. The committee said it would take the matter under consideration. Mr. Browne said, in his judgment, there was no department in the city government so valuable to the taxpayers as the Bureau of Contracts.

"There have been rumors of reductions of salaries or eliminations from this bureau," said Mr. Browne. "I do not think that the salary of Tilden Adamson, head of the bureau, should be reduced. Every report that Mr. Adamson puts his name to is correct.

"I consider that the Bureau of Standards is overmanned. There are too many high salaries and too many employes. I do not think the salary of George L. Tirrel, head of the bureau, should be reduced, but there are three assistant engineers and I do not know what they do with them."

"What does an engineer have to do in that bureau, anyway?" asked Alderman Dowling.

AMORY SUBWAY SUIT ENDED.

$2,500,000 Claim Against City for a Franchise is Dismissed.

William N. Amory's suit against the city for $2,500,000 damages alleged to have been suffered because the city would not sustain his claim to a franchise for building a subway was dismissed yesterday by Justice Newburger of the Supreme Court because the plaintiff was not ready to go to trial.

Amory asserted that at an auction sale held in the City Hall on Dec. 29, 1892, he bid $1,000 for the franchise to build a subway from the Battery to the northern boundary, that his bid was accepted by the Board of Rapid Transit Commissioners, and that his franchise was to live for 999 years. He said he paid 10 per cent. of the purchase price, that the contract between him and the Commissioners was regularly signed, and that on the same day he was notified that his bid had been rejected. He waited until Jan. 29, 1913, before beginning his damage suit.

R. P. Chittenden and John F. Collins of the Corporation Counsel's office were in court ready to go on yesterday, but another application for an adjournment was made by the plaintiff on the ground that other counsel was to be retained.

FEAR STEEL IS OVERSOLD.

Contracts for Export Threaten a Famine for Domestic Buyers.

The pressure of foreign orders for steel is causing concern in some quarters of the trade as to the position of domestic buyers. Steel men are wondering whether the domestic needs can be satisfied during the next few months. The Iron Age says:

Building of new steel capacity is being pushed in every direction and each week brings announcements of new undertakings by the Steel Corporation and independent companies—not so unlike the policy of the railroads, of which the steel trade sometimes complains, in making extensions under the pressure of record demand. The steel industry is compelled to add to its own embarrassments by the steel it is requiring for new work.

With new orders steadily running far in excess of current output, it was not surprising that the United States Steel Corporation withdrew quotations in foreign markets last week. This action does not in itself mean a long withdrawal from the export trade, for similar steps are taken at intervals in the domestic market. The fact is that the steel companies have the greater part of their output sold for four or five months, some for most of the first half of 1916, and that in certain lines the market on forward deliveries has been sold to a standstill.

The Iron Trade Review says:

Congestion of the mills has reached the point where radical steps are required, and it is a serious problem with the unprecedented foreign tonnage how the needs of the regular domestic trade can be accommodated during the next three or six months. The active manner in which buyers are bidding for material continues to put up prices to unusually high levels.

APPEAL COAL TRUST SUIT.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17.—The United States Government today took an appeal to the Supreme Court in the case against the Reading Company and its allied companies in the coal trust suit recently decided against the Government in the District Court here. The court granted the appeal.

In a final decree filed Oct. 28, dismissing the suit, in conformity with an opinion previously rendered by Judge McPherson; he, with Judges Buffington and Hunt, ordered the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey to divorce its interests in the Lehigh and Wilkes-Barre Coal Company. In dismissing the suit Judge McPherson in his opinion suggested that this divorcement would attain the ends sought by the Government.

WHEAT.

The wheat market was firm at the outset, and early in the day values worked up ⅜c per bushel, but later eased off and declined 1½c to 1⅞c, closing with net losses of ⅞c to 1c. Advices from abroad indicated an easier feeling there, with more pressure to sell wheat on passage, and it was more evident that the recent advance, which culminated on Tuesday when Chicago December sold at $1.06½ and May at $1.08, had carried the market above an export limit and brought out more liberal offerings. In the local cash market No. 1 durum wheat was quoted at $1.11¾, free on board, New York; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, $1.08¾, and No. 1 Northern, Manitoba, $1.10½, cost, insurance, and freight, Buffalo.

CORN.

The market for corn felt the influence of the action of wheat, and prices were easier, closing at a net loss of ⅜c to ⅝c. No. 2 yellow corn in the local cash market was quoted at 75¼c, prompt shipment.

OATS.

The oats market was quiet, with prices easier, largely in sympathy with the other markets. Closing quotations were ¼c to ⅝c net lower. Receipts at primary points were smaller than a week ago, but larger than last year. The local cash market was barely steady; No. 3 white quoted at 41¼c to 41¾c; No. 4 white, 40¼c to 40¾c; ordinary to fancy clipped, 40¼c to 44¼c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

Receipts of hogs at primary points were again very heavy, and the hog market was weak and lower, but the provision list showed resistance to pressure, and prices were firmer, with a fairly active demand from shorts and commission houses. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 48,000, estimated for Thursday, 30,000; Kansas City received 1,900 and Omaha 4,000.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market for cottonseed oil was unsettled, with the average trader very much bewildered over the action of the market. The market early in the day showed considerable firmness, but toward the close there was more or less selling, and final quotations were 1 point lower to 2 points net higher. Crude oil was offered a little more freely and sales were reported on the basis of 49½ cents. Range of prices:

COFFEE.

The coffee market was quiet, and price changes were confined within a comparatively narrow range. The undertone was easy, however, and closing quotations were 2 to 5 points net lower, with total sales for the day amounting to 20,500 bags. The local spot market was dull and easy, with Rio 7s quoted at 7⅝ to 7¾c. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

There was a big break in sugar futures and trading was very active. Easier spot market conditions and dullness in cane granulated, owing to free offerings of Western beet in this territory, was thought to be responsible for the decline. Stop loss orders were caught on the decline, and leading trade interests as well as commission houses were heavy sellers, with closing prices 7 to 31 points net lower, or at the lowest prices of the day. Sales were 11,050 tons. The range of prices:

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 8,213 packages. The shortage of fancy fresh creamery is quite acute, and the market is higher and very firm. A little strength was reflected on choice quality of fresh, but there was dull trading in other sorts, and the values are still unsettled and irregular. Considerable quantities of held creamery are being used, mostly by the owners of the goods, but there are only a few transactions on the open market. Renovated dragging. Ladles are slow and weaker. Packing stock also shows an easier tone. Creamery, extras, (92 score,) 31c; higher scoring, 32@32½c; firsts, 27@29½c; seconds, 25@26½c; thirds, 23½@24½c; creamery, held, extras, (92 score,) 28½@29c; higher scoring, 29½@30½c; firsts, 26@27½c; State Dairy, finest, 29@29½c; good to prime, 26½@28c; common to fair, 23@26c; renovated, extras, 24½@25c; firsts, 23½@24c; lower grades, 21@23c; imitation creamery, firsts, 23@24c; ladles, current make, firsts, 22@22½c; seconds, 21c; lower grades, 19½@20½c; packing stock, June make, fine, 21@21¼c; current make, fine, 21c; No. 2, 20@20½c; lower grades, 18@19½c.

EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, 8,078 cases. New-laid eggs are extremely scarce and any lots of fresh gathered that contain a large proportion of such are wanted beyond the supply, with dealers willing to pay higher prices in the competition to secure the few available. The good medium qualities are moving fairly well, but stock which shows a very small proportion of really fresh eggs, or which consists mostly of held stock, is dragging heavily in competition with storage eggs, the decline in which has reduced the value of the shrunken and weak-bodied stock contained in the fresh gathered. Values are still extremely irregular and showing a very wide range. Storage eggs are perhaps receiving a little more demand from store trade for broken lots, but there is little wholesale business in a large way, and values are somewhat nominal. Nearby eggs continue in light supply, uniformly new-laid qualities are very scarce and these command extreme prices, but for average offerings, consisting of more or less mixed qualities, trade is dull and values extremely irregular. Fresh gathered, extra fine, per dozen, 43@44c; extra firsts, 40@42c; firsts, 35@39c; seconds, 28@34c; thirds and poorer, 22@27c; dirties, No. 1, 22@23c; No. 2 and poorer, 19@21½c; checks, good to choice, dry, 21c; culls and inferior, 16@20½c. Refrigerator, special marks, fancy, 24@24½c; firsts, 23@23½c; seconds, 22@22½c; thirds or poorer, 19@21½c; dirties, 18@21c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby, hennery whites, fine to fancy, 58@63c; ordinary to good, 40@55c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 38@60c; Western, gathered whites, 38@45c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby, hennery browns, 38@46c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 36@44c; nearby, refrigerator whites, 28@30c.

MACKAY OUT OF SUGAR CO.

It was announced yesterday that Clarence H. Mackay, who was formerly active in the Federal Sugar Refining Company, had resigned as a Director and Vice President, and is no longer connected with the management of that company. A former associate of Mr. Mackay in the Federal said the resignation had been accepted nearly a year ago, and that it was understood to have resulted from the desire of Mr. Mackay to lessen his duties. It was said that he still retained his stock in the company.

No reason for the delayed announcement was given. Mr. Mackay is President of the Commercial Cable Company, the Mackay Company, the Postal Telegraph Cable Company, and subsidiaries.

Stotesbury Steel, Not Road, Director

E. T. Stotesbury of the Philadelphia banking firm of Drexel & Co. was mentioned in a story describing the sale of Cambria Steel Company stock a few days ago as a Director of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. Mr. Stotesbury is not and never has been a Director of the Pennsylvania Railroad. He should have been mentioned as a Director of the Pennsylvania Steel Company.

OCEAN FREIGHT RUSH SWAMPS NEW YORK

GRAIN GETS RIGHT OF WAY

Delay in Wheat Delivery Due to Conditions on the Lakes—New Admiralty Method.

"So great is the congestion of freight at the Port of New York that shippers are diverting traffic to other ports," said the foreign freight agent of one of the largest railroads which enter New York yesterday afternoon. "The situation is very serious indeed. There seems to be no immediate way of remedying the situation. In fact, it threatens to get worse. What is more, it is rapidly reaching the point where there is no money in it for the railroads. Every day it costs us more to handle the business on account of the additional cost of switching and demurrage charges.

"Many wise shippers are diverting their freight to other ports. Baltimore, Philadelphia, Boston, and Portland are getting their share. The volume of business shipped via the Port of New York exceeds all records and is giving the railroads about all that they can swing. If we could regulate the arrival of steamers, a thing which no one can do, the situation would be better. Sometimes we have more boats than we have facilities for loading, and the rest of the time there are not enough boats to carry away the freight. The season of storms is coming on now, and it is getting increasingly more difficult to figure the dates of arrival of ships, which, of course, causes a further piling up of freight."

On the West Shore road loaded cars stand on practically every side track from New York to Buffalo, 7,000 cars in all. In spite of this, 4,500 cars a day are moved in and out of the port. At the piers of the railroad are fifteen stone boats loaded with seventy-five crated automobiles each, destined for the war zone. In the Belmar yards, on the Hackensack Meadows, a short distance east of Little Ferry, N. J., lie ninety carloads of steel rails that have been unloaded from freight cars in order that the railway equipment may be set free for other uses.

One of the commodities which is receiving attention above almost all others is grain. A steamship chartering agent said yesterday that the railroads were not delaying shipments of grain, and that he believed the delay in wheat delivery was due to congestion on the Great Lakes, on steamship lines operating between Duluth and Port Henry, and Buffalo.

"We haven't had any boats delayed in New York on account of congestion here," he said. "Grain comes through from Buffalo in forty-eight hours. We have had some of our boats delayed as long as a week, however, on account of the condition of lake traffic. We have a boat now that has been waiting five days at the Erie elevator. Last week we had a boat leave that had been delayed seven days.

"The owner of such a boat loses about $1,000 every day that it is delayed. He can not charge demurrage, however, unless it takes more than five days, not including Sundays, to load the vessel. Demurrage is now $750 a day on a ship, while before the war it was only $150. The average rate on grain to England is now 17 shillings a quarter, (480 pounds,) while before the war it was 3 shillings 6 pence. The grain congestion here in New York now is not a flea bite to what it was in Baltimore and Newport News after the fire at the grain elevators a couple of months ago.

"The railroad people say that there is a shortage of ships. Well, we could use more if we could get them, but there were never before so many ships entering and leaving the port of New York. About a week ago we had twenty-two steamers to our consignment loading in this port. As I remember, in times of peace we seldom had more than thirteen or fourteen steamers here at once."

That the railroads have not the harbor facilities for handling the traffic was indicated by the information given by the General Freight Agent of one of the largest transatlantic steamship lines.

A new method which the British Admiralty is employing for facilitating the grain movement was described by one of the large steamship chartering agents. He said that in several cases within his personal knowledge, when the ship owner demanded excessive freight rates, the shipper had cabled the British Government, which had at once placed the ship under requisition, with the result that the British ship owner received about one-half of the prevailing freight rate for carrying the grain. The chartering agent believed that the British Government was carefully watching the freight situation with an eye to preventing British ship owners from charging freight rates that might hinder the flow of traffic.

ADVANCES IN CHINAWARE.

These Are Due in Great Measure to Added Costs Abroad.

The war is responsible for much friction at the present time between importers of china and earthenware and customs officials regarding the values to be put on these goods for dutiable purposes.

The advances over invoiced or entered prices on foreign chinaware now being made are probably more general than in many years.

Customs officials charged with the appraisal of chinaware said yesterday that while it was not their intention to take undue advantage of the predicament in which foreign manufacturers and importers here find themselves, the cost of production on the other side was constantly going up, and that under the tariff's administrative law there was no other course to pursue than to raise values whenever the evidence showed that new and higher prices were listed abroad. Reappraisements now being made by the Board of General Appraisers reveal that importers in nearly every case where the Custom House authorities raised values have taken appeals. Another thing that seems to be evident by the proceedings before the board is the fact that many job lots of Limoges and other china and earthenware are being brought in. This, it is held, is proof that in many lines of goods production has been so seriously interfered with by the war that job lots only are to be had.

Such German chinaware as is coming through is also standing heavy advances. These goods comprise cups, saucers, and, in fact, the general range of German production. Some of these goods apparently were detained at Rotterdam or some other neutral port for a long period. The market having advanced materially since the date of consulating the invoices, nothing remained but for the customs men to impose advances. Products of such well-known German manufacturing firms as Porzellan Fabrik Schonwald of Arzberg and half a score of other houses are involved in the reappraisements handed down. These goods included both decorated and white china.

Brass Chains, Card Cloth, and Hollow Ware Considered.

That there is nothing about brass watch fobs and chains to warrant their classification under the tariff as "toys" was the conclusion reached yesterday by the Board of General Appraisers in the protest case of Adolph Strauss & Co., importers, of this city.

Some details regarding the value of the various materials entering into the makeup of English card cloth were brought out in suits filed by the Davis & Furber Machine Company and the Stone & Downer Company, Boston, against the Collector's classification of this kind of cloth. The merchandise was described as rubber-faced cloth. It was made of one layer or ply of rubber, two plies of cotton cloth, and one ply of cotton and linen cloth, all cemented together, forming one fabric. The Appraiser reported that cotton was the component of chief value, and the Collector classified the goods as manufactures of cotton at the rate of 30 per cent. ad valorem under the tariff. The importers' claim was for entry at only 10 per cent. as manufactures of india rubber. Judge Cooper sustained the protests, and ordered the merchandise admitted at 10 per cent.

Progress was made by the board in interpreting the hollow ware provision of the present tariff. The A. Weisberg Company, Philadelphia, imported basins, pitchers, pudding pans, ladles, mugs, stew pans, tea kettles, soap dishes, salt boxes, kettles, tea strainers, and other similar articles of aluminium and enameled hollow ware. Duty was levied on all of the articles at the rate of 25 per cent. ad valorem as "hollow ware." The claim was for entry at 20 per cent. ad valorem as manufactures of metal not especially provided for. It was held that only the tea strainers and ladles fell under the metal manufactures paragraph, the balance of the shipments being properly dutiable as assessed.

NO CAMBRIA PLANS YET.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 17.—Widely circulated reports concerning the immediate future of the Cambria Steel Company, including the rumor that it was to be the nucleus around which were to be gathered in one corporation some of the most important independent steel interests in the country, were not confirmed this afternoon by E. V. Babcock, when he declared that the plans of himself and his associates, who last Friday bought 240,000 shares of the stock, had not yet been formed.

"We paid $15,000,000 for the stock which the Pennsylvania Railroad Company held in the Cambria Steel Company, and we consider that we have a good control of the property, but we have made no concrete plans for the future," said Mr. Babcock. "Last week there was a contest for these 240,000 shares, but we got them, and now we have no fight with any one. It will take a little time for us to shape our plans. That there will be developments is quite possible, but anything we may do will work to preserve the best interests of all the stockholders."

Associated with Mr. Babcock in the purchase of the stock were J. Leonard Replogle, ex-Vice President of the Cambria; Frank J. Lannahan, President of the Fort Pitt Malleable Iron Company of Pittsburgh, and Charles J. Graham, Vice President of the Graham Nut and Bolt Company, also of Pittsburgh.

Americans Buy Slipes.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The offerings at the wool auction sales today amounted to 6,000 bales. The small selection was in strong demand and prices were firm. American buyers paid 2s ½d for sliped lambs and 1s 10½d for Punta Arenas slipes.

Closing Jos. Benedict Co. Affairs.

Judge Hough, in the Federal District Court, yesterday, directed the bankruptcy trustees of the Joseph Benedict Company, a subsidiary of the J. B. Greenhut Company, to pay Peter B. Olney, the referee, $289 and Rosenberg, Levis & Ball, attorneys for the trustees, $1,013. The bankruptcy costs will then be met and the balance turned over to the company, which has made a composition with creditors at 75 per cent.

Buying Up All He Can Get.

A woolen buyer connected with a large clothing manufacturing concern made the statement yesterday that he is buying for his house "everything desirable he can lay his hands on." The volume of business booked for the Spring season has surpassed the expectations even of those who were most optimistic. The buyer's idea in making purchases where he can, however, is not so much based on this prosperous condition, but upon the rapidly rising cost of piece goods. A scarcity of woolens, he said, is certain to occur. In fact, he described the market as suffering from the "incipient stages" of a scarcity now.

Better Chances in This Market.

Several ribbon houses have found a great field of opportunity in the South American markets, and there are other factors in the market who do not believe the attempt to get business on that continent is worth while trying. The last named group figures that the domestic demand is of large enough proportions to engage its entire attention. The domestic manufacturers are supplying more and more of this country's needs as far as ribbons are concerned, and foreign imports are dwindling. If any outside market is to be tried, it is put forward that Canada offers greater possibilities than do the Latin-American countries.

Are Turning to Brown Denims.

As loth as some of the American manufacturers of overalls seem to be to violate precedent by offering any but a blue garment to their trade, it was said yesterday that there has been quite a noticeable turning to brown denims of late. This is due, it was said, to the difficulty in getting fast blue dyes and the smallness of supplies in the hands of the mills. On this score, it is said to be almost as difficult to get domestic color stuffs as it is foreign ones. The brown denims can be dyed with cutch, which from all accounts can be procured with less trouble than other color stuffs and which gives a fast color. "Pepper and salt" effects are also being offered and are doing quite well.

Will Miss Their Drink.

The strict embargo placed by Sweden on the exportation of many native products is making itself felt in the jobbing market here. One of the commodities in which there is a scarcity is Swedish brandy, which is in general demand by the Swedes of this country during the holiday season. As a rule, large quantities of these spirits are brought in about this time in order to meet the demand from the large Swedish communities in Minnesota and adjoining States. Gustave Porges, Secretary of the Strohmeyer & Arpe Company, handlers of Scandinavian products, said yesterday that unless the Swedish Government relents few Swedish families in this country will have their national beverage on the table this coming Christmas.

Weather Is Helping Business.

The colder touch to the air in the last few days has had the effect of stimulating cloak and suit business at retail, and there is apparently every indication now that this will be one of the best seasons in some time. The coming of better business generally has had the effect of giving women more money to spend, which is a factor in the present activity in the lines in question. A good part of the garment trade the retail stores have enjoyed of late has been made up of velvets, velveteens, and corduroys, though the demand for garments made from wool fabrics has by no means been negligible. Scarcity of certain colorings of the most-favored fabrics, notably greens and blues in the pile fabrics, and a scarcity of corduroys in some quarters, are about the only flaws in the present situation.

Are Buying Typewriters.

If, as is claimed by some, the sales of typewriters are barometers of the condition of business in this country, prosperity is either at hand or close here. An executive of one of the biggest typewriter manufacturing concerns in the country said yesterday that its October business has been the largest in any month since March, 1914. So good has business been of late, it was said, that there are orders for 5,000 machines on its books on which work has not yet been begun because of previous orders. While the domestic demand was said to be largely responsible for this condition, the export business that is now being done is a factor in it. The call for the so-called accounting typewriters has been especially large in the last month, and a good business has been booked on special, wide-carriage machines.

Drawback on Shrapnel Material.

Following the granting of drawback on shrapnel manufactured by the Bethlehem Steel Company, the Treasury Department has taken like action in the case of the E. W. Bliss Company of Brooklyn. The drawback given the Bliss concern by Assistant Secretary William P. Malburn relates to imported lead, antimonial lead, antimony, and other materials used in the make-up of the finished shrapnel. The Treasury's order says that the allowance to be made to the firm may equal the quantity of imported materials used in the manufacture of the exported shrapnel, as shown by the abstract from the manufacturing record, the allowance for waste to be reduced according to the quantities of imported materials which the value of the waste will replace. The Bliss concern is reported to be engaged on heavy orders for shrapnel for the Allies.

Drug Prices Move Up.

Weekly Drug Markets will say today that rumors to the effect that the Suez Canal will be closed to commerce if German success in the Balkans becomes a menace have directly stimulated an upward trend in various drugs and spices which are raised in the Far East. A brisk demand has set in for spices, principally pepper, cloves, ginger, and cassias. Among the products grown in the Far East which are apt to be affected in price and supply if the Canal is closed are the following: Cardamons, cannabis indica, cassia fistula, oil of sesame, castor oil, croton oil, senna, assafetida, ammoniac, catechu, oil of cajuput, nux vomica, sandalwood, kamala, kino, cubebs, benzoin, cinchona, chirata, capsicum, bitter and sweet orange peel, black pepper, nutmegs, mace, and cinnamon. Concessions in the price of quinine have been made during the last week by second hands, who are in control of the market.

Allowing Bigger Appropriations.

The plans for the amount of purchases allowed each department are well laid out in advance by stores, and as a rule compliance with the scheme originally made has proved most satisfactory. The buyers, however, have always complained of this restriction on their operations. The burden of their complaint is that many an opportunity is lost through the unswerving determination to allow only a fixed amount during a stated period. While the buyer's argument has not been so well taken in the past, it is now a fact that if better profits are to be realized the bars should be taken down in many directions. There is merchandise priced by manufacturers today that within a short time will be worth considerably more, and the store with sufficient foresight to make purchases beyond the immediate need will be in a very favorable position. During the last Summer one of the large stores did a business equal to that of the two past seasons together, which seems reason enough for revising appropriations.

Gray Goods Were More Active.

There was a better demand for merchandise in the local gray goods market yesterday, and the price position of the market continued firm. There was a return of the attention of buyers to the heavier constructions of drills, and some of the heavier sheetings were also in demand. Some of this business was done for nearby delivery, but a good part of the bids was for deliveries in the first three months of next year. In the printcloth end quite a little business was put through in a quiet way. Most of the sales were for spot and nearby shipment, the mills being unwilling to accept bids for contract deliveries on the basis of present spot prices. Among the sales reported were 39-inch 68-72s at 5 cents, 38½-inch 64-60s at 4⅝ cents, and 38½-inch 60-48s at 4 cents. Spot prices on staple printcloth constructions were:

WOOLMARKET STILL STRONG

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 17.—The American Wool and Cotton Reporter will say tomorrow:

"The wool market is still strong with an upward tendency. Prices continue to harden slowly. A dealer in pulled wools sold a quantity during the week at the best prices of the season. Dealers who have been holding to territory wools are now realizing the profits on them. Manufacturers are beginning to realize that Boston is the cheapest market in the world.

"The woolen goods market continues active with great interst in future developments. Interest in woolens is increasing, and it is expected that a much greater quantity will be sold than usual. Indications are that many lines will contain cotton, which have formerly been all wool. This has made prices on cotton yarns very firm. Among the market developments has been the sale of serges, fancy worsteds, and some other fabrics for future requirements. It is stated that upward of $10,000,000 worth of merchandise for future repairments has been taken in addition to the amount of ordinary fabrics which are sold previous to the regular opening."

Merchants' Committee Satisfied.

ALBANY, Nov. 17.—Edward Hatch and M. Mead, representing the Merchants' Association of New York, called on Governor Whitman this afternoon to discuss the association's proposal that all public institutions be removed from the Croton watershed. When the Governor told them of his letter to President Morgan of the association, in which he promised to hold up all work at Yorktown Heights until the matter has been passed on by the Legislature the committeemen expressed themselves as satisfied.

Investigating Drug Combination.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The Department of Justice, through the United States Attorney at Boston, has begun an investigation of reports of a combination between the United Drug Company and the Riker-Hegeman Company to determine whether there has been a violation of the anti-trust laws. The Riker-Hegeman Company has been under investigation for many months, but the inquiry into the recent report of a combination between it and the United is a new phase of the matter.

NO CHANGE IN CAR SEALS.

Those Now in Use Favored by the Treasury Department.

Assistant Secretary Peters has notified customs officials at this port that the Treasury Department has approved a report of a special investigating committee recommending that the use of the Tyden seal for cars and compartments of vessels and the Brooks tin button seal for packages of ordinary merchandise in less than carload lots and baggage, be continued.

The committee was appointed early last Summer and held several hearings here at which railroad, steamship and other transportation agents were heard, as well as customs brokers and forwarders. There seemed to some sentiment in favor of the use of improved devices for sealing freight carried in bond, but after several manufacturers had submitted their sealing devices it appeared to be the general consensus of opinion that the present methods were good enough to be retained.

Most of the interests represented at the hearings said they had no particular complaint to make against the devices used by the Treasury Department. It was said yesterday that no further change will be made in the devices now used until manufacturers of seals bring out something better than the articles employed at present.

Passaic Prints Advance.

The T. Holt Haywood department of Frederick Vietor & Achelis announced yesterday several advances on Passaic prints, for which the department recently became selling agents. Among the most important advances, which will become effective today, are: Central Park shirtings, from 4¼ to 4¾ cents; Peabody grays, from 4½ to 4¾ cents; Orion robes, from 4¾ to 5 cents; and National twill draperies, from 6 to 6¼ cents. The remainder of the advances are proportionate. The merchandise in question is sold to the jobbing and manufacturing trades.

BUSINESS NOTES.

J. B. Weil, who for the past three years was the advertising manager of the French Lingerie Company, has resigned.

A triple convention will be held in Pittsburgh on May 10, 11, and 12, 1916, when the American Supply and Machinery Manufacturers' Association will meet with the Southern Supply and Machinery Dealers' Association and the National Supply and Machinery Dealers' Association. The William Penn Hotel, now in course of construction, will be the headquarters for the three bodies.

Alexander Brothers, manufacturers of women's hats and hat frames, will occupy new quarters in the building at 5-9 West Thirty-seventh Street about Dec. 1. They are at present located at 682 Broadway.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—An area of high pressure of great magnitude has built up in the Lake region within the last twenty-four hours and it completely dominates the weather in Northwestern and central districts. The low central Tuesday evening in Kansas has moved slightly to the Southeast and its further progress seems to be blocked by the Northeastern high.

Rain is indicated for the lower Mississippi, and the lower Ohio Valleys, Thursday and probably Friday. In other districts in the East and South, fair weather with moderate temperature is probable.

Winds for Thursday and Friday along the North Atlantic coast will be moderate west to northwest; Middle Atlantic coast, moderate north to northwest; South Atlantic coast, moderate to fresh northeast.

FORECASTS—TODAY AND FRIDAY.

Western New York—fair Thursday and Friday.

3 A. M.	32	36	4 P. M.	36	45
6 A. M.	29	33	6 P. M.	35	41
9 A. M.	32	36	9 P. M.	34	38
12 M.	36	43	11 P. M.	31	36

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 40; for the corresponding date last year it was 34; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 43.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 35; at 8 P. M. it was 39. Maximum temperature, 46 degrees at 2:30 P. M.; minimum, 33 degrees at 12:30 A. M. Humidity, 68 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 44 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 30.21 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 30.43 inches.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD.

J. Hood Wright Estate Sells Another Big Plot on Washington Heights to H. and M. Mandelbaum—Small Investors Buying Tenement Property—Several Big Country Estates Disposed Of.

Upper Washington Heights was the centre of activity in the realty market yesterday. The deals of importance comprising two apartment houses and another parcel of the Hood Wright estate purchased by Harris & Maurice Mandelbaum.

One of the new houses in the upper residential section, at 633 and 635 West 171st Street, was sold for the Dayton Building Company, (Harris and Ely Maron,) to an investor. The building is a five-story structure recently completed by the sellers and covers a plot 77 by 95 between Broadway and Fort Washington Avenue. It is fully rented. Wetmore & Atwood were the brokers.

In the lower heights district, the six-story apartment at 547 West 147th Street, known as Buckingham Palace, on plot 100 by 99.11, adjoining a similar building on the northeast corner of Broadway, was purchased by the Nason Realty Company, from the estate of Bertha Heidelberger. It has been held at $300,000. J. C. Hough & Co., were the brokers in the transaction.

Mandelbaums Buy More Wright Lots

Additional evidences that the extensive J. Hood Wright estate holdings in upper Washington Heights will soon witness important apartment house operations were given in the third purchase of the Wright properties within a week by Harris & Maurice Mandelbaum.

Their latest acquisition is a plot of six lots on the south side of 173d Street, fronting 150 by 97.3 and 159 feet east of Fort Washington Avenue. The lots abut a portion of the thirteen lots on 172d Street, purchased by the Mandelbaums last week through the J. Romaine Brown Company, which was also the brokers in the recent sale.

Buying Tenements for Investment.

J. McKee has purchased from the Mutual Life Insurance Company, 2,493 Second Avenue, a five-story tenement on a lot 25 by 75. William Cruikshank negotiated the sale.

Caroline A. Buhler bought from Georgia E. Mills, 2,593 to 2,603 Eighth Avenue, three five-story flats with stores, on plot 120 by 75.4, adjoining the northwest corner of 138th Street.

Home Site at Riverdale Sold.

Thomas C. Lane has sold in the Riverdale section, west of Van Cortlandt Park, a plot of eight lots, at the northwest corner of Fieldston Road and 252d Street, being 150 feet on the road by 190 feet on the street. It was sold through Eugene L. Larkin to a buyer who is planning to erect a residence. The property comprises about half an acre and is a short distance north of the Fieldston development of the Delafield estate.

Brooklyn.

N. Rubenstein and I. Freedman have sold a plot at 126 East Nineteenth Street, 125 by 100, for Virginia Lee Egbert. The new owner will immediately commence to improve this property, with two four-story apartment houses, for which W. T. McCarthy is preparing plans.

The Lefferts estate sold a plot, 200 by 100, on Bedford Avenue, near Rutland Road, to Peter J. Collins, who will erect ten private dwellings. Frederick M. Smith was the broker.

The Long Island Railroad Company has sold to the Texas Company, an independent oil refining company of Texas, for $16,000, a plot of about half an acre at Long Island City, with a frontage of 417½ feet, adjoining easterly side of the Long Island Railroad and intersecting Marsh Street.

Homewood Farm Sold for $200,000.

Homewood Farm, the property of Richard T. Wainwright on Lincoln and Harrison Avenues, Rye, Westchester County, N. Y., has been sold through the office of Heckscher & de Saulles to Hugh R. Partridge. The property consists of about 150 acres with two Colonial residences, several buildings connected with the dairy, as well as numerous other buildings, stables, &c.

It is situated on one of the highest points of Westchester County, and is in the immediate neighborhood of the Whitelaw Reid, Odgen Mills Reid, Oliver Harriman, and Hobart J. Park estates. The price paid is reported to be in the neighborhood of $200,000.

Country Estates in Demand.

Fish & Marvin, in conjunction with H. R. Lounsbery, have sold for Mrs. Richard Forrest an estate at Scarsdale, N. Y., to Charles Harris of this city. The property comprises five acres of high land, a large Colonial residence and outbuildings, and was held at $75,000.

Charles B. Van Valen, in conjunction with Stevens & Tetor, sold for the Gramont Construction Company an estate of about 100 acres at Viola, N. Y., to Otis H. Cutler of Suffern. The estate, which is in the heart of the Ramapo Mountains, will be occupied as a Summer home by the purchaser.

Van Norden & Wilson sold in Pelham Manor, N. Y., for the estate of Benjamin F. Corlies, a plot of ground, with 100 feet frontage on the esplanade, running through to Edgewood Avenue, 303 feet in depth and 150 feet on Edgewood Avenue. The purchaser is George W. Lawrence, who will erect a residence for his own occupancy. W. H. Orchard is to be the architect.

New West Side "L" Station.

A new elevated station is to be constructed near 150th Street on the Eighth Avenue line. The present stations in this neighborhood are at 145th Street and 155th Street, and residents complained to the Public Service Commission that they were too far apart. There was some difference of opinion as to whether the station should be at 150th or 151st Street. Commissioner Wood favored a point near 151st Street, but it was decided to leave the exact situation to the decision of Chief Engineer Craven.

Brooklyn Realty Board Elects Officers

At the annual meeting of the Brooklyn Board of Real Estate Brokers, Robert A. Wright was elected President and Howard C. Pyle Vice President. Isaac Cortelyou succeeds himself as Secretary and Arthur Waterman was elected Treasurer, succeeding George H. Gray.

The new Board of Directors consists of James B. Fisher, Isaac O. Horton, John R. Ryon, and Arthur Waterman. The reports of the committees indicated that the organization is in a prosperous condition.

Queens Borough Building Record.

The development of Queens Borough during the past nine months has not been confined to industrial lines only. Large sums have been expended in the erection of dwellings and apartments.

The figures of the first nine months of 1915 just reported by Superintendent John W. Moore of the Queens Building Bureau show that plans have been filed for 4,299 buildings, estimated to cost $15,297,902. This is 564 more buildings than in the same period of 1914.

Crucible Steel Company Enlarges Its Plant.

The Crucible Steel Company, Harrison, N. J., which now has several large buildings rapidly nearing completion, has filed plans for another three-story brick and steel building, 50 by 227, at the rear of its new office building on Fourth Street.

Buffalo Chamber of Commerce Joins State Association.

The Real Estate Association of the State of New York announced yesterday that it has received an application for affiliated membership from the Real Estate Association of the Buffalo Chamber of Commerce.

In response to a demand for closer co-operation between the State real estate body and local organizations of taxpayers and brokers, the State Association has lately adopted a plan which enables it to greatly increase its work, although the expense to each of the affiliated organizations is nominal.

Commercial Leases.

The Charles F. Noyes Company has re-leased for a term of years the five-story, basement, and sub-cellar building 597 Broadway, through to 170 Mercer Street, at a rental aggregating about $55,000 for the term. This and other leases recently recorded in the same neighborhood show that the hat industry is remaining downtown. One reason for the strength of Broadway in this vicinity is the fact that the Broadway subway, which is nearing completion, will have a station at Prince Street, which is in the same block as 597 Broadway.

Huberth & Huberth, in connection with Horace S. Ely & Co., have leased the store 1,895 Broadway, at the southwest corner of Sixty-third Street, to the Duffy Motors Corporation as Eastern distributors for the Standard car.

Burton Thompson & Co., Inc., have leased Store No. 3 in the Standard Arcade to John P. Gilbanks.

Daniel Birdsall & Co., Inc., have leased the store and basement 72-74 Greene Street to a wholesale wine merchant for a term of years for the Mansback estate.

Douglas L. Elliman & Co. have leased a store at 752 Madison Avenue, adjoining the corner of Sixty-fifth Street, for Frederick T. Barry to the St. Sylvia's Cottage Industries.

Realty Notes.

August Belmont has had incorporated the 44 East Thirty-fourth Street Company, with a capital of $420,000, to take over his property at 42 and 44 East Thirty-fourth Street and 31 East Thirty-third Street, with frontages of 53.2 feet and 25 feet, respectively.

Plans for a business building to be erected on the site were prepared several years ago by Mr. Belmont's architect, but were never carried out. Recently the property was placed on the market for sale.

FACTORY OFFENDERS TREATED LENIENTLY

CROPSEY SEVERELY CAUSTIC

District Attorney James C. Cropsey continued his grilling of the State Industrial Commission yesterday afternoon when the inquest into the death of twelve persons at the Diamond candy factory fire at 281 North Sixth Street, Williamsburg, on Nov. 6, was resumed before Coroner Ernest C. Wagner in Brooklyn.

Having brought out in previous testimony an apparently loose system of inspecting factories and keeping records of violations, the District Attorney showed at yesterday's hearing that even the Legal Department of the Commission did not have a method of checking up the violations on factory buildings reported by the inspectors.

Charles Whelan, Assistant Counsel in the Inspection Department of the Commission, brought to the hearing a number of books containing records of complaints filed with the department. In his testimony, Mr. Whelan admitted that while the books of his department checked up cases in which factories had complied with the orders of the Industrial Commission, there was no record kept to show when the orders of the Commission had not been complied with.

The witness explained that it was the custom of the legal department to act on cases after complaints of violations had been made two or three times against the factories concerned. The procedure of compelling the delinquent factory owners to comply with the orders of the commission was usually by letters set by the legal department. Mr. Whelan said that good results were frequently obtained by these letters. Of course, when the letters were ignored the legal department would prosecute the offenders, the witness declared.

Law Applied Loosely.

During his testimony Mr. Whelan remarked that because there was a slight violation of the law in a factory this did not necessitate legal action. The District Attorney, aroused at this statement, and pointing his finger at the witness, exclaimed:

"If you want to know my opinion, this is it. The law ought to be lived up to, or else changed. Its enforcement should not be left to the judgment of any one department, or any one official, no matter how high he may be, because that opens up too many avenues for crookedness."

James M. Lynch, Chairman of the State Industrial Commission, was called again to testify. He was asked by the District Attorney what had been done by the commission to change the code it followed in exercising jurisdiction over factory buildings. There is a difference between the code regarding five-story factory buildings and the law, which the District Attorney holds gives the commission authority over all factory buildings. The code expressly refers to buildings under five stories, and it has been claimed by members of the commission that it had no jurisdiction over five-story factory buildings, among these being the Diamond candy factory.

Lynch testified that the legal department of the commission had called his attention to this discrepancy between the code and the law several times, the last occasion being three or four months ago. The witness declared the commission was so overworked that it did not have time to attend to such matters as having the code changed to include five-story factory buildings.

Airs Lynch's Expense Account.

Following up a previous line of investigation in which the District Attorney brought out at the hearings that about $10,000 a year was allowed by the commission to its inspectors for supper money, Mr. Cropsey questioned Lynch about a trip he made to San Francisco, Los Angeles, Salt Lake City, and other places last August, with a view to finding out whether the expenses for the trip were paid by the State.

Mr. Lynch, as Chairman of the commission, went to San Francisco as a representative of New York State to attend a convention for considering the conditions of the unemployed in this country. The convention lasted five days, but Lynch admitted that he was away on the Western trip about a month.

"Were all your expenses on that trip paid out of State funds?" asked Mr. Cropsey.

"Well, my trip to San Francisco was paid."

"Were the expenses incurred by you on your trip to Los Angeles paid by the State?" persisted Mr. Cropsey.

"Would you have gone to Los Angeles to attend to your private matters if it had not been for the fact that your expenses to San Francisco were paid by the State?" asked the District Attorney.

"In all probability I would not have gone there," Lynch answered.

Mutterperl, Leather Manufacturer, Is Fined and Rebuked.

Because he had kept an exit door locked in his leather goods factory at 473 Broadway, Solomon Mutterperl was fined $50 in the Court of Special Sessions yesterday. In passing sentence Justice Salmon said:

"We want you to bear in mind the recent catastrophe in Brooklyn in which twelve girls and men lost their lives because of a locked door. This court intends to do its utmost to prevent recurrences of such a calamity."

FEAR COSTS WOMAN'S LIFE.

When the controller box of a Bayonne line trolley car on which she was riding at midnight last night blew out at Old Bergen Road in Jersey City a panic-stricken woman, about 50 years old, ran to the platform and jumped off. Her skull was fractured when she fell and she died in the City Hospital.

The woman wore a plain wedding ring. She had a light complexion, light brown hair, and weighed about 180 pounds. She had on a light-colored coat, a black hat with two red feathers, black skirt, and white shirtwaist.

SCHELLING'S RECITAL.

Two seasons have passed since Ernest Schelling has played the piano here, except for a single performance for charity which he gave last Spring. He has now returned to the concert stage, and gave yesterday afternoon in Carnegie Hall his first recital. The seasons in which he has played in his native country have not been many; and he is more widely known as a pianist in Europe than he is in the United States. Nevertheless, his appearances here have established his standing as an artist of the first rank, and his work as a composer has shown a rare and individual native talent that has produced striking and interesting results.

Mr. Schelling's playing is remembered with pleasure as uniting many beautiful and artistic qualities. It has, since his first appearances here, continually advanced and matured in style and grown in breadth and power, in repose, in restraint. At some of his last appearances here he sometimes yielded to the temptation of a strong man rejoicing in his strength and in the sonorities of the modern pianoforte. He is now more concerned with the beauty, the color, the expressive quality of his tone, the finer gradations of its dynamics; and in these respects his playing yesterday had manifold aspects of beauty. It showed a sweeping power of eloquence and passion, as in the "Appassionata" sonata of Beethoven, with which Mr. Schelling opened his program, and which brought his listeners at once face to face with the most potent manifestation of his art, noble and poetic in its exposition of Beethoven's thought, and concerned with it alone, without the intrusion of a virtuoso's personality.

His playing of Chopin, the A flat étude from Op. 10, the posthumous A minor mazurka, the F major nocturne, the waltz in A flat, to which he added the waltz in C sharp minor, was full of characteristic beauties, of grace and delicacy, of supple rhythm, of ardent imagination.

There were a number of new and unfamiliar pieces on the program of unusual interest and merit. It would be a poor compliment to suppose that Mr. Schelling put upon his program the Variations and Fugue in A minor, Op. 11, of Mr. Paderewski, as a mark of respect to a teacher to whom he owes much in the molding of his artistic style. He put it there rather, it may be supposed, because it is a charming and delightful product of the Polish composer and pianist's earlier style, in which he has expressed a wide range of fancy in terms piquant, brilliant, imposing, and displaying originality, novel turns of expression, learning, and skill. Mr. Paderewski writes differently now—these variations date from his youthful days, and his last work in the same form is far more austere and more strenuous. Mr. Schelling played them with exuberant fancy. He made equally interesting a number of other wholly unfamiliar compositions: the vividly pictorial study, "Le Tambour bat aux Champs" of C. V. Alkan; a piece of Oriental impressionism, "Au Jardin du vieux Serail," by Emile Blanchet, a Swiss composer, who lives and works in Geneva, and three pieces by Enrique Granados, the Spanish composer, whose "Goyescas" Mr. Schelling played in New York at his last recitals here, and whose opera, from which they are taken, is to be given this season at the Metropolitan. They were two Spanish dances, one of which, at least, shows not much trace of its connection with dancing, and a Spanish military march, transcription for pianoforte of a march written for the King's troops in Madrid and used by them. These pieces are all much slighter than those which Mr. Schelling played before; but the dances, at least, have the individual touch and the Spanish coloring, though it is less easy to discern them in the march.

There were also on the program Liszt's "Au lac de Wallenstadt" and his transcription of the final scene from Wagner's "Tristan und Isolde." However tempting it is for pianists to make their imitations of the orchestra in such transcriptions, they serve a purpose not wholly artistic in a community that has abundant opportunity to hear the scene in its original form.

ROGERS QUITS TOWN TOPICS

Vera Michelena Also Out of Distressed Revue at the Century.

The financially distressed "Town Topics" continued at the Century last night with no more disturbing elements than the secession of Will Rogers and Vera Michelena. It was said the latter was ill. Ike Hart, the Deputy Sheriff delegated in the interest of creditors to see that none of the property disappeared, occupied his usual post of vantage near the stage door.

During the day Adelaide, the dancer, who disappeared Tuesday night following the announcement of a possible cut in salaries, called the management up and demanded her salary. Frederic McKay, representative of Adelaide and J. J. Hughes, said yesterday that the salary was refused and the dancer was threatened with a suit for disrupting the company. Mr. McKay said Adelaide intend to sue for her salary if necessary. She asserts she did not leave the theatre till announcement was made that half salaries would be paid for the previous week, and that this was justification for her withdrawal.

It is understood the New Theatre founders have already received two offers for the use of the Century. One of these contemplates the using of the playhouse for the exhibition of motion pictures.

SOLD HIS BLOOD IN VAIN.

Henry Troller, a chauffeur of 3,883 Tenth Avenue, was locked up in Police Headquarters last night, charged with forgery by Miss Tina Seitz of 4,208 Broadway. The young woman telephoned to Police Headquarters early in the evening and said she had a warrant for Troller's arrest.

She said he had telephoned to her asking her to meet him at the home of his brother, 32 West 115th Street, and had told her he had submitted to an operation for the transfusion of blood in the Presbyterian Hospital to earn $15 with which to repay her part of the $34.75 she had lost by his bad check.

She asked for a detective to accompany her to the appointment, and Detective Harvey went with her after getting the warrant from her. Troller was amazed at his arrest, and said he could show that he had never intentionally committed a forgery and was doing his best, while out of work, to get money to make good Miss Seitz's loss when she cashed his check.

LOCK OF NAPOLEON'S HAIR BRINGS $107.50

A lock of Napoleon Bonaparte's hair, obtained while he was at St. Helena, was bought by George D. Smith for $107.50 at the John E. Burton library sale in the Anderson Galleries yesterday. It is preserved within folio sheets of celluloid, and was accompanied by a letter of Captain Thomas Poppleton of the Fifty-third Regiment, who was "permanent orderly" over Bonaparte until the close of June, 1817.

The Library of the Nebraska University paid $280 for a fine copy of John Kingsborough's "Antiquities of Mexico," published in London in 1831-48. J. F. Lewis gave $88 for a manuscript Koran written in the seventeenth century, in Arabic and Persian characters in red and black on native glazed paper. Each page is within ruled gold lines, and the first two pages are surrounded by ornamental borders in gold and colors.

Thomas L. McKenney and James Hall's "History of the Indian Tribes," Philadelphia, 1848-55, was knocked down to Mr. Smith for $23. "The Fall of Napoleon: An Historical Memoir," by Lieut. Col. J. Mitchell, a choice copy of the scarce first edition, London, 1845, went to C. Gerhardt & Co. for $62.50. Count Mentholon's "History of the Captivity of Napoleon at St. Helena," London, 1846-47, extra illustrated with engravings and portraits of Napoleon, his Generals, Josephine, Marie Louise, &c., sold to T. A. Barton for $50.

The day's sales amounted to $2,999.75. The total for the library thus far is $19,986.20. The sale will be continued today.

SLAUGHTER PARK BUFFALO.

Black Diamond, Who Adorns the Nickel, Turned Into Food.

The big buffalo of the Central Park herd, Black Diamond, who served as the artist's model for the design of an issue of $10 notes and the "buffalo nickel," was taken from the ranch in the park yesterday afternoon to an abattoir at Fortieth Street and East River, where his great bulk of about a ton was added to the city's food supply. About 750 pounds of buffalo steak are to be distributed today to clubs and hotels. The chef of the Lambs' Club has procured a supply of steak.

An offer of $1,000 for the head of Black Diamond was refused by August Silz, who paid the Park Department $300 for the buffalo. Silz says he will keep the head for his own apartment at the Hotel Ansonia. He will sell the steaks at an average of $1 a pound, and the skin is rated at $250.

There was a crowd of boys and girls and older admirers of the big animal around the inclosure when it came time for his removal at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. In a big crate Black Diamond was loaded upon a truck near the Arsenal Road leading to Fifth Avenue and started on his last journey. Some of those in the throngs had fed the buffalo many times during his eighteen years' residence in the park, and all regretted the necessity for his removal.

COURT ORDERS TONSILS CUT

Establishes Precedent in Parents' Care of Schoolchildren.

The right of the Board of Education to compel parents to send their children to school in good physical condition was sustained yesterday in the Children's Court, Brooklyn, when the court ordered that Michael San Gregorio, 2,301 Pacific Street, have the tonsils removed from his son, Michael, 9 years old. This is the first decision of the kind ever given in the State.

The boy was a pupil in Public School 155. For several years he has been troubled with diseased tonsils and for this reason his parents humored him, paying no attention to the frequent complaints on his absence from school. According to the teachers he was incapable of making any material progress, even though he did attend school regularly, unless the tonsils were removed. Educational Officer Julius Hickfelder called on the parents many times and tried to impress them with their responsibility, but they paid no attention to him, so yesterday he summoned the father to court. The parents promised to have the son's tonsils removed at once.

It seems like a wide range and it is, but at either price the value is unequaled.
Of course there is a difference in cloth, and a difference in the nicety with which the garments are finished, but only one closely versed in the tailoring art can distinguish between the two.
There are several hundred weaves and colorings to select from.

NURSES LAY CORNERSTONE.

The Central Club for Nurses laid the cornerstone of its new building at 132 East Forty-fifth Street yesterday afternoon. Mrs. John T. Pratt opened the exercises with a short address, after which she presented the trowel to George W. Perkins, who placed the cornerstone, as substitute for Mayor Mitchel. Mr. Perkins referred to a message that the Mayor had sent from the hospital. There were other speeches and readings, and prayers by Mrs. James S. Cushman, Miss Eleanor J. Crawford, Mrs. John T. Pratt, Mrs. Nathaniel B. Potter, and the Right Rev. Charles F. Burch.

The new building is being erected from an endowment fund by the Young Women's Christian Association, and is to be the largest of its kind in the world. It will be ready for occupancy next May. The officers of the club are: Mrs. James S. Cushman, President; Mrs. William Fellowes Morgan, Vice President, and Miss Dorothy Perkins, Treasurer.
